A MAnly and ſtronge in battayll was Jeſus the ſonne of Naue, which in ſteade of Moſes ẏ Prophete was geuen to be captayne of the people which acordinge vnto hys name was a greate ſauyoure vnto the elect of god, to puniſh the enemies that roſe vp agaynſt Iſrael, ẏ Iſrael myght optaine theyr inheritaunce. O howe greate, noble & excellent was he, when he lyft vp his hand/ & drewe out his ſwerde agaynſt the cytyes? Who ſtode ſo manly before hym? For the Lorde hym ſelfe brought in the enemyes. * Stode not the ſūne ſtyl at his commaundemente/ and one daye was as longe as twoe? He called vpon the Hyeſt and moſte myghtye when the enemies preaſſed vpon him on euery ſyde: and the Lorde herde hym wyth the hayle ſtones. They ſmote the Heytheneſſhe people myghtely / & in falling downe they ſlewe all the aduerſaryes / ſo that the Heathen knewe his hooſt, and al his defence, ẏ the Lord hym ſelfe fought agaynſt thē/ for he folowed vpō the myghtie men of thē.

A 2.Reg.xii.a Afterward in the tyme of king Dauid / there roſe vp a prophet called Nathã: For lyke as ẏ fat is taken awaye from the offerynge, ſo was Dauid choſen out of the chyldren of Iſraell. He toke his paſtyme with the lyons and as with kyddes / and with bea- 1.Re.xvii.f res lyke as with lambes. * Slewe he not a geaunte when he was yet but yonge / and toke awaye the rebuke frõ his people / what tyme as he toke the ſtone in hys hande / and ſmote downe proude Goliath ẇ the ſlynger? For he called vpon the hyeſt Lorde, whiche gaue him ſtrength in hys ryghte hande / ſo that he ouerthrewe the myghtye geaunte in the battyll, that he might ſet vp the horne B of hys people agayne. * Thus brought he 1.Reg.18.b hym to worſhyppe aboue all prynces / and made hym to haue a good report in the prayſe of the Lorde / that he ſhulde were a 2.Reg.v.b. crowne of glory, * For he deſtroyed the enemies on euery ſyde, roted out the Philyſtynes hys aduerſaryes / and brake theyr hornes in ſunder / lyke as it is broken yet thys daye. In all hys worckes he prayſed the hyeſt and Holyeſt / and aſcrybed the honoure vnto hym. With his whole hert dyd 1.Pa.16.a he prayſe ẏ Lorde and loued god that made hym. * He ſet ſyngers alſo before the aulter / and in theyr tune he made ſwete ſonges. He ordyned to kepe the holy dayes worſhypfully / and that the ſolempne feaſtes thorowe the whole yeare ſhulde be honorably holden, with prayſynge the name of the Lorde, and with ſyngynge by tymes in the mornynge in the Sanctuary.

C * The Lorde toke awaye his ſynnes, and 2.Re.xii.b. exalted his horne for euer. He gaue hym the couenaũt of the kyngdome, and the trone of 3.Reg.iii.c worſhype in Iſraell. * After hi there roſe vp the wyſe ſonne called Salomon, and for hys ſake he droue the enemyes awaye farre of. This Salomõ raigned ẇ peace in his tyme (for God gaue him reſt frõ his enemyes on euery ſyde, ẏ he myght buylde him an houſe in his name, and prepare the Sãctuary for euer) lyke as he was well inſtructe in hys youthe / & fylled with wyſdome and vnderſtandinge, as it were with a water floude. He couered and filled the whole lande with ſimilitudes and wyſe prudent ſentences.

D Hys name wente abrode in the Iles, becauſe of his peace he was beloued. All landes marueled at his ſõges, prouerbes, ſimilitudes, and at his peace, and at the name of the Lorde God, which is called the God of Iſrael. * He gathered golde as tynne, & he had as much ſyluer as leade. iii.Reg. iii.Reg. * He was moued in inordynate loue towarde wemen / & was ouercome in affeccyon. He ſtayned his honoure and worſhyppe / yea hys poſterytie defyled he alſo, in bryngynge the wrathe of iii.Re. the Lorde vpon hys chyldren / and ſorowe after his ioye: * ſo ẏ his kyngdome was deuyded, & Ephraim became an vnfaythfull / ii.Re. and an vncõſtãt kyngdome. * Neuertheles God forſoke not his mercy, neyther was he vtterly deſtroyed becauſe of his worckes, ẏ he ſhulde leaue him no poſterite.

E As for ẏ ſede that came vpõ him, which he loued, he brought it not vtterly to naught but gaue yet a remnaũte vnto Iacob, and a rote vnto Dauid out of hym. ¶ The prayſe of Eliah, Elizeus, Hezekiah, and Eſay.

CAPI. XLVIII.

A THEN ſtode vp * Eliah the Prophet 3.Reg. as a fyre / and hys worde brente lyke a creſſhet. He brought an honger vpon them / and in hys zele he made them fewe in nombre. For they might not awaye with the commaundementes of the Lorde. Thorowe the iii.Re. 4.Reg. worde of the Lord he ſhut the heauen, * and thre times brought he the fyre downe. Thus became Eliah honorable in his wonderous dedes. Who may make his boaſt to be lyke 3.Re. hym? * One that was deed rayſed he vp from deathe, and ithe worde of the hyeſt he brought hym oute of the graue agayne.

* He caſte downe kinges & deſtroyed them / and the honorable from theyr ſeate. Upon the mount Syna he herde the punyſhment, and vpon Horeb the iudgement of the vengeaunce. He prophecyed recõpenſynge vnto kynges, * & ordeyned prophetes after hym.

* He was taken vp in the ſtorme of fyre: in a charet of horſes of the Lorde. He was orda-ned in the reprouynges in tyme to pacyfye the wrath of the Lorde, * to turne the hertes of the fathers vnto the chyldren, and to ſet vp the trybes of Iacob agayne. Bleſſed were they that ſawe the, and were garnyſhed in loue: for we lyue in lyfe: (but after death
B we ſhall haue no ſuch name.)

* Elias was couered in ỹ ſtorme, but Helyſeus was fylled with his ſprete. Whyle he lyued he was afrayed of no prynce / and no man myght ouercome him. There coulde no worde diſceaue him, * & after his death his body prophecied. ‡ He dyd wonders in his lyfe, & in death were his workes maruelous.
For all this, the people amended not, nether departed they frõ theyr ſynnes: * tyll they were caried away preſoners out of the lãde, and were ſcatred abrode in all countrees, ſo that of them there remayned, but a very lytle people / and a prynce vnto the houſe of Dauid. Howe be it ſome of them dyd ryght,
C and ſome heaped vp vngodlynes.

* Hezekias made his cytie ſtronge / conueyed water in to it / dygged thorowe the ſtony rocke with yron / & made vp a well by the water ſyde. ‡ In his tyme came Sen-naherib vp and ſent Rabſakes / lyft vp his hande agaynſte Syon / and defied the with greate pryde. Then trymbled theyr hertes and hãdes / ſo that they ſorowed lyke a woman trauaylinge with chylde. So they called vpon the Lorde / which is mercyful / and lyfte vp theyr handes before hym. Imme-diatly the Lorde harde them out of heauen: (he thought nomore vpon theyr ſynnes / nor gaue them ouer to theyr enemyes:) but delyuered them by the hande of Eſay the holy prophet. ‡ He ſmote the hooſt of ỹ Aſſyrians, and his angell deſtroyed the. For Hezekias had done the thynge ỹ pleaſed the Lorde / & remayned ſtedfaſtly in the waye of Dauid his father, as Eſay the greate and faythful prophet / in the ſyght of God, had commaunded hym. * In his tyme the Sunne wente backwarde, & he lengthened the kinges lyfe.
With a ryghte ſprete prophecyed he, what ſhulde come to paſſe at the laſt: and to ſuche as were ſorowfull in Syon he gaue cõſola-cion, wherwith they myght cõforte them ſelues for euermore. He ſhewed thynges ỹ were for to come & ſecrete, or euer they came to paſſe.

which in his lyfe ſet vp ỹ houſe agayne,

and in his dayes made faſt the temple. The heygth of the temple alſo was founden of him, the double buyldinge, & the hye walles of the tẽple. In his dayes the welles of water flowed out, and were exceadynge full as the ſee. He toke care for his people, & delyuered them frõ deſtruccyon. He kepte hys cytie & made it ſtronge, that it ſhulde not be beſeged. He dwelt in honoure & worſhyppe amonge his people, & enlarged the intraũce of the houſe, & the courte. He gaue lyght as the mornynge ſtarre in the myddeſt of the cloudes, and as the moone whan it is full. He ſhyned as the ſunne in the tẽple of God. He is as bryght as the rayne bowe in the fayre cloudes/and floryſheth as the floures and roſes in the ſprynge of the yeare, and as lylyes by the ryuers of water: Lyke as the braunches vpon the mount Libanus in the tyme of ſommer: as a fyre & incenſe that is kindled. Lyke as an whole ornamẽt of pure golde, ſet with al maner of precious ſtones, and as an Olyue tree that is frutefull/and as a Cypres tree which groweth vp an hye.

B When he put on the garment of honoure, and was clothed with all bewtye: when he went to the holy aulter/to garnyſh the couerynge of the Sanctuarye: when he toke the porcyons out of the Preſtes hande/he hymſelfe ſtode by the herth of the aulter and his brethren rounde about in ordre. As ŷ braunches of Cedre tree vpon the mõut Libanus, ſo ſtode they rounde about him. And as the braunches of the Olyue tree/ſo ſtode al the ſones of Aaron in the glorye & the oblaciõs of the Lorde in theyr handes/before all the congregacion of Iſrael. And that he myght ſuffycyently perfourme hys ſeruyce vpon ŷ aulter/and garnyſh the offrynge of ŷ hyeſt God/he ſtretched out his hande/ and toke of the drynckofferynge, and poured in of the wyne: ſo he poured vpon the botome of the aulter a good ſmel vnto the hyeſt Prynce.

C Then beganne the ſonnes of Aaron to ſyng, & to blowe with trõpettes/& to make a great noyce/for remembraunce and prayſe vnto the Lorde. Then were all the people afrayed, & fell downe to the earth vpõ theyr faces/to worſhyppe the Lorde theyr God, and to geue thankes to the almyghty God. They ſunge godly alſo with theyr voyces, ſo that there was a pleaſaunce noyſe in the great houſe of the Lorde. And the people in theyr prayer beſought the Lorde the hyeſt, that he wolde be mercyfull/tyll the honour of the Lorde were perfourmed. Thus ended they theyr mynyſtracyon and ſeruice. Then went he downe and ſtretched out hys hãdes ouer the whole multitude of the people of Iſrael, that they ſhulde geue prayſe & thankes out of theyr lyppes vnto the Lorde, and to reioyſe in his name. He beganne yet once alſo to praye/that he myght openly ſhewe the thankeſgeuynge before ŷ hyeſt, namely thus: O geue prayſe and thankes (ye al) vnto the Lorde our God, which hath euer done noble & great thinges: which hath increaſed oure dayes from our mothers wombe, and dealt with vs accordynge to his mercy: that he wyll geue vs the ioyfulnes of herte/ and peace for our tyme in Iſrael. Which faythfully kepeth his mercy for vs euermore, and alwaye delyuereth vs in due ſeaſon.

There be two maner of people that I abhorre fro my hert: as for the thyrde, whom I hate/it is no people. They that ſyt vpon the mõtayne of Samaria, the Phylyſtynes, & the fooliſh people that dwell in Sichimis. D

I Jeſus the ſonne of Sirach Eleazarus of Ieruſalem, haue tokened vp theſe informacyons and documentes of wyſdome and vnderſtandynge in thys boke/& poured out the wyſdome of my herte. Bleſſed is he that exercyſeth hym ſelfe therin: and who ſo taketh ſuch to herte, ſhalbe wyſe for euer. Yf he do theſe thynges, he ſhal be ſtrõge in al. For the lyght of the Lorde leadeth hym.

The prayer of Jeſus the ſonne of Sirach.

CAPI. LI.

I Wyll thanke the, O Lorde and kynge, and prayſe the, O God my ſauyoure. I wyll yelde prayſe vnto thy name: for thou arte my defender and helper/ and haſte preſerued my bodye from deſtruccyon, from the ſnare of traytorous tonges, and from the lyppes that are ocupyed with lyes. Thou haſt bene my helper/from ſuche as ſtode vp agaynſt me/and haſt delyuered me after the multytude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names ſake Thou haſt delyuered me from the roarynge of them/that prepared thẽſelues to deuoure me/out of the handes of ſuch as ſought after my lyfe: from the multitude of thẽ that troubled me/ and went about to ſet fyre vpõ me on euery ſyde, ſo that I am not brent in the myddeſt of the fyre: Frõ the depe of hell, from an vnclene tonge/ from lyenge wordes, from the wycked kynge/ and from an vnryghteous tonge. My ſoule ſhall prayſe ŷ Lord vnto death, for my lyfe drewe nye vnto hell downwarde. A

They cõpaſſed me round aboute on euery ſyde, and there was no man to helpe me. B I loked aboute me, yf there were any man that wolde ſocoure me, but there was none. Then thought I vpon thy mercy, O Lorde, and vpon thy actes that thou haſte done euer of olde: namely, that thou delyuereſt ſuche as put theyr truſt in the, and ryddeſt the out of the handes of the Heathen. Thus lyfte I vp my prayer from the earth / and prayed for delyueraunce frō death. I called vpon the Lorde the father of my Lorde, that he wolde not leaue me without helpe, in the daye of my trouble and in the tyme of the proude: I wyl prayſe thy name cōtynually, yeldynge honour and thankes vnto it: and ſo my prayer was herde. Thou ſauedeſt me from deſtruccion, and deliueredeſt me from the vnryghteous tyme. Therfore wyll I aknowledge and prayſe the / and magnyfye thy name O Lorde.

C When I was yet but yonge, or euer I went aſtraye, I deſyred wyſdome openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the tēple, and ſought her vnto ẏ laſte. Then floryſhed ſhe vnto me, as a grape that is ſoone rype. My hert reioyſed in her / then went my fote the ryght waye, yee from youth vp: ſought I after her: I bowed downe myne eare and receaued her. I founde me much wyſdome: and proſpered greatly in her. Therfore wyl I aſcrybe the glory vnto hym / that geueth me wyſdome: for I am aduyſed to do therafter. I wyll be gelous to cleue vnto the thynge that is good / ſo ſhall I not be confounded. My ſoule hathe wraſtled with her, and I haue bene dilygent to be occupyed in her. I lyfte vp myne handes an hye / then was my ſoule lyghtened thorowe wiſdome, that I knowledged my folyſhnes. I ordred my ſoule after her, ſhe & I were one hert frō the begynnynge and I founde her in clenneſſe. D And therfore ſhall I not be forſaken.

My herte longed after her / and I gat a good treaſure. Thorowe her the Lorde hath geuen me a newe tonge, wherwith I wyll prayſe hym. * O come vnto me ye vnlerned, and dwell in the houſe of wyſdome: withdrawe not youre ſelues from her, but talke and comen of theſe thynges / for youre ſoules are very thyrſty. I opened my mouth, & ſpake. O come and bye wyſdome without money, bowe downe your necke vnder her yocke, & youre ſoule ſhal receaue wyſdome. She is harde at hande and is content to be founde. Beholde with your eyes, * howe ẏ I haue had but lytle laboure, and yet haue fōde much reaſt. O receaue wyſdome, & ye ſhal haue plenteouſnes of ſyluer & golde in poſſeſſion. Let youre mynde reioyſe in hys mercy, and be not aſhamed of hys prayſe. Worke hys worke by tymes, and he ſhall geue you your rewarde in due tyme.

The Lorde wyll that we obeye vnto prynces although they be euel. He promyſeth that he wyll call agayne the people from captiuitie, and geue them a newe and an euerlaſtynge teſtament.

FOR the *whiche cauſe the Lorde oure God hathe perfourmed hys deuyce, A wherof he certyfyed vs/ and oure heades ẏ ruled in Jeruſalem: yee and oure kynges, oure prynces/ wyth all Iſrael and Juda. And ſuch plages hath the Lorde brought vpon vs, as neuer came to paſſe vnder the heauen lyke as it is fulfylled in Jeruſalem, *accordynge as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moſes: that a man ſhulde eate the fleſh of hys owne ſonne/ and the fleſh of hys one daughter. Moreouer, he hathe delyuered them into the handes of all the kynges, that are rounde about vs (to be confounded and deſolate) and ſcatred them abrode in all landes and nacions. Thus are we brought beneth & not aboue, B becauſe we haue ſinned againſt the Lorde our God, & haue not bene obedient vnto his voyce. *Therfore ẏ Lorde our God is ryghteous/ and we with our fathers (as reaſō is) are brought to opē ſhame, as it is to ſe this daye. And as for theſe plages ẏ are come vpon vs all ready, the Lorde had deuyſed them for vs: yet wolde we not praye vnto the Lorde our God, ẏ we myght euery mā turne frō his vngodly wayes. So the Lorde hathe cauſed ſuch plages to come vpon vs: for he is ryghteous in all hys workes, which he hathe cōmaunded vs: whiche we alſo haue not done/ nor harkened vnto his voyce/ for to walke in the cōmaundementes of the Lorde/ that he had geuen vnto vs.

*And now, O Lorde God of Iſrael thou that *haſte brought thy people out of the lande of Egypte with a myghtye hande, with tokens and wonders/ with thy greate power and out ſtretched arme: and haſt gotten thy ſelfe a name/ as it is come to paſſe this daye. O Lorde our God/ we haue ſynned/ we haue done wyckedly/ we haue behaued our ſelues vngodly in al thy ryghteouſneſſes. Turne thy wrath from vs (we beſech the) for we are but a fewe lefte amonge the C Heathen, where ẏ haſt ſcatered vs. *Heare our prayers (O Lorde) and our peticyons, brynge vs out of captiuyte/ for thyne owne ſake: get vs fauoure in the ſyght of them, whiche haue led vs awaye: that all landes may knowe/ ẏ thou art the Lorde our God, and that Iſraell & hys generacyon calleth vpon thy name. O Lorde/ loke downe from thy holy houſe vpon vs: enclyne thyne eare, and heare vs/ open thine eyes Lord & ſe vs.

*For the deed/ ẏ be gone downe to theyr graues/ & whoſe ſoules are out of theyr bodyes, *aſcribe vnto ẏ Lorde/ nether praiſe nor ryghteouſmakyng: but the ſoule that is

hered for the multitude of her ſynnes which goeth on heuely and weakely/ whoſe eyes be begynne to fayle: yee ſuche a ſoule aſcrybeth prayſe and ryghteouſneſſe vnto the Lorde. O Lorde, we poure out oure prayers before D the/ and requyre mercy in thy ſyght, O Lord oure God: not for any godlyneſſe of our forefathers, but becauſe thou haſt ſente out thy wrath and indignacyon vpon vs: accordyng as thou dydeſt threaten vs, by thy ſeruaũtes the prophetes, ſayinge:

Iere.17.a * Thus ſayeth the Lorde: Bowe downe your ſhulders and neckes/ and ſerue yͤ kyng of Babylon/ ſo ſhall ye remayne ſtyll in the lande/ that I gaue vnto your fathers. Yf ye wyll not do thys/ nor heare the voyce of the B Lorde youre God/ to ſerue the kynge of Babylon: I ſhall deſtroye you in yͤ cities of Iuda/ within Ieruſalem and without. I wyll alſo take from you the voyce of myrth ⁊ the voyce of ioye/ the voyce of the brydegrome ⁊ the voyce of the bryde, and there ſhall no mã dwell more in the lande. But they wolde not herken vnto thy voyce, to do the kyng of Babylon ſeruice: and therfore haſt thou perfourmed the wordes that thou ſpakeſt by thy ſeruauntes the prophetes: namely/ that the bones of our kĩges, ⁊ the bones of oure fathers ſhulde be tranſlated out of theyr place.

E And lo/ nowe are they layde out in yͤ heat of the ſonne, and in the colde of the nyght/ ⁊ deade in greate myſery/ with hunger/ wyth ſweard, with peſtilence ⁊ are clene caſt forth. As for the temple wherin thy name was called vpon/ thou haſt layde it waſte, as it is to ſe thys day: and that for the wyckednes of yͤ houſe of Iſraell and the houſe of Iuda. O Lorde oure God/ thou haſt intreated vs after all thy goodnes, ⁊ accordynge to all that great louynge mercy of thyne/ lyke as thou ſpakeſt by thy ſeruaunte Moyſes, in the day whan thou dydeſt commaũde hym/ to wryte thy lawe before yͤ chyldren of Iſrael, ſaying: Deut.4.b and.xxviii. * Yf ye wyll not herken vnto my voyce/ then ſhal thys greate multytude be turned into a very ſmall people/ for I wyll ſcatre them abrode. Notwithſtandynge I am ſure/ that F this folke wyl not heare me: for it is an hard necked people. But in the lande of theyr captiuite/ they ſhal remembre them ſelues, and learne to knowe/ that I am the Lorde theyr God/ whan I geue them an herte to vnderſtande/ and eares to heare. Then ſhall they prayſe me in the lande of theyr captiuite: and thyncke vpõ my name. Then ſhall they turne them from theyr harde backes/ and from their vngodlynes. Then ſhall they remẽbre the thynges/ that happened vnto theyr forefathers, whiche ſynned agaynſt me. So wyl I brynge them agayne into the lande, which I promiſed with an othe vnto their fathers: Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob: ⁊ they ſhall be Lordes of it, yee I wyll increaſe them, ⁊ not miniſh the. * And I wyl make another coue- Hebre.8.c Eſaie.8.b Apoc.xxi.b naunt with them: ſuche one as ſhall endure for euer: namely/ that I wyl be theyr God/ ⁊ they ſhalbe my people: ⁊ I wyl nomore driue my people the chyldren of Iſraell, out of the lande that I haue geuen them.

¶ The people contynueth in theyr prayer begonne for their delyueraunce. He prayſeth wyſdome vnto the people, ſhewinge that ſo greate aduerſitees came vnto them for the deſpyſinge therof. Only God was the fynder of wyſdome. Of the incarnacyon of Chriſte.

CAPI. III.

A AND nowe, O Lorde almyghtye, thou God of Iſraell: oure ſoule that is in trouble/ and oure ſprete that is vexed, cryeth vnto the: heare vs (O Lorde) and haue pytie vpon vs, for thou arte a mercyfull God: be gracyous vnto vs/ for we haue ſynned before the. Thou endureſt for euer, ſhulde we then vtterly peryſſhe? O Lorde almyghtye/ Ephe.ii.b thou God of Iſrael: Heare now the prayer * of the deed Iſraelites and of theyr chyldren, Dani.iii.c Iere.14.a.c and.v.c whiche haue ſynned before the, and not herkened vnto the voice of the Lord their God, for the which cauſe theſe plages hange now vpon vs. O Lorde, remembre not the wyckednes of our forefathers, but thynke vpon thy power and name nowe at this tyme: for thou arte the Lorde our God, ⁊ the (O Lord) wyl we prayſe. Num.14.a Pſal.77.a * For thou haſt put thy feare in our hertes, to the intent that we ſhuld call B vpon thy name/ and prayſe the in oure captyuyte: and that we myght turne frome the wyckedneſſe of our forefathers, that ſynned before the.

Beholde, we are yet this daye in our captyuyte, where as thou haſt ſcatred vs, to be an abhominacion, curſe/ and ſynne: Pſal.79.a * lyke as it hathe happened vnto oure fathers alſo/ bycauſe of all theyr wyckedneſſe and departynge from the.

O Iſrael, here the commaundementes of lyfe: põdre them well with thyne eares/ that thou mayeſt learne wyſdome. But how happeneth it Iſraell, that thou art in thyne enemyes land? thou art waxen olde in a ſtraũge countre, and defyled with the deed. Why art thou become lyke them, yͭ go downe to theyr graues? Iere.ii.b Euẽ becauſe thou haſt * forſakẽ the well of wyſdome. For yf thou haddeſt walked in yͤ waye of God, Prouer.1.a and.iii.a truely yͧ ſhuldeſt haue remayned ſtyll ſafe in thyne owne lande.

¶ O learne then where diſcrecion is/ where vertue is/ where vnderſtādyng is, that thou mayeſt knowe alſo frome whence commeth *longe lyfe, a neceſſary lyuing/ the lyghte of the eyes/ and quyetnes. Who euer founde out her place? or who came euer into hyr treaſures.

C Where are the prynces of the Heathen become/ and ſuch as ruled the beaſtes vpō the earth? They that had theyr paſtyme with ŷ foules of the ayre/ they that hoorded vp ſyluer and gold (wherin men truſt ſo much) and made no ende of theyr gatherynge? What is become of them that coyned ſyluer, and were ſo carefull/ and coulde not brynge theyr workes to paſſe? They be roted out/ & gone downe to hel/ & other men are come vp in theyr ſteades. Yonge men haue ſene lyght/ & dwelte vpon earth: but the way of reformacyon haue they not knowen, nor vnderſtande the pathes therof: nether haue theyr chyldren receaued it, yee ryght farre is it frō them. It hath not bene herde of in the lande of Canaan, nether hath it bene ſene at Theman.

D The Agarenes ſought after wyſdome, but that whiche is earthly, lyke as the marchauntes of the lande do. They of Theman are connynge alſo, and they laboure for wyſdome & vnderſtandynge: but the waye of true wyſdome they knowe not, neyther do they thyncke vpon the pathes therof. O Iſraell, howe great is the houſe of God? & how large is the place of his poſſeſſion? *Great is he, & hathe none ende: yee & vnmeaſurable. What is become of thoſe famouſe gyauntes, that were ſo great of bodies & ſo worthy men of warre, Thoſe had not the Lord choſen, nether haue they founde the waye of reformacyon, therfore were they deſtroied & for ſo much as they had no wyſdome, they peryſhed becauſe of theyr fooliſhneſſe.

E Who hathe gone vp into heauen, to take wyſdome there, and brought her downe frō the cloudes? Who hath gone ouer the ſee to fynde her, and hath choſen her aboue golde, & ſo brought her hyther? No man knoweth the wayes of wyſdome, neyther is there any that can ſeke out her pathes. But he ŷ woteth all thynges, knoweth her, and he hathe foūde her out wt hys fore knowledge. *This ſame is he which prepared the earth at ŷ begynnynge, & fylled it with all maner of foules & beaſtes. *When he ſendeth out ŷ lyght, it goeth: and when he calleth it agayne, it obeyeth hym with feare. The ſtarres kepe theyr watche, and geue theyr lyght, yee and that gladly. When he calleth them, they ſay: here we be. And ſo wyth chearefulneſſe they ſhewe lyghte vnto hym that made them. *This is oure God, and there ſhall none other be compared vnto hym. A THis is the Booke of the commaundementes of God/ and the lawe that endureth for euer. All they that kepe it/ ſhall come to lyfe: but ſuch as forſake it, ſhal come to death. Turne the O Iacob, and take hold of it: walcke by this waye thorow his bryghtneſſe and ſhyne. Geue not thyne honoure to another/ and thy worſhyppe to a ſtraunge people. O Iſraell, *howe happye are we ſeyng that God hath ſhewed vs ſuche thinges as are pleaſaunt vnto hym? B Whan ſhe ſawe ŷ the wrath of God was commynge vpon you: ſhe ſayde: Herken O ye that dwell aboute Syon/ for God hathe brought me in to great heuynes: & why? I ſe the captiuite of my people/ of my ſonnes and daughters, which the euerlaſtyng God wyll bryng vpon them. With ioy did I norſh thē, but nowe muſt I leaue them with weppynge and ſorowe.

Let no man reioyce ouer me wyddowe & forſaken: which for the ſynnes of my chyldrē am deſolate of euery man. For why? they departed from the lawe of God: they wold not knowe hys ryghtuouſnes, nor walcke in the way of his cōmaundementes: and as for the pathes of the trueth and godlynes, they had no luſt to go in them.

These haue caryed awaye the deare beloued of my wyddowes, leauynge me alone / both deſolate and chyldleſſe. But alas, what can I helpe you? Now he that hath brought theſe plages vpõ you, delyuer you alſo from the handes of your enemyes.

Go your waye (O my chyldren) go youre waye: for I am deſolate ⁊ forſaken, + I haue put of the clothynge of peace, and put vpon me the ſack cloth of prayer / and for my tyme I wyll call vpon the moſt Hyeſt. Be of good cheare O my chyldren: crye vnto the Lorde / and he ſhall delyuer you from the power of yͤ prynces, youre enemyes,

For verely / I haue euer a good hope of your proſperous health: yee a very gladnes is come vpon me from the holy one / becauſe of the mercy that ye ſhall haue of our euerlaſtynge ſauyour.

With mournynge and wepynge dyd I D let you go fro me / but with ioye and perpetuall gladneſſe / ſhall the Lorde brynge you agayne vnto me. Lyke as the neyghboures of Syon ſawe your captiuite from God. Euen ſo ſhal they alſo ſe ſhortly your health in god which ſhall come on you with great honour and euerlaſtyng worſhyppe.

Reg.16.b O my chyldrẽ, + ſuffre paciẽtly the wrathe that ſhall come vpon you. For the enemye hath perſecuted the / but ſhortely thou ſhalte ſe his deſtruccyon / and ſhalte treade vppon hys necke. My derlynges haue gone rough harde wayes / for they are led awaye as a flocke that is ſcatred abroade with the enemies. But be of good comforte (O my chyldren) and crye vnto the Lorde: For he that led you awaye / hath you yet in remẽbraũce: and lyke as ye haue bene mynded to ſwarue Eſay.lv.b from your God, + ſo ſhall ye nowe endeuour your ſelues .x. tymes more, to turne agayne ⁊ to ſeke him. For he yͭ hath brought theſe plages vpõ you, ſhal bryng you euerlaſting ioy agayne wͭ your helth. Take a good herte vnto the, O Jeruſalẽ: for he whyche gaue the yͤ name, exhorteth the ſo do.

Jm.la.b c ‡ The wycked doers that nowe put the to trouble, ſhal peryſh: and ſuche as haue reioyſed at thy fall / ſhalbe punyſhed. The cytyes whom thy chyldren ſerue / and that haue caryed awaye thy ſonnes, ſhalbe correcte. For lyke as they be nowe glad of thy decaye (and reioyſe at thy fall) ſo ſhall they mourne in their owne deſtrucciõ. The ioye of their multytude ſhalbe taken away / and their cheare ſhalbe turned to ſorowe. For a fyre ſhall fall vpon them from the euerlaſtynge God, long to endure: and it ſhalbe inhabyted of deuels for a great ſeaſon.

¶ Jeruſalem is moued vnto gladnes for the returne of her people, and vnder the fygure therof, the Churche.

CAPI. V.

O Jeruſalem, loke aboute the towarde the Eaſte / and beholde the ioye that cõmeth vnto the from God. For lo / thy ſonnes (whom thou haſt forſaken, and that were ſcatred abrode) come gathered together / frome the Eaſt and weſt reioyſynge in the worde of the holy one, vnto the honour of God. A

Put of thy mournyng clothes (O Jeruſalem) and thy ſorow, ⁊ decke the with the worſhyppe ⁊ honour / that commeth vnto the frõ God, wͭ euerlaſtyng glory. God ſhal put the garmente of ryghtuouſnes vpon the, and ſet a crowne of euerlaſting worſhyp vpon thine head: for vpon yͤ wyl God declare his brightneſſe, yͭ is vnder the heauen. Yee an euerlaſtyng name ſhalbe geuen the of god, wͭ peace of ryghtuouſneſſe, ⁊ the honour of Goddes feare.

Aryſe, O Jeruſalem, ſtande vp on hye: B loke about the towarde the eaſt, and beholde thy chyldren gathered from the Eaſte / vnto the Weſt: which reioyce in the holy worde, hauynge God in remembraunce. They departed from the on fote, ⁊ were led away of their enemyes: but nowe ſhall the Lorde brynge them to the caryed with honoure / as chyldren of the kyngdome. For God is purpoſed to brynge downe all ſtoute mountaynes, yee and all hye rockes / to fyll the valleys / and ſo to make them euen wyth the grounde: that Iſrael may be dilygent to lyue vnto the honoure of God. The woddes and all pleaſaunt trees ſhall ouerſhadowe Iſrael, at the commaundement of God. For hyther ſhall God brynge Iſrael with ioyfull myrth, and in the lyght of his mageſtye: with the mercy and ryghtuouſneſſe, that commeth of him ſelfe.

¶ A copye of the epyſtle that Jeremy ſent vnto the Jewes, whiche were led awaye priſoners by the kynge of Babylon: wherin he certifieth them of the thynge, that was commaunded him of God.

CAPI. VI.

BEcauſe of the ſynnes that ye haue done A agaynſt God / ye ſhall be + led away cap Jere.25.a.b tyue vnto Babylon / euen of Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babylon. So whan ye be come into Babylon / ye ſhall remayne there many yeares, and for a longe ſeaſon: namely ſeuen generacions: ⁊ after that wyl I brynge you awaye peaceably from thence. Nowe ſhall ye ſe in Babylon goddes of golde, of ſyluer, of wod & of ſtone: borne vpon mens ſhulders, to caſt out a fearfulneſſe before the heathen. But loke that ye do not as the other: be not ye afrayed, & let not the feare of them ouercome you.

B Therfore, whan ye ſe the multitude of people worſhyppyng them behynde & before, ſaye ye in your hertes: O Lorde, * it is thou/ that Deute.vi.c oughteſt onely to be worſhypped? Myne Angell alſo ſhalbe with you, and I my ſelfe wyl care for your ſoules. As for the tibre of thoſe goddes, ÿ carpenter hath polyſhed them: yee gylted be they, & layed ouer with ſyluer, yet are they but vaine thinges, & can not ſpeake. Lyke as a wenche that loueth peramours is trymly decke, euen ſo are theſe made & hanged with golde. Crownes of golde verely haue their goddes vpon theyr heades: ſo the preſtes thē ſelues take ÿ golde & ſyluer from thē and put it to theyr owne vſes: yee they geue of the ſame vnto harlottes, & trymme theyr whores withal: agayne, they take it from the Iere.x.a whores, & decke theyr goddes therwith. * Yet can not theſe goddes deliuer them ſelues frō ruſte and mothes. When they haue couered them with clothynge of purple, they wype theyr faces for the duſt of the temple, wherof their is much among them. One hath a ſceptre in hys hande/ as though he were iudge of the countre: yet can he not ſley ſuche as offende hym. Another hath a ſwearde or an axe in his hande/ for al that, is he neither able to defende hym ſelfe from battayle/ nor frome murtherers.

C By thys ye maye vnderſtande/ that they be no goddes: therfore ſe that ye neither worſhyppe them/ nor feare them. For lyke as a veſſell that a man vſeth/ is nothynge worth when it is broken/ euen ſo is it with theyr goddes. When they be ſet vp in the temple/ theyr eyes be full of duſte, thorowe the fete of thoſe that come in. And lyke as the dores are ſhut in rounde aboute vpon hym that hathe offended the kynge. Or as it were a deed body kepte beſyde the graue. Euen ſo the preſtes kepe the dores with barres and lockes/ leeſt theyr Goddes be ſpoyled with robbers. They ſet vp candels before them (yee verely and that many) wherof they cānot ſe one, but euen as blockes, ſo ſtande they in the temple. It is ſayde that the ſerpentes and wormes/ whiche come of the earthe, gnawe out theyr hertes, eatyng them and theyr clothes alſo/ & yet they fele it not. Theyr faces are blacke thorow the ſmoke that is in the temple. The oules/ ſwalowes/ and byrdes/ ſit vpon them yee and the cattes runne ouer theyr heades.

D By this ye maye be ſure, that they are not goddes, therfore feare them not. The golde that they haue/ is to make them bewtyfull: for all that, excepte ſome body dyght of theyr ruſt/ they wyll geue no ſhyne: and when they were caſt ĩto a fourme/ they felt it not. They are bought for money/ and haue no breth of lyfe within thē. * They muſt be borne vpon Deu mens ſhoulders/ as thoſe that haue no fete: wherby they declare vnto men/ that they be nothynge worth. * Confounded be they then Psal that worſhyppe them. For yf they fall to the groūde/ they can not riſe vp agayne of them ſelues. Yee though one helpe them vp and ſet them ryght/ yet are they not able to ſtande alone: but muſt haue proppes ſet vnder them lyke deed men. As for the thynge that is offred vnto them/ their preſtes ſel it, and abuſe it: yee the preſtes wyues take therof, but vnto the ſycke & poore they geue nothyng of it/ the wemen with childe & the menſtruous lay handes of theyr offringes. By this ye may be ſure, ÿ they are no goddes, therfore be not ye afrayde of thē. From whence cōmeth it then, that they be called goddes? The wemen ſyt before the goddes of ſyluer/ golde & wodde/ and the preſtes ſyt in theyr temples/ hauyng open clothes, whoſe heades & beerdes are ſhauen & haue nothyng vpon theyr heades: roryng and crieng vpon their goddes, as men do at the feaſt/ when one is deed.

E The preſtes alſo take awaye the garmentes of the ymages, and decke their wyues & chyldren withall. Whether it be good or euil that any man do vnto thē/ they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther ſet vp a kynge nor put hym downe. In lyke maner they may neither geue ryches, nor rewarde euyl. * Though a man make a vowe vnto thē Eccle.v and kepe it not/ they wyll not requyre it. They can ſaue no man from death/ neyther delyuer the weake from the myghtye. They can not reſtore a blinde man to his ſight/ nor helpe any man at hys nede. They can ſhewe no mercy to ÿ wyddowe/ nor do good to the fatherleſſe. Theyr goddes of wodde, ſtone/ golde/ and ſyluer/ are but euen as other ſtones, that be hewen of the mountayne. They that worſhyppe them/ ſhalbe confounded. Howe ſhulde they then be taken for Goddes? Yee howe darre men call them goddes? And though the the Caldees worſhypped them not, hearynge that they were but domme & could not ſpeake. Yet they them ſelues offre vnto Bel/ and wolde fayne haue him to ſpeake: as who ſaye/ they coulde fele/ that maye not moue. But whan theſe men come to vnderſtandyng/they ſhal forſake thẽ/for their goddes haue no felynge. A great ſorte of wemen gyrde with coardes / ſyt in the ſtretes / and burne olyue beryes. Nowe yf one of them be conueyed awaye/ and lye with any ſuche as come by: ſhe caſteth her neghbours in yͤ teth, becauſe ſhe was not ſo worthely reputed / nor her coorde broken. What ſo euer is done for them/it is but in vayne and loſte. Howe maye it then be thought or ſayde / that they are goddes? Carpenters and golde ſmythes make them/nether be they any other thyng, but euen what the worcke men wyll make of them. Yee the gold ſmythes them ſelues that make them/ are of no longe contynuaunce. Howe ſhulde then the thynges that are made of them/be Goddes? Vayne therfore are the thinges(yee very ſhame is it)that they leaue behynde them for theyr proſperyte. For as ſoone as there commeth any warre or plage vpon them/then the preſtes ymagyn, where they may hyde them ſelues with them. Howe can men thyncke then that they be Goddes / whiche neither may defende thẽ ſelues from warre/nor delyuer them from myſfortune? For ſeynge they be but of wood/of ſtone / of ſyluer and of golde: all people and kynges ſhall knowe herafter/that they be but vayne thynges: yee it ſhalbe openly declared / that they be no goddes: but euen the very workes of mẽs handes/and that God hath nothinge to do with thẽ.(It is manifeſt then that they are no goddes, but the worckes of mens handes/and no worke of God in them.(They cã ſet no kyng in the lande/nor geue rayne vnto men. They can gyue no ſentence of a matter/nether defende the land from wrong. For they are not able to do ſo muche as a crowe / that flyeth betwixte heauen and earth.

G Whan there happeneth a fyre into the houſe of thoſe goddes of wodde/and ſyluer/and of golde, the preſtes wyl eſcape and ſaue thẽ ſelues/but the Goddes burne as the balkes therin. They can not withſtande any kynge or batayle: howe maye it then be thought or graunted, that they be goddes? Moreouer / theſe goddes of wodde, of ſtone, of golde and ſyluer may neyther defende thẽ ſelues from theues nor robbers: yee the very wycked are ſtronger then they. Theſe ſtrype them out of their apparel, that they be clothed withall, theſe take theyr golde and ſiluer from them, and ſo get thẽ away: yet can they not helpe them ſelues. Therfore it is much better for a mã, to be a kyng, and ſo to ſhewe his power: or els a profitable veſſell in a houſe, wherin he that oweth it, might haue pleaſure: yee or to be a dore in a houſe, to kepe ſuch thynges ſafe as be therin, then to be ſuch a vaine god. The Sunne, the Moone and al the ſtarres, ſeynge they gyue theyr ſhyne and lyght, are obedient, and do men good. Whan the lyghtnynge glyſtreth, all is cleare. The wynde bloweth in euery countre: and whã God cõmaundeth the cloudes to go rounde aboute the whole worlde, they do as they are byddẽ: whan the fyre is ſent downe from aboue and cõmaunded, it burneth vp hylles & woddes. But as for thoſe Goddes, they are not lyke one of theſe thynges, nether in bewty, nether ſtrength. Wherfore men ſhulde not thynke, nor ſaye that they be goddes, ſeyng they can nether gyue ſentence in iudgment, nor do mẽ good.

H For ſo muche nowe as ye are ſure, that they be no goddes/then feare them not. For they can nether ſpeake euyl nor good of kynges. They can ſhewe no tokens in heauẽ for the Heythen, nether ſhyne as the Sunne, nor geue lyght as the Moone: yee the vnreaſonable beaſtes are better then they, for they can get them vnder the rofe, and do them ſelues good. So can ye be certyfyed by no maner of meanes, that they be goddes: therfore feare them not. For lyke as a ſcarcrowe in a garden of herbes kepeth nothynge, euen ſo are theyr goddes of wod, of ſyluer and gold: and lyke as a whyte thorne in an Orcharde, that euery byrde ſytteth vpon: yee lyke as a deed body that is caſt in the darcke. Euen ſo is it with thoſe goddes of wood, ſyluer and golde: By the purple and ſcarlet which they haue vpon them, and ſoone fadeth awaye, ye maye vnderſtande, that they be no Goddes: yee they them ſelues ſhal be conſumed at the laſt, whiche ſhalbe a greate confuſion of the land. Bleſſed is the Godlye man, that hath no Images and worſhyppeth none, for he ſhalbe farre from reproſe.

The Songe of the thre chyldren / whiche were put into the hote brenning ouen. The cōmen trāſlacion readeth this ſong in the .iij. chap. of Daniel.

And they walked in the myddeſt of the flāme, prayſynge God ⁊ magnyfyenge the Lorde. Aſarias ſtode vp, and prayed on this maner. Euen in the myddeſt of the fyre opened he his mouth, ⁊ ſayd: Bleſſed be thou (O Lorde God of oure fathers) ryght worthy to be prayſed and honoured is the name of thyne for euermore: for thou arte ryghteous in all thynges that thou haſt done to vs: Yee faythfull are all thy workes / thy wayes are ryght, and all thy iudgementes true. In all the thynges that thou haſte brought vpon vs, and vpon the holy citie of our fathers (euen Jeruſalem) thou haſte executed true iudgmēt: yee accordynge to ryght and equyte haſt thou brought all theſe thynges vpon vs, becauſe of our ſynnes.

The ſtory of Suſāna/ which is the.xiij.chapter of Daniel after the Latin.

A THere dwelte a man in Babylon/ called Ioachim, yͭ toke a wyfe/ whoſe name was Suſanna, the daughter of Helchia, a very fair woman, ⁊ ſuche a one as feared God. Her father ⁊ her mother alſo were godly people/⁊ taught theyr daughter accordīg to the lawe of Moyſes. Nowe Ioachim (her huſbāde) was a great rich man, ⁊ had a fayre orcharde ioynynge vnto his houſe. And to hī reſorted the Iewes comēly, becauſe he was a mā of reputacion among thē. The ſame yere were there made two Iudges, ſuche as the Lorde ſpeaketh of: Al the wyckedneſſe of Babylon/cōmeth from the elders (that is) from the iudges/whiche ſeme to rule the people. Theſe came ofte to Ioachims houſe, and all ſuch as had any thyng to do in the law, came thyther vnto them.

B Nowe when the people came agayne at after noone/ Suſanna went into her huſbādes orcharde to walcke. The elders ſeinge this/ that ſhe wente in dayly/and walcked: they burned for luſte to her/yee they were almoſt out of theyr wyttes/ and caſte downe theyr eyes/that they ſhulde not ſe heauen/ nor remembre/that God is a ryghteous iudge. For they were both wounded with the loue of her/nether durſt one ſhew another his grefe. And for ſhame/they durſt not tel her there inordinate luſt/that they wold fayne haue had to do with her. Yet they layed wayte for her earneſtly from daye to day/that they myght (at the leaſt) haue a ſyght of her. And the one ſayde to the other: Up/let vs go home/ for it is diner tyme. So they wēt their way frō her.

When they returned agayne, they came together, enquyrynge out ỹ matter betwyxte them ſelues: yet the one tolde ỹ other of hys wycked luſt. Then appoynted they a tyme, when they myght take Suſanna alone.

C It happened alſo ỹ they ſpyed out a conuenient tyme, when ſhe went forth to walke (as her maner was) and no body wyth her, but two maydens, ⁊ thought* to waſhe her ſelfe in the gardẽ, for it was an hote ſeaſon. And there was not one perſon there, excepte the two elders, and ỹ hyd them ſelues, to beholde her. So ſhe ſayde to her maydens: go fet me oyle and ſope, and ſhut the orcharde dore, that I may waſh me. And they dyd as ſhe bad them, and ſhut the orchard dore, and went out them ſelues at a backe dore, to fet the thyng that ſhe had commaũded, but Suſanna knewe not, that the elders laye there hyd within. Nowe when the maydens were gone forth, the two elders gat them vp, and cãne vpõ her, ſayng: now the orcharde dores are ſhut, that no man can ſe vs: we haue a luſt vnto the, therfore cõſente vnto vs, and lye wyth vs.

D If thou wylt not, we ſhal brynge a teſtymonyall agaynſt the: that there was a yonge felowe wyth the, and that thou haſt ſente away thy maydẽs from the for the ſame cauſe. Suſanna ſyghed, ⁊ ſayde: Alas, *I am in trouble on euery ſyde. Though I folow your mynde, it wyll be my death, ⁊ yf I cõſent not vnto you, I can not eſcape your hãdes. Wel it is better for me, to fall into your hãde without the dede doynge, then to ſynne in ỹ ſyght of the Lorde: and wyth that, ſhe cryed out wyth a loude voyce: the elders alſo cried out agaynſt her.

Then cãne there one to the orchard dore, and ſmote it open. Nowe when the ſeruauntes of the houſe herde the crye in the orchard, they ruſſhed in at the backe dore, to ſe what the matter was. E So when the elders tolde them, the ſeruauntes were greatly aſhamed, for why? there was neuer ſuch a reporte made of Suſanna. On the morowe after came the people to Ioachim her huſbande, ⁊ the two elders came alſo, full of myſcheuous ymaginacyon agaynſt Suſanna, to brynge her vnto death, and ſpake thus before the people: Sende for Suſanna the daughter of Helchias, Ioachims wyfe. And imediately they ſente for her. So ſhe came wyth her father ⁊ mother her chyldrẽ and all her kynred. Now Suſanna was a tender perſon, and marueylous fayre of face. Therfore the wycked men commaunded to take of the clothes from her face (for ſhe was couered) that at the leeſt, they might ſo be ſatiſfyed in her beuty. Then her frendes, yee and all they that knewe her, beganne to wepe.

These two elders ſtode vp in the myddeſt of the people, and layed theyr handes vpon the heade of Suſanna: which wepte, and loked vp towarde Heauen / for her herte had a ſure truſt in the Lord. And the elders ſayde: As we were walkynge in the orchard alone, thys woman came in with her two maydẽs: whom ſhe ſente away from her, and ſparred the orcharde dores: wyth that a yonge felow (whiche there was hyd) came vnto her, and laye with her. As for vs / we ſtode in a corner of the orcharde. F And when we ſawe this wyckednes / we came to her: and perceaued, that they had medled together. But we could not holde him, for he was ſtronger then we: thus he opened the dore / and gat him away. Now when we had taken thys woman, we aſked her / what yonge felowe thys was: but ſhe wolde not tel vs. This is the matter, and we be wytneſſes of the ſame. The comen ſorte beleued them / as thoſe that were the elders and iudges of the people, and ſo they condemned her to death. Suſãna cryed out with a loude voyce, and ſayd: O euerlaſtyng God, *thou ſercher of ſecretes, thou that knoweſt al thynges afore they come to pas: thou woteſt, that they haue borne falſe wytnes agaynſte me: ⁊ beholde, I muſte dye, where as I neuer dyd any ſuche thynges as theſe men haue malycyouſly inuented agaynſt me. And the Lorde herde her voyce. For when ſhe was led forth to death, the Lorde rayſed vp the ſpirete of a yonge chylde / whoſe name was Daniel, G which cryed with a loude voyce: *I am cleane from this bloude. Then al the people turned them towarde hym, and ſayde. What meane theſe wordes / that thou haſt ſpoken? Daniel ſtode in the myddeſt of thẽ, and ſayde: Are ye ſuche fooles, O ye chyldren of Iſrael, that ye can not diſcerne nor know the truth? Ye haue here condemned a daughter of Iſraell vnto death, and know not ỹ trueth wherfore: Go ſyt on iudgement agayne / for they haue ſpoken falſe wytneſſe agaynſt her.

Wherfore the people turned agayne in al the haſt. And the elders (that is, the pryncypall heades) ſayde vnto him: come ſyt downe here amonge vs, and ſhewe vs this matter / ſeyng God hath geuẽ the as greate honoure as an elder. And Daniel ſaid vnto thẽ. *Put theſe two aſyde one from another / and then ſhall I heare thẽ. When they were put aſunder one frome another he called one of them and ſayde vnto hym: O thou olde cancked carle, that haſt vſed thy wyckedneſſe ſo lõg: thyne vngracyous dedes whych ẏ haſt done afoꝛe/ are nowe come to lyght. Foꝛ thou haſt geuen falſe iudgementes, thou haſt oppreſſed the innocent / ⁊ letten the gyltye go fre/ where as yet ẏ Loꝛd ſayeth: *The innocent ⁊ ryghtuous ſe thou ſley not. Wel thã/ yf thou haſt ſene her tell me vnder what tre ſaweſt thou them talkyng together? He anſwered: vnder a Molbery tree. And Danyel ſayde: very well/ now thou lyeſt euen vpon thyne head. Lo the meſſaunger of the Loꝛde hath receaued the ſentence of hym, to cut the in two. Then put he hym aſyde/ ⁊ called foꝛ the other, ⁊ ſayde vnto hym: O thou ſede of Canaan/ but not of Juda: Fayꝛeneſſe hathe diſceaued the, and luſt hath ſubuerted thine hert. Thus dealte ye afoꝛe with the daughters of Iſrael, and they (foꝛ feare) conſented vnto you: but the daughter of Juda wolde not abyde youre wyckedneſſe. Nowe tel me thã vnder what tree dydeſt ẏ take thẽ, ſpeakinge together? He anſwered: Under a Põgranate tree. Then ſayde Daniel vnto him: very wel, now thou lyeſt alſo euẽ vpõ thine heade. The meſſaunger of the Loꝛde ſtandeth waytyng with the ſwerde, to cut the in two, and to ſleye you both.

Wyth that, all the whole multitude gaue a greate ſhoute, ⁊ prayſed God, * which alwaye delyuered them that put theyꝛ truſt in hym. And they came vpon the two elders (whome Danyell had conuycte wyth theyꝛ owne mouth: that they had geuen falſe witneſſe) ⁊ dealte with them/ euen lykewyſe as they wolde haue done with theyꝛ neyghboures: yee they dyd * accoꝛdyng to the lawe of Moſes, and put thẽ to death. Thus the innocent bloude was ſaued the ſame daye.

Then Helchiah ⁊ hys wyfe prayſed God foꝛ theyꝛ daughter Suſãna, with Joachim her huſbãde and all the kynred: ẏ there was no diſhoneſtye foũde in her. From that day foꝛth was Danyel had in great reputacion in the ſyght of the people. (And king Aſtiages was layed with his fathers, and Cirus of Perſya reygned in hys ſteade.)

❧ : The ſtoꝛye of Bel / and of the Dꝛagon/ whiche is the .xiiij. chapter of Daniel after the Latin.

A Daniel dyd eate at the kynges table, and was had in reuerence aboue al his frẽdes. There was at Babilõ an ymage, called Bel: ⁊ ther were ſpent vpon him euery day .xij. cakes. xl. ſhepe and ſyxe greate pottes of wyne. Hym dyd the kynge woꝛſhyp him ſelfe, and wente daylye to honour him: but Daniel woꝛſhipped his owne God. And the kynge ſayde vnto him: why doſt not thou woꝛſhyppe Bel? He anſwered ⁊ ſayde. * Becauſe I maye not woꝛſhyppe thynges that be made with handes, but the liuing God, which made heauen ⁊ earth, and hath power vpon all fleſhe. The kyng ſayde vnto hym: thinckeſt thou not, ẏ Bel is a lyuynge God? Oꝛ ſeyſt ẏ not howe much he eateth ⁊ dꝛyncketh euery daye? Daniel ſmyled, and ſayd: O kyng, diſceaue not thy ſelfe: foꝛ thys is but made of claye within, ⁊ of metall without, * neyther eateth he euer any thynge.

Then the kynge was wꝛoth, ⁊ called foꝛ hys pꝛeſtes, and ſayde vnto them: If ye tell me not who is thys, that eateth vp theſe expenſes, ye ſhall dye: but yf ye can certify me, that Bel eateth them, then Daniel ſhall dye, foꝛ he hath ſpoken blaſphemy againſt Bel. And Daniel ſaid vnto the kinge: let it ſo be accoꝛdynge as thou haſt ſaide. The Pꝛeſtes of Bel were .lxx. beſyde theyꝛ wyues ⁊ chyldꝛen. And the kynge wente wyth Danyel into the temple of Bel. So Bels pꝛeſtes ſayd: Lo/ we wyll go out / and ſet thou the meate there (O kinge) and poure in the wyne: then ſhut the doꝛe faſte/ and ſeale it wyth thyne owne ſygnet: and to moꝛow whẽ thou cõmeſt in / yf thou fyndeſt not that Bell hathe eaten vp all, we wyl ſuffre death: oꝛ els Danyell that hath lyed vpon vs. B The Pꝛeſtes thought them ſelues ſure ynough, foꝛ vnder the altare they had made a pꝛeuy entraũce/ and there wente they in euer/ ⁊ dyd eate vp what there was.

So when they were gone foꝛth, the kynge ſet meates befoꝛe Bel. Now Daniel had cõmaunded hys ſeruauntes to bꝛynge aſſhes, ⁊ theſe he ſyfted thoꝛowe out all the temple/ that the kynge myght ſe. Then wente they out, and ſparred the doꝛe, ſealyng it with the kynges ſignet/ ⁊ ſo departed. In the nyght came the pꝛeſtes with theyꝛ wyues and childꝛen (as they were wõte to do) ⁊ dyd eate ⁊ dꝛyncke vp al. In the moꝛnyng by tymes at the bꝛeake of the daye/ the kynge aroſe/ and C Daniel wyth hym. And the kynge ſayd: Daniel, are the ſeales whole yet? He anſwered:

yet (O kyng) they be whole. Now as ſoone as he had opened yͤ dore, the kyng loked vnto the aultare, and cryed with a loude voice: Greate art thou O Bel / and with the is no diſceate. Thẽ laughed Danyel, and helde yͤ kynge that he ſhulde not go in, and ſaid. Beholde the pauement, marcke well, whoſe foteſteppes are theſe. The king ſaide: I ſe the foteſteppes of men, wemen and chyldren.

D Therfore the kynge was angrye/and toke the preſtes, with their wyues and chyldren, and they ſhewed hym the preuy dores/ where they came in, & dyd eate vp ſuch thynges as were vpõ the aultare. For the which Jerem. li. g Esa. xlvi. a Ja. x. i. a. cauſe the kyng ſlewe thẽ, * & delyuered Bel into Daniels power/ which deſtroyed hym and hys temple.

And in that ſame place there was a great Dragon, which they of Babylon worſhypped. And the king ſaide vnto Daniel, ſaieſt thou/that thys is but a God of metal alſo? lo/he lyueth/he eateth and drincketh: ſo that thou canſt not ſaye/yͭ he is no lyuyng God/ therfore worſhyppe hym. Daniel ſayde vnto the kynge: I wyll worſhyppe the Lorde my Daniel. 6. c God, * he is yͤ true lyuinge god: as for this/ he is not the god of lyfe. But geue me leaue (O kynge) and I ſhall deſtroye thys Dra-

E gon without ſwearde or ſtaffe. The kynge ſaid, I geue yͤ leaue. Thẽ Daniel toke pytch/ fatte and hearye wol/and dyd ſethe thẽ together/and mad lompes therof: this he put in the Dragons mouth/and ſo the Dragon burſt in ſonder: and Daniel ſayd: lo there is he whome ye worſhypped. When they of Babylon herde yͭ/ they toke greate indignacyon/ & gathered them together agaynſt the kynge, ſayinge: The kynge is become a Iewe & he hath deſtroied Bel, he hath ſlaine the Dragon, and put the preſtes to deathe. So they came to the kyng, and ſayd: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wyll deſtroy the and thyne houſe. Now when the kynge ſawe, yͭ they ruſſhed in ſo ſore vpon hym/ and that Dani. vi. c neceſſite cõſtrained him, the delyuered Daniel vnto them: which caſt him into the lyõs denne, where he was ſixe daies. In yͤ denne there were ſeuen lyõs, & they had geuẽ them euery daye two bodyes & two ſhepe: which then were not geuen them, to the intẽt that they myght deuoure Daniel.

F There was in Iewry a Prophete called Abacuc, which had made potage, and broke bred in a depe platter, and was goyng into the felde, for to bryng it to the reapers. But the Angel of the Lorde ſayde vnto Abacuc: go cary the meate that thou haſt into Babylon, vnto Daniel, which is in the lyõs dẽne.

And Abacuc ſayde: Lorde/ I neuer ſawe Babylon: and as for the denne/ I knowe it not. * Then the Angel of the Lord toke him Eze. by the toppe/ and bare hym by the heare of the head. and (thorow a myghtye wynde) ſet him in Babylon vpon the denne. And Abacuc cried, ſaying: O Danyel * yͤ ſeruaunt of i. Re. God, haue, take yͤ breakfaſt/that God hath ſent the. And Daniel ſayde: O God / haſt yͭ thought vpon me? well / thou neuer fayleſt them that loue the. So Daniel aroſe, & dyd eate: and the Angel of the Lorde ſet Abacuc in his owne place agayne immediatly.

Upon the ſeuenth daye, the kinge wente G to bewepe Daniel: and when he came to the dẽne, he loked in: and beholde, Daniel ſat i the myddeſt of the Lyons. Then cryed the kyng with a loude voyce, ſaying: Great art thou, O Lord God of Danyel: * & he drewe hym out of the lyõs dẽne. † As for thoſe that were the cauſe of his deſtruccyõ, he did caſt thẽ into the denne, and they were deuoured in a momẽt before hys face. After thys, wrote the kynge vnto all people, kynredes and tonges/that dwelt in al countrees, ſayẽge: peace be multiplied with you. My commaũdemente, is in all the dominion of my realme: that men feare & ſtãd in awe of Daniels god, for he is yͤ lyuige god, which endureth euer: hys kyngdome abideth vncorrupt, & hys power is euerlaſtinge. It is he that cã deliuer & ſaue he doth wõders & marueilous workes i heauen & i earth, for he hath ſaued Daniel frõ the power of the Lyons.

The prayer of Manaſſes king of Iuda

in Babylon.

O Lorde almyghtye/ A god of our fathers Abrahã Iſaac & Iacob/& of the ryghtuous ſede of them: which haſte made heauen & earth, wyth al the ornament therof, which haſt ordened the ſee by the worde of thy commaundemẽt; which haſt ſhut vp the depe, and haſte ſealed it for thy fearfull and laudable name / which all men feare, and trẽble before the face of thy vertue, and for yͤ anger of thy threatenyng / the which is importable to ſinners. But the mercy of thy promes is greate and vnſearcheable, for thou arte the Lorde God moſte hyghe, aboue all the earth, lõg ſuffryng, and excedynge mercyful, and repentaũt for the malice of mẽ. Thou Lord after thy goodnes haſt promyſed repentaunce of the remiſſion of ſynnes: and thou that arte the God of the rightuous/ haſt not put repentaunce to the rightuous, Abrahã Iſaac/ and Iacob, vnto thẽ that haue ſynned againſt the: But because I haue ſinned aboue the nombre of the ſandes of the ſee, and that myne iniquytyes are multyplyed/ I am humbled wyth many bãdes of yron, ⁊ ther is in me no breathynge. ¶ After the deathe of Alexander the kyng of Macedonie, Antiochus taketh the kingdome. Many of the chyldrẽ of Iſrael make couenaũt with the Gentyles. Antiochus ſubdueth Egypt ⁊ Ieruſalẽ vnto his dominion, Ieruſalẽ being burnt, maketh lawes of her owne, and forbyddeth to kepe Goddes lawes. Antiochus ſetteth vp an Idol ouer the alter of god.

CAPI. I.

A AFter that Alexandre the ſonne of Philippe, kynge of Macedonia wẽt forth of the lãde of Cethim, ⁊ ſlew Darius king of the perſyans and Medes: It happened, ẏ he toke greate warres in hand, wanne very many ſtronge cities, and ſlewe many kynges of the earth: going thorow to the endes of the worlde/ and gettyng many ſpoyles of the people: In ſo muche that the worlde ſtode in greate awe of hym, * therefore was he prowde in his herte. Now whan he had gathered a myghtye ſtronge hooſt ⁊ ſubdued the lãdes ⁊ people with theyr princes, ſo ẏ they became tributaries vnto him, he fel ſyck. And whẽ he perceaued ẏ he muſt nedes dye/ he called for hys noble eſtates (whiche had bene brought vp with hym of chyldren) * ⁊ parted hys kyngdome among them/ whyle he was yet alyue. So Alexãder raygned .xii. yeare, and then dyed.

Dan. vii. a. and. viii. b.

After hys death fell the kyngdome vnto hys prynces, and they optained it euery one in hys rowme/ and cauſed them ſelues to be crowned as kynges: and ſo dyd theyr chyldrẽ after them many yeares, and much wickedneſſe increaſed ĩ the worlde. Out of theſe came ẏ vngracious rote, noble Antyochus the ſonne of Antiochus ẏ king (* which had bene a pledge at Rome) and he raygned in the .C.xxxvij. yeare of the empyre of the Grekes.

1.Mac. 6.a

B In thoſe dayes wẽre there out of Iſrael wycked men, which moued much people wt theyr councell, ſayẽge: * Let vs go ⁊ make a couenaunt with the Heathen/ ẏ are rounde aboute vs: for ſence we departed frõ them/ we haue had much ſorow. So thys deuyce pleaſed them well, and certayne of ẏ people toke vpon thẽ for to go vnto ẏ kyng, which gaue thẽ licence to do after the ordinaũce of ẏ Heathen. Then ſet they vp an open ſcole (at Ieruſalem) of the lawes of the Heathẽ/ ⁊ were nomore cyrcumciſed: but forſoke the holy Teſtamente, ⁊ ioyned them ſelues to ẏ Heathẽ*, ⁊ were cleane ſolde to do miſchefe.

3.Reg. xxi.b

So when Antiochus begãne to be myghtie in hys kyngdome, he wente about to optayne ẏ lande of Egypt alſo, that he myght haue the domynion of two realmes. * Upon this entred he into Egipt wt a ſtrõge hooſt/ wyth charettes, elephantes, horſmen and a greate nombre of ſhyppes/ and begãne to warre againſt Ptolomy the king of Egipte.

1.Mac. 3.a

But Ptolomy was afrayed of hym/ and fled: and many of his people were wounded to death. Thus Antiochus wanne many ſtronge cyties, and toke awaye great good out of the lande of Egypte.

C * And after that Antiochus had ſmytten Egipt, he turned againe in ẏ .C.xliij. yeare, and went towarde Iſrael, ⁊ came vp to Ieruſalẽ wt a myghty people: ⁊ entred proudly into the Sanctuary, and toke awaye the golden altare, the cãdelſtycke and al the ornamentes therof, the table of the ſhewbred/ the pouring veſſel, the chargers, the golden ſpones, the vale, ẏ crownes and golden apparell of the temple, ⁊ brake downe all. He toke alſo the ſyluer ⁊ golde, ẏ precious Iewels, ⁊ the ſecrete treaſures that he founde.

2.Mac. v.c

And when he had takẽ awaye all together/ caused a greate murther of men/and ſo fulfylled his malicious pryde, he departed into hys owne lande.

D Thus there aroſe greate heuyneſſe and miſery i al the lãde of Iſrael. Mac.vi.c. * The princes and the elders of the people mourned / the yong men and the maydens were defyled, ⁊ the fayre bewtye of wemen was chaunged: the brydegrome and the bryde toke them to mournynge: the land and thoſe that dwelt therin was moued: for all the houſe of Iacob was brought to confuſion.

2.Mac.v.a * After two yeres the kyng ſent hys chefe treaſurer vnto the cities of Iuda whiche came to Ieruſalem with a great multitude of people / ſpeakynge peaceable wordes vnto them but all was dyſceate: for whan they had geuen hym credence, he fel ſodenly vpon the cytye / and ſmote it ſore / and deſtroyed much people of Iſrael. 1.Mac.7.b * And when he had ſpoyled the cytye/he ſet fyre on it, caſtynge downe houſes and walles on euery ſyde. The wemen and their chyldren toke they captyue, and led awaye theyr catell. Then buylded they the cytie of Dauid with a greate and thycke wall, and wyth myghtie towres/ and made it a ſtronge holde for them. Beſyde all thys they ſet wycked people and vngodly mẽ to kepe it, ſtoared it wt weapẽs and vytailes: gathered the goodes of Ieruſalẽ, and layed them vp there: thus became it a theuyſh caſtell.

And thys was done to laye wayte for the people that wente into the Sanctuary, and for the cruell deſtruccyon of Iſraell. Thus they ſhed innocẽt bloude on euery ſyde of yͤ Sãctuary, and defyled it: In ſo much that the cytezyns were fayne to departe, and the cytie became an habytacyon of ſtraungers/ beig deſolate of her owne ſede, for her owne natyues were fayne to leaue her. Tobi.ii.a. Amo.viii.b * Her ſanctuary was clene waſted / her holy dayes were turned into mournynge, her Sabbathes were had in deriſyon, and her honoure brought to naught. Loke howe greate her glory was afore, ſo greate was her confuſyon, and her ioye turned into ſorowe.

E 2.Mac.6.a * Antiochus alſo the kynge ſent out a commiſſion vnto all hys kyngdome, that al the people ſhuld be one. Thẽ they left euery mã hys lawe, and al the Heathen agreed to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus: Yee many of the Iſraelites cõſented there vnto offerynge vnto Idols, ⁊ defilinge the Sabbath. So the kyng Antiochus ſent his meſſaungers with hys commiſſyon vnto Ieruſalem/ ⁊ to all the cytyes of Iuda: that they ſhuld folowe the lawes of the Heathen, and forbad ether burntofferynge/meatoffering or peaceoffering to be made in the temple of God, and that there ſhulde no Sabbath nor hye feaſt daye be kept: but cõmaunded, that the Sãctuary and the holy people of Iſraell ſhulde be defyled.

He commaunded alſo that there ſhulde be ſet vp other altares/temples ⁊ Idols: to offre vp ſwynes fleſh ⁊ other vnclene beaſtes: that men ſhulde leaue theyr chyldren vncircumcyſed, to defyle theyr ſoules with al maner of vnclẽneſſe and abhominaciõs, yͭ they myght ſo forget the lawe, ⁊ chaunge all the holy ordinaũces of God: ⁊ that whoſoeuer wolde not do accordynge to the cõmaundemẽt of kyng Antiochus, ſhuld ſuffre death. In lyke maner cõmaunded he thorowe out all hys realme/ and ſet rulers ouer the people/ for to compel them to do theſe thynges, commaundynge the cyties of Iuda to do ſacrifyce vnto Idols.

Then wente the people vnto the heathen by heapes, forſoke the lawe of the Lord, and cõmytted much euyl in the lande: yee ⁊ chaſed out yͤ ſecrete Iſraelites, which had hyd them ſelues in corners and preuy places. F The.xv.daye of the moneth Caſleu / in the Cxlv. yeare/ſet kynge Antiochus an abhominable Idol of deſolacyon vpõ the altare of God/ and they buylded altares thorowe out all the cityes of Iuda on euery ſyde, before the dores of the houſes, and in the ſtretes: where they brent incenſe/ and did ſacrifyce. Je. * And as for yͤ bokes of yͤ lawe of God, they brent them in the fyre, and rent them in peces. Whatſoeuer he was that had a boke of the Teſtamẽt of the Lord found by him, yee whoſoeuer endeuored hym ſelfe to kepe the lawe of the Lorde, the kinges commaundemẽt was, yͭ they ſhulde put him to death.

And thorowe his auctorite they executed theſe thinges euery moneth, vpõ the people of Iſrael that were founde in the cities.

G 2.Ma. * The fyue and twentye daye of the moneth what tyme as they did ſacrifice vpon yͤ altare (which ſtode i the ſtede of the altare of the Lorde) accordynge to the commaundement of kynge Antiochus / they put certayne wemen to deathe/ whiche had cauſed theyr chyldren to be circũcyſed: Not only yͭ/ but they hanged vp the children by the neckes thorowe out al theyr houſes, and ſlewe the circumciſers of them.

Yet were there many of the people of Iſrael, which determined in them ſelues, that they wolde not eate vncleane thynges: but choſe rather to ſuffre death/ thē to be defiled wͭ vncleane meates. So becauſe they wold not bꝛeake yͤ bleſſed lawe of God, they were cruelly ſlayne. And this great tyꝛanny increaſed very ſoꝛe vpon the people of Iſrael.

¶ The mournynge of Mathathias and hys ſonnes foꝛ the deſtruccyon of the holy cytie. They refuſe to do ſacryfyce vnto Idoles. The zele of Mathathias foꝛ the lawe of God. They are ſlayne and wyll not fyght agayne becauſe of the Saboth daye. Mathathias dyinge cōmaundeth his ſonnes to ſtyck by the woꝛde of God after the exāple of the fathers.

CAPI. II.

A IN thoſe dayes there dyd ſtande vp one Mathathias yͤ ſōne of Johan the ſonne of Symeon the pꝛeſte (out of the kynred of Joaris) from Jeruſalem, ⁊ dwelt vpon the mount of Modin/ ⁊ had .v. ſōnes: Jhon called Goddis: Simon, called Thaſi: Judas otherwyſe called Machabeꝰ: Eleazer, otherwyſe called Abaron: ⁊ Jonathas, whoſe ſyꝛname was Apphus. Theſe ſawe yͤ euel that was done amonge yͤ people of Juda ⁊ Jeruſalē. And Mathathias ſayd: Wo is me, alas that euer I was boꝛne, to ſe this miſery of my people, ⁊ the pyteous deſtruccyon of the holy cytie: ⁊ thus to ſyt ſo ſtyl, it beynge delyuered in to yͤ handes of the enemyes. *Her Sanctuary is come into the power of ſtraūgers: her temple is, as it were a man yͭ hathe loſt his good name. Her pꝛecyous oꝛnamentes are caryed awaye captiue. Her olde men are ſlayne in the ſtretes/ ⁊ her yong men are fallen thoꝛowe the ſwearde of the enemyes.

What people is it, that hath not ſome poſſeſſyon in her kyngdome? Oꝛ who hath not gotten ſome of her ſpoyles? All her gloꝛy is taken awaye. She was a fre womā, ⁊ nowe ſhe is become an handmayde. Beholde oure Sanctuary/ oure bewtye ⁊ honoure is waſted awaye/ ⁊ defiled by the Gentiles. what helpeth it vs thē to lyue? And Mathathias rente his clothes/ he and hys ſonnes/ ⁊ put ſackcloth vpon them/ ⁊ mourned very ſoꝛe.

B Then came the men thither whiche were ſent of kynge Antiochus, to compel ſuch as were fled into the cytie of Modyn, foꝛ to do ſacryfyce and to burne incence vnto Idols, and to foꝛſake the lawe of God. So/ many of the people of Iſrael conſented and enclyned vnto thē, but Mathathias and his ſonnes remayned ſtedfaſt. Then ſpake the commyſſyoners of kynge Antiochus/ and ſayde vnto Mathathias: Thou art a noble man, of hye reputacion and greate in thys cytie, hauynge fayꝛe chyldꝛen and bꝛethꝛen Come thou therfoꝛe fyꝛſt, and fulfyl the kynges cōmaundement/ lyke as all the Heathen haue done, yee and the men of Juda, and ſuch as remayne at Jeruſalem: ſo ſhalte thou and thy chyldꝛen be in yͤ kynges fauoure/ ⁊ enryched with golde, ſyluer ⁊ greate rewardes

Mathathias anſwered/ and ſpake with a loude voyce: Though all nacions obeye yͤ kyng Antiochus/ and fal awaye euery man from kepynge the lawe of theyꝛ fathers: though they cōſente to his commaūdementes, yet wyll I and my ſonnes ⁊ my bꝛethꝛē, not fall from the lawe of oure fathers. God foꝛbyd we ſhulde, that were not good foꝛ vs * that we ſhulde foꝛſake the lawe and oꝛdynaunces of God, and to agre vnto the commaūdement of kynge Antiochus. Therfoꝛe we wyl do no ſuche ſacrifyce/ nether bꝛeake the ſtatutes of our lawe, to go another way. And when he had ſpokē theſe woꝛdes/ there came one of the Jewes/ which openly in the ſyght of all, dyd ſacrifyce vnto the Idols vpon the aulter in the cytie of Modyn, acoꝛdynge to the kynges commaundement:

P.ou.iiii.c

C When Mathathias ſawe this, it greued hym at the herte, ſo that hys raynes ſhoke withall, ⁊ hys wꝛath kyndled foꝛ very zele of the lawe. With that/ he ſtarte vp, ⁊ kylled the Jewe beſyde the aulter: Yee and ſlewe yͤ kynges cōmyſſyoners/ that compelled hym to do ſacrifyce/ and deſtroyed the aulter at the ſame tyme: ſuche a zele had he vnto the lawe of God * lyke as Phinehes dyd vnto Zābꝛi the ſonne of Salomi. And Mathathias cryed with a loude voyce thoꝛowe the cytie, ſayeng: Whoſo is feruent in the lawe, and wyl kepe the couenaunt/ let him folowe me. * So he ⁊ his ſonnes fled into the mountaynes, ⁊ left all yͭ euer they had in the cytie. Many other godly men alſo departed into the wyldernesse with theyꝛ chyldꝛen, theyꝛ wyues ⁊ theyꝛ catel/ and remained there: foꝛ the tyꝛanny increaced ſoꝛe vpon them.

ii.Mac.v.c

D Nowe when the kynges ſeruauntes/ and the hooſt/ whiche was at Jeruſalem in the cytie of Dauid herde that certayne men had bꝛoken the kynges commaundemente/ and were gone theyꝛ waye to the wyldernelſe in to ſecrete places/ and that there were many departed after them: they folowed vpon thē, to fyght agaynſt them in the Sabboth day, and ſayde: Wyl ye yet rebele? Get you hence, and do the commaundement of kynge Antiochus/ and ye ſhall lyue. They anſwered, * We wyll not go foꝛth/ neyther wyl we do the kynges commaundement/ to defyle the Sabbath day. Then beganne they to fyght agaynſt them, neuertheleſſe they gaue them

none other anſwere, neyther caſte they one ſtone at them, nor made faſt theyr preuy places, but ſayde: We wyll dye all in our innocency, heauen ⁊ earth ſhal teſtyfie wᵗ vs, that ye put vs to death wrongeouſly. Thus they fought agaynſte thẽ vpon yͤ Sabboth/and ſlewe both men ⁊ catell, theyr wyues ⁊ theyr chyldren, to the nõbre of a thouſande people.

E When Mathathias ⁊ his frendes herde this, they mourned for them ryght ſore/and ſayde one to another: If ſo be that we all do as oure brethren haue done / ⁊ fyght not for our lyues ⁊ for our lawes agaynſt the Heathen: then ſhall they the ſoner rote vs out of the earth. So they concluded amonge thẽ ſelues at the ſame tyme, ſayenge: Whatſoeuer he be that commeth to make battayll with vs vpon the Sabbath daye/we wyll fyght agaynſt him, ⁊ not dye all, as oure brethren that were murthured ſo haynouſly. Upon this came the Synagoge of the Jewes vnto the ſtronge men of Iſraell, all ſuche as were feruent in the lawe. And all they that were fled for perſecucyon, came to helpe thẽ, and to ſtande by thẽ: In ſo much that they gathered an hooſt of men, ⁊ ſlewe the wycked doers in their gelouſy, and the vngodly men in theyr wrath. Some of the wycked fled vnto the Heathen/and eſcaped.

Thus Mathathias ⁊ his frendes went about, and deſtroyed the aulters/and circũcyſed the chyldren, that had not yet receaued circũciſyon: as many as they founde within the coſtes of Iſrael: and folowed myghtely vpõ the chyldren of pryde/and this acte proſpered in theyr hãdes: In ſo much, that they kepte the lawe agaynſte the power of the Gentyles ⁊ the kynges/and gaue not ouer theyr domynion vnto wycked doers.

F After this when the tyme drewe on faſte, that Mathathias ſhulde dye/he ſayde vnto his ſonnes: Nowe is pryde and perſecucyon increaſed/nowe is the tyme of deſtruccion ⁊ wrathfull dyſpleaſure: wherfore (O my ſonnes) be ye feruent in the lawe, and ieoparde youre lyues for the Teſtament of youre fathers: call to remembraunce what actes our fathers dyd in theyr tyme, ſo ſhal ye receaue greate honoure and an euerlaſtynge name. * Remembre Abrahã, was not he founde faythful in temtacion/and it was reckened vnto him for rightuouſnes? ⁊ Joſeph i tyme of his trouble kepte the cõmaundment and was made a Lorde of Egipt. ⁊ Phinehes our father was ſo feruent for yͤ honour of God, that he optayned the couenaunt of an euerlaſtynge preſthode. * Joſue for fulfyllinge yͤ worde of God, was made the captayne of Iſrael. ⁊ Caleb bare recorde before the cõgregacyon and receaued an heretage. * Dauid alſo in his mercyfull kyndneſſe / optayned the trone of an euerlaſtynge kyngdome. * Elias beyng gelous ⁊ feruẽt in the lawe, was taken vp into heauen. Hananias/Azarias ⁊ Myſael remayned ſtedfaſt in fayth, and were delyuered out of the fyre. In lyke maner * Daniel beinge vngyltye/was ſaued from the mouth of the Lyons.

G And thus ye maye conſydre thorow out all ages ſence yͤ worlde begãne/* that whoſoeuer put their truſt in God, were not ouercome * Feare not ye then yͤ wordes of an vngodly man, ⁊ for his glory is but donge and wormes: to day is he ſet vp, and to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earth/⁊ his memoryal is come to naught. Wherfore (O my ſonnes) take good hertes vnto you/and quyte youre ſelues lyke men in the lawe: for yf ye do the thynges that are commaunded you in the lawe of the Lorde youre God, ye ſhal optayne greate honoure therin.

And beholde/I knowe that your brother Symon is a man of wyſdome: ſe yͭ ye geue eare vnto hym alwaye / he ſhalbe a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus/he hathe euer bene myghtye ⁊ ſtronge from his youth vp, let him be your captayne/⁊ ordre the battayll of yͤ people: thus ſhal ye brynge vnto you al thoſe yͭ fauoure the lawe, and ſe that ye auenge the wrõge of your people, ⁊ recompence the Heathen agayne. ⁊ applye youre ſelues whole to the commaundement of the lawe. So he gaue them his bleſſynge, and was layed by his fathers: ⁊ died in the: C.⁊.xlvi. yeare at Modyn, where hys sõnes buryed him in hys fathers ſepulcre/and all Iſraell made greate lamentacyon for hym.

¶ Judas is made ruler ouer the Jewes. He kylleth Appollonius and Seron the Prince of Syria. The confydence of Judas towarde God. Judas determyneth to fyght agaynſt Lyſias, whom Antiochus had made captayne ouer his hoſt. The prayer of the aſſemblye.

CAPI. III.

A THEN ſtode vp Judas Machabeus in his fathers ſteade/⁊ all his brethren helped hym: and ſo dyd all they that helde wyth hys father / and fought wyth cherefulneſſe for Iſraell. So Judas gat hys people great honoure: He put on a breſt plate as a gyaunte, ⁊ arayed him ſelfe wyth hys harneſſe / and defended the hoſte with hys ſwerde. In his actes he was lyke a Lyon, ⁊ as a lyons whelpe roaringe at his praye. * He was an enemye to the wycked, ⁊ hunted thẽ out: * & brent vp those yͭ vexed his people: So that his enemyes fled for feare of hym, and all yͤ workers of vngodlynes were put to trouble: suche lucke & prosperyte was in his hãde. This greued dyuerse kynges, but Jacob was greatly reioysed thorow his actes, & he gat him selfe a great name for euer.

He wente thorow the cyties of Juda/destroyenge the vngodly out of thẽ, turnynge awaye the wrath from Israell/ and receauynge such as were oppressed: and the fame of him went vnto the vttermost parte of the earth. Then Appollonius (a prynce of Syria) gathered a myghtye greate hoost of the Heathẽ, & out of Samaria, to fight agaynst Israell, which when Judas perceaued/ he went forth to mete hym/ fought with hym, slewe him/and a great multitude with him, the remnaũt fled, & he toke theyr substaũce, Judas also toke Appolonius owne swerde, and fought with it all his lyfe longe.

B Now whẽ Seron (an other prynce of Syria) herde saye, yͭ Judas had gathered vnto hym the cõgregacyon & church of the faythful: he sayde: I wyl get me a name, & a prayse thorowe out yͤ realme: for I wyl go fyght with Judas, & them that are with hym/as many as haue despysed the kynges cõmaũdement. So he made hym ready/and there went with him a greate myghtye hoost of yͤ vngodly, to stande by him, and to be auẽged of the chyldren of Israell. And when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas wẽt forth agaynst them with a small company. And when hys people sawe such a great hoost before them, they sayde vnto Judas: Howe are we able (beinge so fewe) to fyght agaynst so great a multitude, and so strong, seinge we be so werey, and haue fasted all thys daye?

* But Judas sayde: It is a smal matter for many to be ouercomed wͭ fewe, yee there is no difference to the God of heauen, to delyuer by a great multitude, or by a smal cõpany: * for the victory of the battell stãdeth not in yͤ multitude of the host, but yͤ strẽgth commeth from heauen. Beholde, they come agaynst vs with a presumptuous & proude multytude, to destroye vs, oure wyues and our chyldren/and to robbe vs. But we wyll fyght for our lyues/ & for our lawes, and the Lorde hym selfe shal destroye thẽ before our face: therfore be not ye afrayed of them.

Par. 25.b

C As soone as he had spoken these wordes, he leapte sodenly vpon them. Thus was Seron smytten/and his hoost put to flight, and Judas folowed vpõ them beyonde Bethoron vnto the playne felde: where there were slayne eyght hundreth men of them, and the resydue fled into the lande of the Phylystynes. Then al the Heathẽ on euery syde were afrayed of Judas and hys brethren: so that the rumoure of hym came vnto the kynges eares, for all the Gentyles coulde not tell of the warres of Judas.

D So when kynge Antiochus hearde these tidynges, he was angry in his mynde: wherfore he sente forth/and gathered an hoost of his whole realme/very strõge armyes: and opened hys treasury/and gaue hys hoost a yeares wages in hande/ commaundynge them to be ready at all tymes.

Neuerthelesse when he sawe/that there was not moneye ynoughe in his treasuries, and that thorowe the dyscorde and persecucyon, whiche he made in the lande (to put downe the lawes that had bene of olde tymes) hys customes and trybutes of the lãde were mynyshed: he feared that he was not able for to beare the costes and charges any longer/nor to haue suche gyftes/to geue so lyberally, as he dyd afore, more then yͤ kynges that were before hym.

Wherfore, he was heuy in his mynde, and thought * to go in to Persides/ for to take trybutes of the lande/and so to gather moche money. So he lefte Lysyas (a noble man of the kynges bloude) to ouerse the kynges busynesses/ from the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egypte: & to kepe well his sonne Antiochus/ tyll he came agayne.

1.Mac.6.a.

E Morouer/he gaue him half of his hoost, and Elephantes/and commytted vnto him euery thynge of hys mynde/ concernynge those which dwelt in Juda and Jerusalem, that he shulde sende out an army agaynste them/to destroye & to rote out the power of Israell and the remnaunte of Jerusalem: to put out theyr memoriall from that place, to set straungers for to inhabyte all theyr quarters/and to parte theyr lande amonge them: Thus the kynge toke the other parte of the hoost/& departed frõ Antioch (a cytie of his reame) ouer the water of Euphrates, in the hundreth and .xl.vij. yeare, and wente thorowe the hye countries.

Joseph. ca. 11. antiq.

* And Lysyas chose vnto hym Ptolomy the sonne of Doriminus, Nicanor, and Gorgias myghty men, and the kynges frendes. These he sent with .xl. thousande fote men and .vii. thousand horsmẽ, for to go in to the lãde of Juda & to destroye it/as the kynge commaunded. So they wẽte forth wyth all their power/and came to Emmaus into the playne felde. When the marchauntes heard the rumoure of them / they and theyr ſeruauntes toke very muche ſyluer and golde, for to bye the chyldren of Iſrael to be theyr bondemen. There came vnto them alſo yet mo men of warre on euery ſyde/out of Syria and from the Paleſtynes.

F Nowe when Iudas ⁊ his brethren ſawe that trouble increaſed, ⁊ that the hoſt drewe ney vnto theyr borders: cōſidring ẏ kynges wordes which he cōmaunded vnto the people: namely, that they ſhulde vtterly waſte and deſtroye thē: They ſayde one to another: Let vs redreſſe the decaye of oure people, let vs fyght for oure folke and for our Sanctuarye. Then the congregacyon were ſoone ready gathered to fyght, to praye ⁊ to make ſupplicacyon vnto God for mercy ⁊ grace. 1.Mach.1.d

* As for Ieruſalem, it laye voyde, ⁊ was as it had bene a wyldernesse. There went no man in nor out at it, ⁊ the Sanctuary was troden downe. The aleauntes kepte ẏ caſtel, there was the habytacyon of the Heathen. The myrth of Iacob was takē away, ẏ pype and the harpe was gone frō amonge them.

The Iſraelytes gathered thē together, 1.Reg.7.b. and came to Maſpha before Ieruſalem: for in Maſpha was the place * where they prayed afore tyme in Iſrael. So they faſted that daye, and put ſackclothes vpon them, caſt aſſhes vpon theyr heades / rente theyr clothes / ⁊ layde forth the bokes of the lawe (wherout the Heathen ſought the lykeneſſe of theyr ymages) and brought the Preſtes ornamentes, the fyrſtlinges and the tythes. Num.6.a They ſet there alſo the * abſteyners (whiche had fulfylled theyr dayes) before God / and cryed with a loude voyce towarde heauen, ſayinge: What ſhall we do with theſe and G whyther ſhall we cary them awaye? For thy Sanctuary is troden downe and defyled. thy preſtes are come to heuyneſſe and dyſhonour: and beholde / the Heathen are come together for to deſtroye vs. Thou knoweſt what thynges they ymagine agaynſte vs. Howe maye we ſtande before them / except thou (O God) be oure helpe?

Exodi.12.b They blewe out the trōpettes alſo with a loude voyce. Thē Iudas ordened * captaynes ouer the people: ouer thouſandes / ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten. But as for ſuche as buylded thē houſes, maryed wyues / planted them vyneyardes, ⁊ thoſe that were fearfull he: cōmaūded thē euery Deut.20.b. Iudi.7.a. mā to go home agayne, accordynge * to the lawe. So the hooſt remoued / and pytched vpon the ſouthſyde of Emmaus.

And Iudas ſayde: Arme your ſelues: be ſtronge (O my chyldren) make you ready agaynſt to morowe in the mornynge / that ye maye fyght with theſe people / which are agreed together to deſtroye vs and oure Sanctuary. Better is it for vs to dye in battayl / than to ſe our people and our ſanctuary in ſuche a myſerable caſe. * Neuertheleſſe / as thy wyll is in heauen / ſo be it. Math. Luke.

¶ Iudas goeth agaynſt Gorgias which lieth in wayte. He putteth Gorgias and his hooſt to flyght. Lyſias inuadeth Iewry, but Iudas dryueth hym out. Iudas purifyeth the temple and dedycateth the aultare.

CAPI. IIII.

A THEN toke Gorgias fyue thouſande men of fote / and a thouſande of the beſt horſmen: ⁊ remoued by nyght to come nye where the Iewes hooſt laye / and ſo to ſlaye them ſodenly. Nowe the men that kepte the caſtell / were the conueyers of thē. Then aroſe Iudas to ſmyte the chefe and principal of the kynges hooſt at Emmaus, for the army was not yet come together. In the meane ſeaſon came Gorgias by nyght in to Iudas tentes: and when he founde no man there / he ſought them in the mountaynes / and thought they had bene fled awaye because of hym. But when it was daye, Iudas ſhewed hym ſelfe in the felde with thre thouſande men onely, which had nether harneſſe nor ſwardes to theyr myndes.

But on the other ſyde, they ſawe that the Heathen were myghtye and well harneſſed, and theyr horſmē aboute them / and all theſe well experte in feates of warre. Then ſayde Iudas to the mē that were with hym: Feare not ye the multitude of them / be not afrayed of theyr vyolente cummynge: remēbre, howe oure fathers were delyuered * in the reed ſee, when Pharao folowed vpon them with a greate hooſt.

Euen ſo let vs alſo crye nowe towarde heauen: ⁊ the Lorde ſhall haue mercy vpon vs, and remembre the couenaunt of our fathers, yee ⁊ deſtroye this hooſt before oure face this daye: And all the Heathen ſhall knowe / that it is God hym ſelfe / whiche delyuereth and ſaueth Iſraell.

Then the Heathen left vp theyr eyes: and B when they ſawe that they were commynge agaynſt them, they went out of theyr tentes vnto the battayll: and they that were with Iudas, blewe vp the trōpettes. * So they buckled together, and the Heathen were diſcomfyted and fled ouer the playne felde: but the hyndmoſt of them were ſlayne. For they folowed vpō them vnto Aſſaremoth, and in to the feldes of Jdumea towarde Azot and Jamnia: ſo that there were ſlayne of them vpon a thre thouſande men. So Judas turned agayne wyth hys hoſte, and ſayde vnto the people: Be not gredy of the ſpoyles/ we haue yet a batayle to fyght: for Gorgias and his hoſte are here by vs in the mountaynes/ but ſtande ye faſt agaynſt our enemyes/ and ouercome them: then may ye ſafely take the ſpoyles.

C As Judas was ſpeakynge theſe wordes, beholde there appeared one parte of thē vpō the mounte. But whan Gorgyas ſawe that they of hys partye were fled/ and the tentes brent vp (for by the ſmoke they myght vnderſtande what was done) they perceyuing this were very ſore afrayed: and when they ſawe alſo that Judas and his hoſt were in the feld redy to ſtrike battaile, they fled euerichone in to the lande of the Heathen.

So Judas turned agayne to ſpoyle the tentes/ where they gat muche golde and ſyluer, precious ſtones, purple ⁊ greate ryches. Thus they went home/ and ſonge a Pſalme of thankeſgeuynge, and prayſed God in heauen: *for he is gracyous, ⁊ hys mercy endureth for euer: And ſo Jſrael had a great victory in that daye. Pſa.cvii.a [illegible].a

Nowe al the Heathen that eſcaped/ came and tolde Lyſias euery thynge as it happened. Wherfore Liſias was ſore afrayed, and greued in hys minde/ becauſe Jſrael had not gottē ſuch miſfortune as he wold they ſhuld/ neyther as the kynge cōmaūded. The nexte yeare folowynge, gathered Lyſias thre ſcore thouſande choſen mē of fote/ ⁊ fyue thouſāde horſmen, to fyght agaynſt them.

D So they came into Jewry, and pytched their tētes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynſt them with ten thouſande men. And whē he ſawe ſo great ⁊ myghtye an hoſte/ he made hys prayer and ſayde: Bleſſed be thou (O ſauiour of Jſraell) *whyche dyddeſt deſtroy the violent power of the gyaunt, in the hande of thy ſeruaunte Dauyd, *and gaueſt the hoſte of the Heythen into the hande of Jonathas (the ſonne of Saul) and of hys weapen bearer. 1.Reg.17.g 1.Reg.14.b

Put thys hoſte nowe into the hande of thy people of Jſraell/ and let them be confounded in theyr multytude and horſmen. Make them afrayed, ⁊ diſcomforte the boldnes of their ſtrēgth/ that they maye be moued thorow their deſtruccion. Caſt them downe thorow the ſwearde of thy louers/ then ſhall all they that knowe thy name/ prayſe the wyth thankeſgeuyng.

So they ſtroke the battayl, and their wer ſlayne of Lyſias hoſte, fyue thouſande men. Then Lyſias ſeynge the diſcomfitynge of hys men/ and the manlyneſſe of the Jewes/ howe they were ready, either to lyue or to dye lyke men: He went vnto Antyoche/ and choſe out men of warre: that whan they were gathered together, they myght come agayne in to Jewry. Then ſayde Judas and his brethren: beholde, our enemyes are diſcomfited: Let vs nowe go vp/ to clenſe, and to repayre the Sanctuary.

E *Upon thys/ all the hoſte gathered them together/ and wente vp into mounte Syon. Nowe whan they ſawe the Sācturary layed waſte, yͤ aulter defyled/ the dores brēt vp, the ſhrubbes growynge in the courtes, lyke as in a wod or vpon mountaynes, yee ⁊ yͤ the preſtes Celles were broken downe: They rente their clothes, made great lamentacion, caſte aſhes vpon their heades, fell downe flat to the grounde/ made a greate noyſe wyth the trompettes, ⁊ cryed towarde heauen: ii.Mac.x.a

*Then Judas appoynted certayne men to fyght agaynſt thoſe which were in the caſtel tyll they had clenſed the Sanctuary. So he choſe preſtes yͤ were vndefyled, ſuche as had pleaſure in the lawe of God: and they clenſed the Sanctuary, and bare oute the defyled ſtones into an vncleane place. And for ſo muche as the aulter of burntofferinges was vnhalowed, he toke aduyſemente, what he myght do wall: ſo he thought it was beſte to deſtroy it (leaſt it ſhuld happen to do thē any ſhame) for the Heythen had defyled it, ⁊ therfore they brake it downe. As for the ſtones/ they layed them vp vpon the mountayne by the houſe in a cōuenient place: tyl there came a Prophete, to ſhewe, what ſhulde be done wyth them.

F *So they toke whole ſtones accordige to yͤ lawe, ⁊ buylded a newe aulter ſuche one as was before, ⁊ made vp yͤ Sanctuary within and without, and halowed the houſe and the courtes. They made newe ornamentes, and brought the candelſtycke, the aulter of incenſe, and the table in to the temple. The incenſe layed they vpon the aulter/ and lyghted the lampes whiche were vpon the candelſtycke/ yͤ they myght burne in the temple. They ſet the ſhewbred vpon the table, and hanged vp the vayle, and ſet vp the temple, as it was afore. *And vpon the .xxv. daye of the .ix. moneth, whiche is called the moneth of Caſleu, in the .Cxlviij. yere: they roſe vp by tymes in the mornynge for to do ſacryfyce (accordyng to the lawe) vpon the newe burnte offerynge Exod.xx.d Deut.27.a Joſue.8.g ii.Mac.x.a aulter that they had made: after the tyme & ſeaſon that the Heythen had defyled it. The ſame day was it ſet vp agayne, with ſonges pypes/harpes & cymbales.

G And all the people fell vpon their faces/ worſhyppyng & thanckyng the God of heauen, whiche had geuen them the vyctorye.* 2.Par.7.b So they kepte the dedicacion of the aulter. viii.dayes, offrynge burnt ſacrifyces & thākofferynges with gladneſſe.. They deckte the temple alſo with crownes & ſhyldes of gold and halowed the portes & celles, & hāged dores vpō thē. Thꝰ there was very great gladnes amonge the people, because the blaſphemy of the Heythen was put away. So Judas & his brethren with the whole congregacion of Iſrael/ordeyned, ẏ the tyme of the dedicacions Johan.x.c of the aulter ſhulde be kept in his ſeaſon from yeare to yeare / by the ſpace of. viii.dayes, from the.xxv.day of the moneth Caſleu: wyth myrth and gladnes.

And at ẏ ſame tyme buylded they vp the mount Syon with hye walles and ſtronge towres roūde aboute: leſt the Gentiles ſhuld come and treade it downe/as they dyd afore Therfore Judas ſet men of warre in it, to kepe it: & made it ſtronge/for to defende* 1.Macha. 6.b.c Bethſura: that the people myght haue refuge agaynſt the Edomytes.

¶ Judas vanquyſheth the Heathen that go aboute to deſtroye Iſrael and is holpen of his brethren Simon and Jonathas. He ouerthroweth the cytie of Ephron because they denyed hym paſſage thorowe it.

CAPI. V.

A Joſep.cap. xii.lib.xii. IT happened alſo that whan the Heythen rounde about herd, howe that the aulter & the Sāctuary were ſet vp ī their olde eſtate it diſpleaſed them very ſore, wherefore they thought to deſtroy ẏ generacion of Jacob ẏ was among thē: In ſo moche ẏ they begāne to ſley and to perſecute certayne of the people Gene.xxv.c & xxxvi.a ii.Mac.x.c *Then Judas fought agaynſte the chyldren of Eſau in Idumia, and agaynſt thoſe whiche were at Arabathane (for they dwelte rounde aboute the Iſraelites) where he ſlewe and ſpoyled a greate multitude of them. He thought alſo vpon the malyce and vnfaythfulnes of the chyldren of Bean / howe they were a ſnare & ſtoppe vnto the people, & how they layed wayte for them in the hye waye: wherfore he ſhut them vp into towres / and came vnto them, deſtroyed them vtterly, and brent vp theyr towres / wyth all that were in them.

Afterwarde wente he agaynſte the chyldren of Ammon/wherof he founde a myghtye power & a greate multitude of people / with Timothy their captayne. So he ſtroke many battayles with them/whyche were deſtroyed before him. And when he had ſlayne them, he wanne Gazer the cytie / wyth the townes belongynge therto, and ſo turned agayne into Jewry. The Heathen alſo in Galaad gathered thē together agaynſt the Iſraelites that were in their quarters/ to ſleye thē: but they fled to the Caſtell of Dathemā/ B and ſente letters vnto Judas & his brethren, ſayinge: The Heythen are gathered agaynſt vs on euery ſyde, to deſtroye vs, & nowe they make them redy for to come/& lay ſege to the caſtell, wherunto we are fled, and Timothy is the captayne of their Hoſte: come therfore/ and delyuer vs out of their handes: for there is a greate multitude of vs ſlayne al readye. Yee & our brethren ẏ were at Tubin, are ſlayne & deſtroyed (wel nye a thouſāde mē) & their wyues, theyr chyldren & theyr goodes haue the enemyes led away captiue.

Whyle theſe letters were yet a readynge, beholde, there came other meſſaungers from Galile, with rente clothes: whiche tolde euen the ſame tydynges / and ſayde / that they of Ptolomais/of Tyrus and of Sydon were gathered agaynſt them, and that all Galilee was fylled with enemyes to deſtroye Iſraell * 1.Ma When Judas & the people herde this/they came together (a great congregacion) to deuyſe, what they myght do for theyr brethren/ that were in trouble & beſeged of theyr enemyes. And Judas ſayd vnto Simō his brother: choſe the out certayne men, and go deliuer thy brethrē in Galile: As for me and my brother Jonathas/ we wyll go into Galaadithim. So he left Joſephus the ſonne of Zachary/and Azarias to be Captaynes of the people, and to kepe the remnaunt of the Hoſt in Jewry, and commaunded them/ſayinge: Take the ouerſyght of thys people/ and ſe ẏ ye make no warre agaynſt the Heythen/ vntyll the tyme that we come agayne. 1.Ma And vnto Simon he gaue thre thouſande men, for to go into Galile/ but Judas hym ſelfe had eyght thouſande in Galaadithim.

C Then wente Symeon into Galile/and ſtroke dyuers batayles with ẏ Heythen: whō he diſcomfyted, and folowed vpō them vnto ẏ porte of Ptolomais, And there were ſlayne of the Heythen almoſte thre thouſande men. So he toke the ſpoyles of them / and caryed awaye the Iſraelites / that were in Galilee and Arbatis/wyth theyr wyues/ theyr chyldren and all that they had / & brought them into Jewry wyth greate gladneſſe. Judas Machabeus alſo & his brother Jonathas / went ouer Jordane, and trauayled.iii.dayes iourney in the wyldernesse: where the Nebutheers met them, and receiued them louingly/and tolde them euery thyng that had happened vnto theyr brethren in Galaadithim, and how that many of them were beſeged in Barasa/Boſor, Alimis Caſphor, Mageth ⁊ Carnaim (all theſe are ſtronge walled and myghtye greate cyties) and that they were kepte in other cities of Galaad alſo: and tomorow they are apoynted to bryng their hoſt vnto theſe cities, to take them/and to winne them in one daye.

So Judas and his hoſte turned in al the haſte in the wyldernesse towarde Boſor, and wanne the cytie/ſlewe all the males with the ſwearde, toke all theyr goodes, and ſet fyre vpon the cytie. And in the nyght they toke their iourneye from thence, and came to the caſtell: And by tymes in the mornynge when they loked vp/beholde/there was an innumerable people bearynge ladders and other inſtrumētes of warre/to take the caſtell and to ouercome them.

When Judas ſawe that the battayll beganne, and that the noyſe therof wente vp ⁊ range in to the heauen, and that there was ſo greate a crye in the cytie: He ſayd vnto his hoſt fyght this daye for youre brethren. And ſo came behynde their enemyes in thre companyes, and blewe vp the trompettes/and cryed in their prayer to God.

But as ſoone as Timothes hoſte perceyued yͭ Machabeus was there, they fled from hym, and the other ſlewe them downe ryght ſore: ſo that there were kylled of thē the ſame daye/almoſt eyght thouſande men. Then departed Judas vnto Maſpha, layed ſege vnto it, and wanne it, ſlewe all the males in it, ſpoyled it/and ſet fyre vpon it. From thence went he and toke Caſbon, Mageth, Boſor/and the other cyties in Galaad.

* After this gathered Timothy another Hoſte, whiche pitched their tentes before Raphon beyonde the water. Judas alſo ſent to ſpye the Hoſte, ⁊ they brought hym worde agayne, ſaying: All the Heythen that be roūde aboute vs are gathered vnto hym/and the Hoſte is very greate: Yee they haue hyred the Arabians to helpe them, and haue pytched their tentes beyonde the water, and are ready to come ⁊ fyght agaynſt the. So Judas wēt on to mete them.

And Timothy ſayde vnto the captaynes of his hoſte: when Judas ⁊ hys hooſte come nye the ryuer: yf he go ouer fyrſt, we ſhall not be able to withſtande him: for whyche he wyl be to ſtronge for vs. But yf he dare not come ouer/ſo that he pytch his tent beſyde the water: then wyl we go ouer/for we ſhalbe ſtrōg ynough agaynſt him. Nowe as ſoone as Judas came to yͤ ryuer, he appoynted certayne ſcrybes of the people, ⁊ commaunded them, ſayinge: ſe that ye leaue none behynde vpon this ſyde of the ryuer, but let euery mā come to the battayle. So he wente firſt ouer vnto them ⁊ his people after hym.

And all the Heythen were dyſcomfyted before him, and let their weapens fall, ⁊ rāne into the tēple that was at Carnaim. Whiche cytie Judas wanne, and brente the temple wyth all that were in it: So was Carnaim ſubdued, and myght not withſtāde Judas. Then Judas gathered all the Iſraelitꝭ that were in Galaadithim/from the leſt vnto the moſte, wyth theyr wyues and theyr chyldren (a very great hooſt) for to come into the land of Iſrael.

* So they came vnto Ephrō, which was a myghtye, great and ſtronge cytie, and laye in their waye. For they coulde not go by it, nether of the ryght hande nor of the lefte, but muſt go thorowe it. Neuertheles they yͭ were in yͤ cytie, wolde not let them go thorowe, but walled vp the portes wͭ ſtones. And Judas ſent vnto thē wͭ peaceable wordes, ſayinge: Let vs paſſe thorow your lande, yͭ we may go into our owne countre: there ſhal no body do you harme, we wyl but onely go thorowe on fote. But they wolde not let them in.

Wherfore Judas commaunded a proclamacyon to be made thorowe out the Hoſte, that euery man ſhulde kepe his order: and ſo they dyd there beſt lyke valeaunt men.

And Judas beſeged yͤ cytie all that daye and all that nyght, ⁊ ſo wanne it: where they ſlewe as many as were males, and deſtroyed the citie, and ſpoyled it, and wente thorowe all the cytie ouer them yͭ were ſlayne. Then went they ouer Jordane into the plaine feld before Betſan. And Judas helped thoſe forward yͭ came behinde, ⁊ gaue the people good exhortacion al the way thorow, tyl they were come into the lande of Juda. Thus they wēt vp vnto the mount Syon, where they offred with myrth ⁊ thākeſgeuynge: becauſe there were none of them ſlayne, but came home agayne peaceably. 2.Par.19.a

Nowe what tyme as Judas ⁊ Jonathas were in the lande of Galaad, and Symon their brother in Galilee before Ptolomays: Then Joſephus the ſōne of Zachary and Azaryas the captaynes, hearing of the actes that were done and of the battales that were ſtroken, ſayde: Let vs get vs a name alſo/and go fyght agaynſte the Heathen that are rounde aboute vs.

So they gaue theyr hoſte a commaundement/ F and wente towarde Iamnya. Then came Gorgyas ⁊ his men out of the cytie, to fyght agaynſt them: Ioſephus alſo ⁊ Azary as were chaſed vnto yͤ borders of Iewrye, ⁊ there were ſlayne that daye of the people of Iſrael.ii.M.men: ſo that there was a great 1.Mac.v.b miſery amonge yͤ people, + ⁊ all becauſe they were not obedient vnto Iudas and his brethren, but thought they ſhulde quyte thē ſelues manfully. Neuertheles they came not of the ſede of theſe men, by whom Iſraell was helped. But the men that were with Iudas, were greatly commended in the ſyght of all Iſraell and all Heythen, where ſo euer theyr name was herd vpō, ⁊ the people came vnto them, byddyng them welcome.

After this wente Iudas forth wyth hys brethren, and fought agaynſt the chyldren of Eſau, in the lande yͭ lyeth towarde the ſouth where he wanne the cytie of Hebron and the townes that lye beſyde it: ⁊ as for the walles and towres rounde aboute it, he brente them vp. Then remoued he to go into the lāde of the Philiſtines, and wente thorowe Samaria. At the ſame tyme were there many preſtes ſlayne in the battayle, whiche wylfully and without aduyſemente wente out for to fyght to get thē honoure. And when Iudas came to Azot in yͤ Philiſtines lād, Deute.vii.a + he brake downe their aulters/ brente the ymages of their Idols, ſpoyled the cities, ⁊ came again in to the lande of Iuda.

¶ Antiochus wyllyng to take the cytie of Elymas for a pray is dryuen away of the Cytezens, he falleth into ſyckneſſe and dyeth. His ſonne Antiochus is made kynge. The beſegynge of the towre of Syon. Eupator cōmeth into Iewrye with a great armye. The boldnes of Eleazar.

CAPI. VI.

A NOwe when kyng Antiochus trauayled thorow the hye countrees, he herde yͭ Elymas Joseph.ca.xiii.li.xii antiq. in Perſia was a noble ⁊ plenteous cytie in ſyluer ⁊ golde, ⁊ that there was in it a very riche tēple: where as were clothes, cote armours ⁊ ſhyldes of golde, whiche Alexander the ſonne of Philippe kyng of Macedonia (that raygned fyrſt in Greke londe) had lefte behynde hym. Wherfore he wente aboute to take the cytie ⁊ to ſpoyle it, but he was not able: for the cityſens were warned of it, ⁊ fought wͭ him. And ſo he fled ⁊ departed with greate heuyneſſe, and came agayne into Babylon. i.Macha.iii.c.i.iiii Moreouer there came one whyche brought hym tydynges in Perſyde, + that his hooſtes whiche were in the lande of Iuda/ were dryuen away, and how that Lyſias wente forth fyrſt wyth a great power, and was dryuen away of the Iewes: howe yͭ they had wōne the victory, ⁊ gotten great goodes out of the hoſtes yͭ peryſhed: howe they had broken downe the abhomynacion, + whiche he ſet vp vpon the altare at Ieruſalem, and fenced the Sāctuary wͭ the hye walles, lyke as it was afore: yee and Bethſura his cytie alſo.

B So it chaunced, that when the kyng had herde theſe wordes, he was afrayed and greued very ſore. Wherfore he layed him downe vpon his bed, and fell ſycke for very ſorowe: ⁊ al becauſe it had not happened as he had deuyſed. And there contynued he longe/ for his grefe was euermore and more/ ſo that he ſaw he muſt nedes dye. Therfore he ſent for hys frendes, ⁊ ſayde vnto them: the ſlepe is gone fro myne eyes, for the very ſorowe and vexacion of herte that I haue. For when I cōſidre in my mynde the greate aduerſite that I am come vnto, ⁊ the floudes of heuyneſſe whiche I am come in, where as afore tyme I was ſo mery, and ſo greatly ſet by (by reaſon of my power) Agayne conſyderyng the euyl that I haue done at Ieruſalem, from whence I toke all the ryches of golde ⁊ ſyluer that were in it/ and ſent to fetche away the inhabytoures of Iewry without any reaſon why: I knowe that theſe troubles are come vpon me for the ſame cauſe. And beholde/ I muſt dye wyth great ſorowe in a ſtraūge lande. Then called he for one Philippe a frende of his, whom he made ruler of all his realme/ ⁊ gaue hym the crowne/ his roabe ⁊ his ryng: yͭ he ſhuld take his ſōne Antiochus vnto hym/ ⁊ brynge hym vp/ tyll he myght raygne him ſelfe. + So the kyng Antiochus dyed there, in the.cxlix.yere. C When Lyſias knewe that the kynge was deed, he ordayned Antiochus his ſone (+ whō he had brought vp) to raygne in hys fathers ſteade, ⁊ called hym Eupator. Nowe they that were in the caſtell (at Ieruſalem) kepte in the Iewes rounde aboute the Sanctuary ⁊ ſought euer ſtyll to do them harme, for the ſtrengthenynge of the Heythen.

Wherfore Iudas thought to deſtroye thē and called all the people together/ that they myght laye ſege vnto thē. So they came together in the.Cl.yeare, ⁊ beſeged them/ layinge forth theyr ordinaunce and inſtrumētes of warre. Then certaine of them that were beſeged/ wente forth (vnto whom ſome vngodly men of Iſrael ioyned them ſelues alſo) and went vnto the kynge, ſayinge: Howe longe wyll it be/ or thou punyſh and auenge oure brethren? We haue euer bene mynded to do thy father ſeruyce/to walke in his ſtatutes/ and to obeye his commaundementes: Therfore oure people fell from vs/ ⁊ whereſoeuer they founde any of vs/they ſlewe them:(and ſpoyled our inherytaunce)and they haue not onely medled wyth vs/but with all our cõtrees:and beholde/thys daye are they beſegyng the caſtel at Jeruſalem,* ⁊ haue made vp the ſtrong holde in Bethſura: And if thou doeſt not preuente them ryght ſone/they wyl do more then theſe/⁊ thou ſhalte not be able to ouercome them.

D *When yͤ kynge herde thys/ he was very angrye, and called all hys frendes, the Captaynes of hys fote men, and of all hys horſemen together. He hyred men of warre alſo out of other realmes and out of the Jles of yͤ ſee, whiche came vnto hym. And the nõbre of hys hoſte was an hundreth thouſande fote men, ⁊ twẽty thouſande horſmen, and .xxxij. Elephãtes well exerciſed to battayle. Theſe came thorowe Idumea vnto Bethſura, and beſeged it a longe ſeaſon, and made dyuerſe inſtrumẽtes of warre agaynſte it. But yͤ Jewes came out and brent thẽ, and fought lyke men. Then departed Judas frõ the caſtel at Jeruſalẽ, ⁊ remoued the hoſt toward Bethzacaran ouer agaynſt the kynges army.

So the kynge aroſe before the daye, and E brought the power of hys hoſte into the way to Bethzacaran / where the hooſtes made thẽ redy to yͤ battayl, blowyng the trõpettes. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fight, they ſhewed them the ſappe of reed grapes ⁊ molberies. And deuyded the Elephãtes among the hoſt: ſo yͤ by euery Elephant there ſtode a .M. men well harneſſed, ⁊ helmettes of ſtele vpon theyr heads: Ye vnto euery one of yͤ Elephãtes alſo, were ordained .v.C. horſmen of the beſt, which wayted of the Elephãt goyng where ſo euer he wente, and departed not from him. Euery Elephant was couered with a ſtrong tower of wod, wherupon were .xxxij. valeaunt men with weapens to fyght, and within it was a man of Jnde to rule the beeſt.

As for the remnaunt of the horſmen/he ſet them vpon both the ſides in two partes with trompettes, to prouoke the hoſte, and to ſtere vp ſuche as were ſlow in the armye. And whẽ the ſunne ſhone vpon theyr ſhyldes of golde and ſtele, the mountaynes gliſtred agayne at them, and were as bryght as the creſſettes of fyre. The kynges hoſt alſo was deuided, one parte vpon the hye Mountaynes, the other lowe beneth: ſo they went on, takynge good hede/and kepynge theyr ordre. And all they that dwelt in the lande/ were afrayed at the noyſe of theyr hooſt, when the multitude wẽt forth, ⁊ when the weapens ſmote together / for the hooſt was both great and myghty. Judas alſo ⁊ his hooſt entred into the battayle, ⁊ ſlewe .vj.C. men of the kinges army. Nowe when Eleaſar yͤ ſonne of Saura dyd ſe one of yͤ Elephantes deckt wͭ the kynges badge/⁊ was a more godly beeſt then the other: he thought yͤ kynge ſhuld be vpon him ⁊ ieoparde him ſelf to deliuer his people, and to get hym a perpetuall name.

F Wherfore he ranne wyth a corage vnto the Elephãte in yͤ myddeſt of the hooſt, ſlaytyng them downe of bothe the ſydes/ ⁊ ſlewe many aboute him. So wente he to the Elephantes fete/⁊ gat hym vnder hym, ⁊ ſlewe him: then fell the Elephant downe vpon hĩ/ ⁊ there he died. Judas alſo ⁊ his men ſeing yͤ power of the kyng ⁊ the myghtye vyolẽce of his hoſt/departed frõ them. And the kynges armye wente vp agaynſt thẽ towarde Jeruſalem, ⁊ pytched their tẽtes in Jewry beſyde mount Syon: Moreouer, the kyng toke truſe with them that were in *Bethſura.

i. Machabe iiii.g.vi.e. ii.Mac.xi.a x.xv.b

But when they came out of the cyte (becauſe they had no vytailes within, ⁊ the lãde laye vntylled) the kynge toke bethſura, ⁊ ſet mẽ to kepe it, ⁊ turned his hooſte to the place of the Sanctuary/⁊ layed ſiege to it a great whyle. Where he made al maner ordinaunce handbowes, fyre dartes, rackettes to caſte ſtones, ſcorpions to ſhut arowes, and ſlinges The Jewes alſo made ordynaunce agaynſt theirs, and fought a longe ſeaſon.

But in the cytie there were no vytayles / for it was the ſeuenth yeare of the warres / ⁊ thoſe Heythen yͭ remayned in Jewrye/ had eaten vp all their ſtoare. And in the Sanctuary were fewe mẽ lefte, for yͤ hunger came ſo vpon thẽ, that they were ſcatred abroade euery man to hys owne place.

So when Lyſyas hearde that Phylyppe (*whõ Antiochus the kynge whyle he was yet lyuyng/had ordayned to brynge vp Antiochus his ſonne/that he myght be kynge) was come agayne out of Perſia and Media with the kynges hooſt, ⁊ thought to optayne the kyngdome. G He gat him to the kynge in al the haſte, ⁊ to the captaynes of the hoſte, and ſayde: we decreaſe dayly, ⁊ our vytayles are but ſmall : Agayne/the place that we laye ſege vnto, is very ſtrõg/⁊ it were oure parte to ſe for the realme. Let vs agree with theſe men, and take truce wyth them, and with all theyr people, and graunte them to lyue after theyr lawe, as they dyd afore. For they be greued & do all theſe thynges agaynſt vs, becauſe we haue deſpyſed theyr lawe. So the kynge and the prynces were content, & ſente vnto them to make peace, & they receyued it. Now when the king & the prynces had made an othe vnto thē, they came out of the caſtell, and the kynge wente vp to mounte Syon. But when he ſawe that the place was well fenced/ he brake the othe that he had made, & commaunded to deſtroye the wall rounde aboute. Then departed he in all the haſte, & returned vnto Antioche/ where he founde Philyppe hauynge dominion of the cytie. So he fought agaynſt him, & toke the cytie agayne into his handes.

¶ Demetrius raygned after he had kylled Antiochus and Lyſias. He troubleth the chyldren of Iſrael thorowe the coũcell of certayne wycked perſonnes. The prayer of the Preſtes agaynſte Nicanor. Iudas kylleth Nicanor, after he had made hys prayer.

CAPI. VII.

A In the .Clj. yere came Demetrius the ſone of Seleucus from the citie of Rome with a ſmall cōpany of men, vnto a cytie of the ſee caſte, & there he bare rule. And it chaunced/ yͭ when he came to Antioche the cyte of his progenitours, his hoſt toke Antiochus & Liſias to brynge them vnto hym. But when it was tolde hym, he ſayde: let me not ſe theyr faces: So the hoſte put them to death. Nowe when Demetrius was ſet vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, there came vnto him wicked and vngodly mē of Iſraell: whoſe captayne was Alcimus, that wolde haue bene made hye preſte: Theſe men accuſed yͤ people of Iſrael vnto the kynge, ſayinge: Iudas & his brethren haue ſlayne thy frēdes, and dryuen vs out of oure owne lāde. Wherfore, ſende now ſome man (to whom thou geueſt credēce) that he may go and ſe all the deſtruccyon, whiche he hath done vnto vs & to the kynges lande, and let him be puniſhed with all his frendes and fauourers.

B Then the kynge choſe Bachides a frende of hys, which was a man of greate power in the realme (beyonde the greate water) and faythfull vnto the kynge: and ſente him to ſe the deſtruccyon that Iudas had done. And as for that wycked Alcimus, he made hym hye preſte, and commaunded hym to be auenged of the chyldren of Iſrael. So they ſtode vp/ and came with a greate hooſte into the lande of Iuda, ſendynge meſſengers to Iudas & his brethren, & ſpeakynge vnto them wyth peaceable wordes: but vnder diſceyte. 4.[illegible] *Therfore Iudas & his people beleued not theyr ſayinge, for they ſawe that they were come wyth a great hoſte.

After this came the ſcribes together vnto Alcimus & Bachides, truſtynge the beſt vnto them. And fyrſte the Aſſideans requyred peace of them, ſayinge: Alcimus the preſte is come of the ſede of Aarō, how can he diſceyue vs? So they gaue them louynge wordes, & ſwore vnto them, and ſayde: we wyll do you no harme: neither your frēdes: & they beleued them. But the very ſame daye toke they .lx. men of them & ſlewe them accordynge to the wordes that are wrytten: *They haue caſte Pſal.78. C the fleſhe of thy ſayntes, & ſhed their bloude roūde aboute Ieruſalem, & there was no mā yͭ wolde bury them. So there came a greate feare & drede amonge the people/ ſayinge: there is neither trueth nor ryghtuouſneſſe in thē, for they haue broken the appoyntmente & othe that they made. And Bachides remoued his hoſte from Ieruſalem, and pytched hys tente at Betzecha: where he ſent forth/ & toke many of them that had forſaken hym: he ſlewe many of the people alſo and caſte them into a greate pyt. Then commytted he the lande vnto Alcimus/ and lefte men of warre wyth hym to helpe hym, & Bachydes him ſelfe went vnto the kynge. And thus Alcimus defended his hye preſthode: & al ſuche as vexed Iſrael reſorted vnto hym: In ſo muche that they optayned the lande of Iuda & dyd muche euyll vnto the Iſraelites.

Nowe when Iudas ſawe all the miſchefe that Alcimus and his cōpany had done (yee more then the Heythen them ſelues) vnto the Iſraelites: He went forth rounde aboute all the borders of Iewrye/ and punyſhed thoſe vnfaithful rennagates, ſo that they came no more out into the coūtre. So when Alcimus ſawe, that Iudas and his people had gotten the vpperhande, and that he was not able to abide them: he went agayne to the kyng, and ſayde all the worſte of them that he coulde. Then the kyng ſent Nicanor one of his chefe prynces (whiche bare euyl wyll vnto Iſrael) and commaunded hym, that he ſhulde vtterly deſtroye the people.

D 2.Mac.1 *So Nicanor came to Ieruſalem with a great hoſte/ and ſent vnto Iudas and hys brethren wyth frendely wordes (but vnder diſceyte) ſayinge: there ſhall be no warre betwyxte me & you: I wyll come wyth a fewe men/ to ſe howe ye do/ with frēdſhype. Vpon thys he came vnto Iudas, and they ſaluted one another peaceably: but yͤ enemyes were appoynted to take Iudas by vyolence. Neuertheles it was tolde Iudas, that he came vnto hym but vnder diſceyte: wherfore he gat hym awaye from him, & wold ſe hys face no more. When Nicanor perceyued that his councell was bewrayed/ he went out to fight agaynſte Iudas/ beſyde Carpharſamala: where there were ſlayne of Nicanors hoſte, v. M. men: and the reſydue fled vnto the Caſtell of Dauyd.

After this came Nicanor vp vnto mount Syon: and the preſtes with the elders of the people wente forth to ſalute him peaceably/ & to ſhewe him the burnt ſacrifices that were offered for the kynge. But he laughed them and the people to ſcorne, moked them/ defyled their offeringes, & ſpake diſdaynedly/ yee and ſwore in his wroth, ſayenge: E Mac.14.c * If Iudas and his hoſte be not delyuered nowe into my hãdes, as ſoone as euer I come agayne (& fare well) I ſhall burne vp thys houſe. Wyth that/ wente he out in a greate angre. Then the preſtes came in/ and ſtode before the aulter of the temple, weppynge & ſayinge. Para.7.c Regu.8.f ſai.56.b Math.21.b * For ſo muche as thou (O Lorde) haſte choſen this houſe/ that thy name myght be called vpõ therin, & that it ſhulde be * an houſe of prayer and peticion for thy people: Be avenged of this man and his hoſt/ and let thẽ be ſlayne with the ſwerd: remembre yͤ blaſphemies of them, and ſuffre them not to contynue any longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Ieruſalem, he pytched hys tente at Bethoron/ and there an hoſte met hym out of Syria. And Iudas came to Adarſa with thre thouſande men/ & made his prayer vnto God, ſayinge: ay.37.f Mac.8.b ch.19.b Re.19.g O Lorde, * becauſe the meſſengers of kynge Senacherib blaphemed the/ the Angel wẽte forth and ſlewe an hundreth foure ſcore and fyue thouſãde of them. Euen ſo deſtroy thou thys hoſte before vs to daye: yͭ other people maye knowe howe that he hath blaſphemed thy Sanctuary: and pũnyſh hym accordyng to hys malycyouſneſſe.

And ſo the hooſtes ſtroke yͤ felde, the thyrtene daye of the Moneth * Adar: and Nicanors hoſte was diſcomfyted, * & he him ſelfe was fyrſte ſlayne in the battayle. Februarii. 2.Mac.15.b When Nicanors men of warre ſawe that he was kylled, they caſt awaye their weapens and fled: but the Iewes folowed vpon them an whole dayes iourney/ from Adazer vnto Gazara/ blowynge with the trõpettes, and makynge tokẽs after them. So the Iewes came forth of all yͤ townes there aboute/ and blewe out theyr hornes vpõ them, and turned agaynſte them. Thus were they all ſlayne/ & not one of them lefte.

Then they toke their ſubſtãce for a pray/ and ſmote of Nicanors heed and hys ryght hande (* whiche he helde vp ſo proudly) and brought it with them, and hanged it vp afore Ieruſalem. 2.mac.14.c Wherfore, the people were exceedyngly reioyſed/ and paſſed ouer that day in greate gladneſſe. And Iudas ordeyned, yͭ the ſame daye (namely the thyrtyeth daye of the moneth Adar) ſhulde be kepte in myrth euery yere. Thus the lande of Iuda was in reſt a lytle whyle.

CAPI. VIII.

A IUdas herde alſo the fame of the Romaynes/ that they were myghtye & valeaunte men, & agreable to all thinges yͭ are requyred of them, and make peace with al men, which come vnto them. and how they were doughtye men of ſtrẽgth. Beſydes that it was tolde hym of their battayles, & noble actes whiche they dyd in Galatia, howe they had conquered them, and brought them vnder trybute: and what greate thynges they had done in Spayne, howe that with theyr wyſdome & ſober behauour, they had wonne the Mynes of ſyluer and golde that are there/ and optayned all the lande, with other places farre from them: howe they had diſcomfyted and ſlayne downe the kynges that came vppon them, from the vttermoſt parte of the earth, and howe other people gaue them trybute uery yeare. Howe they had ſlayne and ouercome Philip and Perſes kynges of Cethim, & other mo (in battayle) whiche had brought theyre ordynaunce agaynſt them, howe they diſcomfyted great Antyochus kyng of Aſia (that wolde nedes fyghte wyth theym) havynge an hundreth and twentye Elephãtes, with horſſemen, Charettes, and a very great hooſte: howe they toke hym ſelfe alyue, and ordeyned hym (with ſuche as ſhulde raygne after hym) to paye them a greate trybute: 1.Mach.1.a B * Yee, and to fynde them good ſuretyes and pledge: beſydes all thys, howe they had taken from him India, Media and Lydia (hys beſte landes) and geuen them to kynge Eumenus. Agayne, howe they perceyuyng that the Grekes were commynge to vexe them: ſente agaynſt them a captayne of an hooſte, whiche gaue them battayle, ſlewe many of them, led awaye theyr wyues and chyldren captiue, ſpoyled them, toke poſſeſſion of their lande, deſtroyed theyr ſtronge holdes, and ſubdued them to be theyr bondemen, vnto thys daye. Moreouer, howe that as for other kyngdomes and Iles, whyche ſomtyme withſtode them, they deſtroyed thẽ, and bꝛought them vnder theyꝛ domynyon. But helped euer theyꝛ owne frendes and thoſe that were confederate with them, and conquered kyngdomes both farre and nye: ⁊ that whoſoeuer herde of their renowne, was afrayed of thẽ: foꝛ whõ they wold help to theyꝛ kyngdomes, thoſe raygned: ⁊ whõ it lyked not thẽ to raygne, they put hĩ downe. And howe they were come to greate pꝛeemynence: hauynge no kynge among them, nether any man clothed in purple, to be magnified there thoꝛow, but had oꝛdayned them ſelues a parlamẽt, wherin there ſat thꝛe hundꝛeth and twenty Senatours dayly vpon the councell, to dyſpatche euer the buſyneſſe of the people, and to kepe good oꝛdꝛe. And how that euery yeare they choſe a Mayꝛe, to haue the gouernaunce of all theyꝛ land: to whom euery man was obedyent, and there was neyther euyll wyll noꝛ diſcencion among them.

C Then Iudas choſe Eupolemus the ſonne of Ihon the ſonne of Iacob, and Iaſon the ſonne of Eleazar, and ſent them vnto Rome foꝛ to make frendſhyppe and a bonde of loue with them: that they myght take from them the bondage of yͤ Grekes, foꝛ yͤ Iewes ſawe, that yͤ Grekes wolde ſubdue the kyngdome of Iſrael. So they went vnto Rome (a very greate iourney) and came into yͤ perlamente, ⁊ ſayd: Iudas Machabeus with his bꝛethꝛẽ ⁊ the people of the Iewes hath ſent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendſhyppe ⁊ peace with you, and ye to note vs as your louers ⁊ frendes. And the matter pleaſed yͤ Romaines ryght well, wherfoꝛe it was wꝛytten vp: of the which the Romaynes made a wꝛytyng in tables of bꝛaſſe, and ſente it to Ieruſalem: that they myght haue by them a memoꝛyall of the ſame peace and bond of frẽdſhyp after this maner. God ſaue the Romaynes ⁊ the people of the Iewes both by ſee ⁊ by lande, and kepe the ſwearde ⁊ enemy from them foꝛ euermoꝛe. If there come fyꝛſt any warre vpõ the Romaines oꝛ any of their frẽdes thoꝛowout al their dominion, yͤ people of the Iewes ſhall help them (as the tyme requyꝛeth) and that wͭ al their hertes. Alſo they ſhal neither gyue noꝛ ſende vnto theyꝛ enemies vytayles weapens, money noꝛ ſhyppes: but fulfyl this charge at the Romaynes pleaſure, and take nothyng of them therfoꝛe. Agayne yf the people of yͤ Iewes happẽ fyꝛſt to haue warre, the Romaynes ſhall ſtand by them with a good wyll, accoꝛdyng as the tyme wyll ſuffre. Neyther ſhal they geue vnto the Iewes enemies vitayles, weapẽs, money noꝛ ſhippes. Thus are the Romaynes contẽt to do, ⁊ ſhal fulfyll theyꝛ charge without any diſceit.

D Accoꝛding to theſe articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with the Iewes. Nowe after theſe articles (ſayde they) yf any of the parties wyl put to them, oꝛ take any thyng frõ thẽ they ſhall do it with the conſent of both: and whatſoeuer they adde vnto thẽ oꝛ take from them, it ſhall ſtande faſt. And as touchynge the euyl that kyng Demetrius hath done vnto the Iewes, we haue wꝛytten vnto him ſayinge: wherfoꝛe layeſt thou thy heuy yocke vpon the Iewes our frendes and louers? If they make any cõplaynte of thee agayne vnto vs, we ſhall defende them, ⁊ fyght with thee by ſee and by lande.

¶ After the death of Nicanoꝛ, Demetrius ſendeth his army agaynſte Iudas. Iudas is ſlayne. Ionathas is put in the ſteade of hys brother. The ſtryfe betwene Ionathas and Bachydes. Alcimus is taken with the palſye and dyeth. Bachydes returneth agayne vnto the kyng. He cometh vpon Ionathas by the counſel of certayne wycked perſonnes, and is ouercome. The truce of Ionathas with Bachydes.

CAPI. IX.

A IN the meane ſeaſon whẽ Demetrius herde that Nicanoꝛ and hys hoſte was ſlayne in the felde / he pꝛoſeded further to ſende Bachides ⁊ Alcimus agayne into Iewꝛy, ⁊ thoſe that were in the ryght winge of his hoſt wͭ thẽ. So they went foꝛth by the way yͭ ledeth vnto Galgala / and pytched their tentes befoꝛe Meſaloth which is in Arbellus, ⁊ wanne the cytie ⁊ ſlewe muche people. In yͤ fyꝛſte moneth of yͤ .Clii. yeare, they bꝛought theyꝛ hoſte to Ieruſalem, ⁊ roſe vp ⁊ came to Berea, wͭ .xx. M. fotemen, ⁊ .ii. M. hoꝛſmen.

Nowe Iudas had pytched hys tentes at Layſa, with thꝛe thouſande choſen mẽ. And when they ſawe the multitude of the other army that it was ſo great, they were ſoꝛe afrayed, and many conueyed them ſelues out of the hoſte / In ſo muche that there abode no mo of them but eyght hundꝛed men. When Iudas ſawe that his hoſte fayled him, and yͭ he muſt nedes fyght: it bꝛake hys herte, that he had no tyme to gather them togyther: wherfoꝛe the man was in extreme trouble. Neuertheleſſe, he ſayde vnto them, that remayned with hym. Vp, let vs go agaynſte oure enemyes, peraduenture we ſhalbe able, to fyght with them. But they wolde haue ſtopped hym, ſayinge: we ſhall not be able, therfoꝛe let vs nowe ſaue our lyues, and turne agayne to our bꝛethꝛen and then wyll we fyght agaynſt thẽ, foꝛ we are here but fewe. B And Iudas ſayde: God foꝛbyd, yͭ we ſhulde fle from them. Wherfoꝛe, yf oure tyme be come, let vs dye manfully foꝛ our bꝛethꝛen, and let vs not ſtayne oure honoure. Then the hooſt remoued out of the tentes, ⁊ ſtode againſt them. The hoꝛſmen are deuyded in two partes: the ſling caſters and archers wente befoꝛe the hooſt/ and all the mightye mẽ were foꝛmoſt in the felde. Bachides hymſelfe was in the ryght wyng of the battayll, and the hooſte drewe nye in two partes, and blewe the trompettes. They of Judas ſyde blew the trõpettes alſo, and the earth ſhoke at the noiſe of the hooſtes, and they ſtroke a felde from the moꝛowe tyl nyght. And whẽ Judas ſawe that Bachides hooſt was ſtrõgeſt of the ryght ſyde/ he toke with hym all the hardye men/ and brake the right wynge of their oꝛdꝛe/ and folowed vpõ them vnto the mount Azot.

Now whẽ they which were of yͤ left wing, ſawe that yͤ right ſyde was diſcomfyte, they perſecuted Judas ⁊ them that were wͭ him. Then was there a ſoꝛe battaylle/ foꝛ many were ſlayne and wõded of both the parties/ Judas alſo him ſelf was kylled, and the remnaunt fled. So Jonathas and Symon toke Judas theyꝛ bꝛother, and buried him in his fathers ſepulchꝛe in the cyte of Modin. And all the people of Iſrael made great lamentacyon foꝛ hym/ ⁊ mourned longe, ſayenge: Alas/ that thys woꝛthy ſhulde be ſlayne/ which deliuered the people of Iſrael. As foꝛ other thynges perteynynge to the battailes of Judas/ the noble actes that he dyd ⁊ of hys woꝛthyneſſe: they are not wꝛytten/ foꝛ they were very many.

C ſeph.c. lib,13, an

* And after the death of Judas, wycked men came vp ĩ al the coaſtes of Iſrael, and there aroſe all ſuch as woꝛcke vngodlines. In thoſe dayes was there a greate dearthe in the lande/ and all the countre gaue ouer them ſelues and theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachydes choſe wycked men/ ⁊ made them loꝛdes in the land. Theſe ſought out ⁊ made ſearch foꝛ Judas frẽdes, and bꝛought them vnto Bachides: which auẽged him ſelf vpõ them with great deſpyte. And there came ſo great trouble ĩ Iſrael, as was not ſens the tyme that no pꝛophete was ſene there.

Then came all Judas frendes together, and ſayde vnto Jonathas: Foꝛ ſo much as thy bꝛother Judas is deed, ther is none like him to go foꝛth againſt our enemies, agaĩſt Bachides, ⁊ ſuche as are aduerſaryes vnto oure people. Wherfoꝛe thys daye we choſe the foꝛ hym/ to be oure pꝛince and captayne to oꝛdꝛe oure battaille. And Jonathas toke the gouernaunce vpon hym at the ſame tyme, and ruled ĩ ſteade of his bꝛother Judas When Bachides gat knowledge therof, he ſought foꝛ to ſley hym. But Jonathas and Symon his bꝛother/ perceauynge that, fled into the wildernes of Thecua with al theyꝛ company, and pytched theyꝛ tentes by the water pole of Aſphar.

Which when Bachydes vnderſtode, he came ouer Joꝛdane with al his hoſt vpon yͤ Sabbath day. Now had Jonathas ſet hys bꝛother Jhon (a captayne of the people) to pꝛay his frendes the Nabuthites, that they wolde lende them their oꝛdinaunce, foꝛ they had much. So the chyldꝛen of Jambꝛy came out of Madaba, and toke Jhon and al that he had, and wente their waye withal. D Then came woꝛde vnto Jonathas and Simõ his bꝛother/ that the chyldꝛen of Jambꝛy made a greate mariage, and bꝛought the bꝛide frõ Madaba wyth greate pompe; foꝛ ſhe was daughter to one of the nobleſt pꝛinces of Canaan. Wherfoꝛe they remembꝛed the bloude of Jhon their bꝛother, ⁊ went vp, ⁊ hid them ſelues vnder the ſhadowe of the mountayne.

So they lift vp their eyes, and loked: and beholde, there was much a do, and great repayꝛe: foꝛ the bꝛydegrome came foꝛth/ ⁊ his frendes and hys bꝛethꝛen met thẽ with tympanyes/ inſtrumẽtes of muſicke/ and many weapẽs. Then Jonathas ⁊ they that were with hym/ roſe oute of theyꝛ lourkynge places agaynſt them, and ſlewe many of them. As foꝛ the remnaũt, they fled into the mountaynes, and they toke all their ſubſtaunce.

Thus the maryage was turned to moꝛnynge, and the noyſe of their melody into lamentacyon. And ſo when they had auenged the bloude of theyꝛe bꝛother, they turned agayne vnto Joꝛdane.

Bachides hearynge thys/ came vnto the very boꝛder of Joꝛdane with a great power vpon yͤ Sabbath day. E And Jonathas ſayd to hys companye, let vs get vp/ and fyght agayne our enemies: foꝛ it ſtãdeth not with vs to daye/ as in tyme paſte: Beholde/ oure enemyes are in our waye/ the water of Joꝛdane vpon the one ſyde of vs, with bankes, fennes and woddes of the other ſide, ſo that there is no place foꝛ vs to departe vnto.

* Wherfoꝛe crye nowe vnto heauen, that ye maye be deliuered frõ the power of your enemies. 1.Para.2.a 1.Mac.4.b So they ſtroke yͤ battaille. And Jonathas ſtretched out his hãdes to ſmite Bachydes, but he fled bacwarde. Thẽ Jonathas ⁊ they that were wyth hym leapte into Joꝛdane, ⁊ ſwymmed ouer Joꝛdane vnto hym, and there were ſlaine of Bachides ſide that daye, a thouſande men.

Therfore Bachydes with hys hooſt turned agayne to Jeruſalem, and buylte vp the caſtels and ſtrong holdes that were in Jewrye/ Jericho/ Emaus/ Bethoron/ Bethell/ Thamnata/ Phara and Topo, ẇ hye walles, with portes and with lockes: and ſet mē to kepe them, that they might vſe theyr malyce vpon Iſraell. He walled vp the cytye Bethſurah/ Gazarah and the caſtell/ and prouided thē with mē and vitayles. He toke alſo the chefeſt mens ſonnes in the countre for pledges, and put them in the caſtel at Jeruſalem to be kepte.

Afterwarde in the hundred fyftye ⁊ thre yeare in the ſecōde moneth, Alcimus cōmaūded, that the walles of the inmoſt Sanctuary ſhuld be deſtroyed, and the buyldiges of the prophetes alſo. And when he began to deſtroye thē/ the thynges ỷ he wēte aboute/ were hindered, for he was ſmyttē with a palſey, and his mouth ſhut, ſo that he coulde no more ſpeake, nor cōmaūde any of hys houſe concernyng his buſyneſſe. Thus dyed Alcimus in greate miſery at the ſame tyme. And whē Bachides ſawe that Alcimꝰ was dead, he turned agayne to the kyng, and ſo ỷ lāde

F was in reſt two yeares. Then all the vngodly men helde a councel, ſaieng: Behold, Jonathas and his cōpany are at eaſe, and dwell without care. Wherfore let vs bringe Bachides hyther/ and he ſhall take them al in one nyght.

So they wente and gaue Bachydes this councell/ which aroſe to come with a greate hooſt, ⁊ ſnet letters priuely to his adherentes, which were ī Jewry, to take Jonathas/ ⁊ thoſe that were ẇ him: but they might not for the other had gotten knowledge of their entēce. And Jonathas toke fyfty men of the countre (which were the ryngleaders of thē) and ſlewe them. Then Jonathas ⁊ Simō with theyr company departed vnto the cyte Bethbeſſen which lyeth in the wildernes/ ⁊ repayred ỷ decay therof/ and made it ſtrōg. When Bachydes knewe thys, he gathered all hys hooſt/ and ſent worde to them that were of Jewry. Then came he ⁊ layed ſege to Bethbeſſen and fought agaynſt it a long

G ſeaſon, ⁊ made inſtrumētes of warre. Now Jonathas left his brother Simō in ỷ cytie, and wente forth him ſelfe into the coūtre/ ⁊ came with a certayne nōbre, and ſlewe Odares and his brethrē, and the children of Phaſeron in their tentes: ſo that he begāne to be ſtronge and to increaſe in power.

As for Symon and hys companye/ they wente out of the cytye/ and brent vp the inſtrumentes of warre, ⁊ fought agaynſt Bachides, and diſcōfyted hym. And Bachides was ſore vexed, becauſe his councel and trauayl was in vaine. Wherfore he was wroth at the wycked men (that gaue hym councell to come into their lande) and ſlewe many of them. Then purpoſed he with his company to go awaye into hys owne countre: wherof whē Jonathas had knowledge, he ſent embaſſytours vnto hym, for to make peace ẇ hym, and that he ſhuld delyuer him his preſonners agayne. To the whiche Bachides conſented gladly, and dyd accordyng to his deſyre: yee and made an othe/ that he ſhulde neuer do him harme al the dayes of his life. So he reſtored vnto hym al the preſonners that he had taken out of the lande of Juda, ⁊ then turned and wente hys way into hys owne lād, nether proceded he any further to come vnto ỷ borders of Juda. Thus Iſraell had no more warre. And Jonathas dwelt at Machemas, ⁊ began there to gouerne ỷ people, ⁊ deſtroyed ỷ vngodly mē out of Iſrael.

¶ Demetrius deſyreth to haue peace with Jonathas Alexander moueth warre agaynſte Demetrius. Demetrius is ſlayne. The frendſhyppe of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

CAPI. X.

IN the hundred and thre ſcore yeare came Alexander the ſonne of noble Antiochus and toke Ptolomays/ whoſe cytezyns receaued hym/ and there he rayghned. A Joſep. li.xiii.

When kynge Demetrius herde therof, he gathered an exceadynge great hooſt, and wente forthe agaynſte hym to fyght. Wherfore Demetrius ſēt letters vnto Jonathas with louyng wordes/ and prayſed hym greatly. For he ſayd: we wil firſt make peace ẇ hym, before he binde hī ſelfe with Alexander againſt vs: els he ſhall remēbre ỷ euyl ỷ we haue done againſt hī, his brother ⁊ his people. And ſo he gaue Jonathas leue to gather an hoſt, to make weapens, and to be cōfederate ẇ him, ⁊ commaūded the pledges that were ī the caſtell, to be delivered vnto hym.

Then came Jonathas to Jeruſalem, and red the letters in the audience of al the people, and of them that were in the caſtel. And therfore were they ſore afraied, becauſe they herde, that the kyng had geuen hym licence to gather an hooſt. Thus were the pledges B delyuered vnto Jonathas/ whiche reſtored thē to their parētes. Jonathas alſo dwelt at Jeruſalem, and beganne to buylde vp ⁊ to repayre the citie: commaundyng the workmen, to wall it, and the mount Sion round aboute with fre ſtone/ to be a ſtronge holde, and ſo they dyd. As for ỷ Heathen that were in yͤ caſtels which Bachides had made vp/ they fled: ſo that euery man lefte the place/ & went into his owne coũtre. Only at Bethſura remayned certayne of yͤ Jewes. which had forſakẽ the lawe and commaundementes of God, for Bethſura was their refuge.

Nowe when kyng Alexander herde of the promyſes that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and whẽ it was tolde him of the battels and noble actes/ whiche he and hys brethren had done, and of the greate trauayles that they had taken, he ſaide: where ſhal we fynde ſuche a man & well/ we wyll make him our frende, and be confederat with him. Upon this he wrote a lettre vnto him, with theſe wordes: kynge Alexander ſaluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue herd of yͤ, that thou art a valeaũt man, and mete to be our frende: wherfore thys daye we ordeyne the to be the hye preſte of thy people / and to be called the kynges frende.)Upon this, he ſet hym a purple clothynge / and a crowne of golde) that thou mayeſte conſydre what is for oure profyt, and kepe frendſhyppe towarde vs.

So in the ſeueth moneth of the hundred
C and thre ſcore yeare vpõ the ſolempne feaſte day of yͤ tabernacles, Jonathas put yͤ holy raymente vpon hym. Then gathered he an hooſt, and made many weapẽs. which whẽ Demetrius herde, he was maruelous ſory, & ſayde: Alas/ what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuẽted vs in gettyng yͤ frendſhyppe of the Jewes/ for hys owne defence? Yet wyll J wryte louyngly vnto them alſo/ yee and promyſe them dygnites and rewardes, that they maye be of my ſyde. Wherupõ he wrote vnto thẽ theſe wordes. Kinge Demetrius ſendeth greting vnto yͤ people of yͤ Jewes. Where as ye haue kepte your couenaũt towarde vs, & continued in our frendſhip/ not enclining to our enemies, we were glad, when we herde therof. Wherfore remayne ſtyll/ & be faythfull to vs: & we ſhall wel recompenſe you for yͤ thinges, yͭ ye haue done on oure partye: we ſhall releaſe you of many charges, & geue you rewardes. And now J dyſcharge you & al yͤ Jewes frõ tributes, J forgeue you the cuſtomes of ſalt, & releaſe you of yͤ crowne taxes/ of the thyrde parte of ſede, & half of yͤ frute of trees, which is myne owne dewtye. These J leaue for you, frõ this daye forth: ſo yͭ they ſhal not be taken of the lande of Juda nor of the thre cities which are added ther vnto out of Samaria and Galylee/ frome thys daye forthe
D for euermore. Jeruſalẽ alſo with al thynges belongyng therto, ſhalbe holy and fre, yee yͤ tythes and trybutes ſhall pertayne vnto it. As for the power of yͤ caſtell which is at Jeruſalẽ J remyt & geue it vnto the hye preſt, that he may ſet ĩ it ſuch mẽ, as he ſhal choſe to kepe it. J frely delyuer al the Jewes that are preſonners thorow out al my realme: ſo that euery one of thẽ ſhalbe fre frõ payinge any trybute/ yee euen of their catell.

All the ſolempne feaſtes, Sabbathes, newmoones, the dayes appoynted, the thre dayes before & after the feaſt, ſhall be fre for all the Jewes in my realme: ſo that in them no man ſhall haue power to do any thynge, or to moue any buſyneſſe againſt any of thẽ in any maner of cauſe. There ſhall thyrtye thouſande alſo of the Jewes be wrytten vp in the kynges hooſt/ and haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kinges ſhulde haue: and of them ſhalbe ordeyned certayne, to kepe the kynges ſtrong holdes: yee and ſome of them ſhalbe ſet ouer the kinges buſyneſſe, that they maye faithfully deale with the ſame. The Jewes alſo ſhall haue prynces of theyr owne/ and walcke in theyr owne lawes / as the kynge hath commaunded in the lande of Juda.

Jewry from the countre of Samarya & Galilee: ſhalbe taken as Jewry/ and be vnder one: nether be ſubiecte to any ſtraunge lord, but to the hye preſte. As for Ptolomais and the lande perteynynge therto/ J geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jeruſalem/ for the neceſſary expences of the holy thinges. Moreouer, J wyll geue euery yeare fyftene thouſand Sycles of ſyluer out of the kĩges cheker (which pertayneth vnto me) to yͤ worcke of the temple: yee and loke what remayneth (which they yͭ had oure matters in hande in tymes paſt, haue not payed) yͤ ſame ſhal they geue vnto them alſo. And beſydes al thys/ the fyue thouſand Sycles which they toke yearly of the rentes of the Sanctuary, ſhall belong vnto the preſtes that do ſeruyce.

Item whoſoeuer they be that fle vnto the temple at Jeruſalem or within the liberties therof, where as they are fallen into the kynges daunger for any maner of buſynes, they ſhall be pardoned & all yͤ goodes that they haue in my realme/ ſhalbe fre. For the buyldyng alſo and repayring of the worcke of the Sanctuary/ expenſes ſhall be geuen out of the kynges Checker: Yee and for the makynge of the walles rounde aboute Jeruſalem, for the breaking downe of the olde and for the ſettinge vp of the ſtrong holdes in Jewry, ſhal the coſtes and charges be geuen out of the kynges Checker.

1.Mac.7.b * But when Jonathas and the people hearde theſe wordes/they gaue no credence vnto them/neyther receaued them: for they remembred the greate wyckedneſſe that he had done vnto Iſraell, and how ſore he had vexed them. Wherfore/they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendly wyth them / and ſo they ſtode by hym alwaye. Ioſeph.an. b.lib.xiii. * Then gathered kynge Alexander a greate hooſt/and brought hys armye agaynſte Demetrius. So the two kynges ſtroke batayle together / but Demetrius hooſt fled/and Alexander folowed after and fell vpon them. A myghtye ſore felde was it / contynuynge tyll the Sonne wente downe, and Demetrius was ſlayne the ſame daye.

F And Alexandre ſente ambaſſitoures vnto Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte wyth theſe wordes / ſayenge: For ſo muche as I am come agayne to my realme / and am ſet in the trone of my progenytours / and haue gotten the domynyon / ouercomed Demetrius / conquered the lande / and ſtryken a felde wyth hym, ſo that we haue dyſcomfyted both him and his hooſt, and ſyt in the trone of hys kyngdome. Let vs nowe make felowſhippe together/ geue me thy daughter to wyfe: ſo ſhall I be thy ſonne in lawe/and both geue the rewardes/and her great dygnyte. Ptolomy the kyng gaue anſwere, ſayenge: Happy be the daye wherin thou arte come agayne to the lande of thy Progenytours, and ſet in the trone of theyr kyngdome. As nowe wyll I fulfyll thy wrytynge: but mete me at Ptolomais, that we maye ſe one another, & that I may mary my daughter vnto the accordinge to thy deſyre. So Ptolomy wente out of Egypte wyth hys daughter Cleopatra, and came vnto Ptolomays in the. Clxij. yeare: where kinge Alexander met hym/and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, & maried thē at Ptolomais with greate worſhyppe/ lyke as the maner of kynges is to be. Thē wrote kyng

G Alexander vnto Jonathas / that he ſhulde come and mete hym. So he wente honorably vnto Ptolomais/ and there he mete the two kynges, and gaue them greate preſentes of golde and ſiluer/and founde fauoure in their ſyght. And there came together agaīſt Jonathas certayne wycked men & vngracyous perſones of Iſrael, makyng complayntes of him, but the kyng regarded thē not. As for Jonathas, the kynge commaunded to take of hys garmentes and to clothe hi in purple: and ſo they dyd. Then ẏ kinge appoynted hym to ſyt by hym / and ſayde vnto hys princes: Go with hym into ẏ myddeſt of the cytye, and make a proclamacion, that no man complayne againſt him of any matter/and that no mā trouble hym for eny maner of cauſe.

So it happened, that when hys accuſers ſawe the worſhyppe which was proclamed of hym, and that he was clothed in purple: they fled euerychone. And the Kynge made much of hym, wrote hym amonge hys chefe frendes, made hym a duke, and partaker of hys domynyon. * Thus Jonathas wente agayne to Jeruſalē with peace & gladnes. Ioſe an.b.li xiii. In the. Clxv. yeare came Demetriꝰ the ſōne of Demetrius from Creta into hys fathers lande: wherof when Alexander herde tel, he was ryght ſory, and retourned vnto Antioche. And Demetrius choſe * Appollonyus, 1.Ma. (which had the gouernaunce of Celoſyrya) to be hys captayne.

So he gathered a greate hooſt and came vnto Jamnia/ and ſente word vnto Jonathas the hye preſt, ſayeng: Darteſte ẏ withſtand vs thy ſelf alone? As for me, I am but laughed to ſcorne and ſhamed, becauſe thou proudſt thy ſtrēgth agaynſt vs in the mountaynes. Nowe therfore/yf thou truſteſte in thine owe ſtrēght, come downe to vs into ẏ plaine felde, & there let vs proue our ſtrēgth together: thou ſhalt fynde, that I haue valeaunt men of warre with me, & ſhalt knowe whom I am, & the other that ſtande by me. H

Which ſaye, that your fote is not able to ſtande before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twiſe chaſed into theyr owne lāde. And nowe/ how wylt ẏ be able to abyde ſo great an hooſt of horſmē & fotemē in ẏ feld, whereas is nether rocke, ſtone nor place to fle vnto? When Jonathas herd the wordes of Appolloniꝰ, he was moued ī hys mynde: wherfore he choſe tenne thouſande mē, and went oute of Jeruſalem / and Symon hys brother met him for to helpe him: And they pitched their tentes at Joppa, but ẏ cytie kepte hym forth / for Joppa was an holde of Appollonius. Then Jonathas laied ſege to it, and they that were in the cyte, for very feare let hym in: and ſo Jonathas wanne Joppa. Appollonius hearinge of this, toke thre thouſande horſmen/ with a greate hooſt of fote, and wente as though he wold go to Azotus, and came immediatly into the plaine felde: becauſe he had ſo many horſmen, and put hys truſt in thē. So Jonathas folowed vpon him to Azotus, ⁊ there they ſtrocke the battayll. Now had Appolloniꝰ left a thouſande horſmē behynde thē priuely in ẏ tētes. And when Jonathas knewe ẏ ſuche wayte was layed behynde them, they went rounde aboute the enemyes hooſt/ and ſhot dartes at ẏ people frō the morninge to ẏ euenynge. As for Jonathas people, they kepte theyr ordre as he had commaunded them, and the enemyes horſes were euer labourynge.

I Then brought Symon forth hys hooſt, and ſet them agaynſte the fote men. For the horſmen were weery all ready. So he dyſcomfited them/ and they fled. And they that were ſcatred in the felde/ gat thē to Azotus, and came into the temple of Dagon theyr Idoll, ẏ they myght there ſaue theyr lyues. But Jonathas ſet fyre vpon Azotus and al the cyties rounde aboute it, and toke theyr goodes, and * brent vp the temple of Dagon, with all them that were fled into it.

Thus were ſlayne ⁊ brent well nye. viii. M. men. So Jonathas remoued the hooſt frō thence, ⁊ brought thē to Aſcalon: where the men of the cytie came forth/ ⁊ met hym with great worſhyp. After this went Jonathas ⁊ his hooſt agayne to Jeruſalem, with great ſubſtaunce of good. And when kynge Alexander herde theſe thynges/ he thought to do Jonathas more worſhype, ⁊ ſent hym a colar of golde, as ẏ vſe is to be geuē vnto ſuche as are of the kynges nexte bloude. He gaue him alſo the cytie of Accaron (with the landes belongynge therto) in poſſeſſyon.

¶ The diſſencion betwyxt Ptolomee ⁊ Alexāder his ſonne in lawe. The deeth of Alexander. Demetrius raygneth after the deeth of Ptolomeus. Syon is beſeged of Jonathas. Demetrius ſeynge that no mā reſiſted him, ſēdeth his armye agayne. Tryphō moueth Antiochus agaynſt Demetrius. Demetrius is delyuered by the ſuccour of Jonathas. After hys delyueraunce he breaketh hys couenaunt that he had made.

A CAPI. XI.

AND the kynge of Egypte gathered an hooſt (lyke the ſande ẏ lyeth vpon ẏ ſee ſhore) ⁊ many ſhippes: * ⁊ went aboute thorowe dyſceate to obtayne ẏ kyngdome of Alexander/ ⁊ to ioyne it vnto hys owne realme. Upon this he toke hys iourney into Siria, ⁊ was letten into ẏ cyties, ⁊ mē came forth to mete hym: for kynge Alexander had commaunded them ſo to do, becauſe he was his father in lawe. Nowe whē Ptolomy entred into any cytie, he lefte men of warre to kepe it/ and thys he dyd thorowe out all the cyties. And when he came to Azotus, * they ſhewed him the temple of Dagon ⁊ Azotus that was brent vp/ with the other thynges which were deſtroyed, the deed bodyes caſte abrode/ and the graues that they had made by ẏ waye ſyde, for ſuche as were ſlayne in ẏ felde. And tolde the kynge ẏ Jonathas had done all theſe thinges, to ẏ intēt they might get hym euell wyll. But the kynge ſayde not a worde therto. And Jonathas met the kynge with great honoure at Joppa, where they ſaluted one another, ⁊ toke theyr reſt. So when Jonathas had gone ẇ the kyng, vnto ẏ water that was called Eleutherus, he turned agayne to Jeruſalem. Now Ptolomy had gotten ẏ domynyon of the cyties vnto Seleucia vpō ẏ ſee coaſt, ymagynyng wycked councels agaynſte Alexander, and

B ſent ambaſſitours vnto Demetrius, ſaying Come, let vs make a bonde betwyxte vs, ſo ſhall I geue the my daughter that Alexander hathe/ and thou ſhalt raygne in thy fathers kyngdome. I repente that I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth about to ſley me. And thus he ſclaundreth Alexander/ becauſe he wolde haue had his realme.

Thus he toke his daughter frō him gaue her vnto Demetrius, ⁊ forſoke Alexander, ſo that his malice was openly knowen. And Ptolomy came to Antioch, where he ſet two crownes vpō his owne heade, the crowne of Egypt ⁊ of Aſia. In the meane ſeaſon was kynge Alexander in Cilicia/ for they that dwelt in thoſe places, had rebelled agaynſt him. But when Alexander herde of this/ he came to warre agaynſt him. So kyng Ptolomy brought forth his hooſt ⁊ met hī with a mighty power, ⁊ chaſed him away. Then fled Alexander into Araby, there to be defēded/ ⁊ kynge Ptolomys honoure increaſed. And Zabdiel ẏ Arabian ſmote of Alexāders heade, and ſent it vnto Ptolomy. But the thyrde day after/ dyed kynge Ptolomy him ſelfe: ⁊ they whom he had ſett in the ſtronge

C holdes/ were ſlayne of thoſe that were within the cyties. And Demetrius raygned in the hundred and ſeuen and ſyxtie yeare.

At ẏ ſame tyme gathered Jonathas thē that were in Jewry, to laye ſege vnto ẏ caſtel which was at Jeruſalē, ⁊ ſo they made many inſtrumētes of warre agaynſt it. Thē wente there certayne vngodly perſonnes (which hated theyr owne people) vnto king Demetrius/ ⁊ tolde hym that Jonathas beſeged ẏ caſtel. So when he herde it/ he was angrie, and immediatly came vnto Ptolomeus/ ⁊ wrote vnto Jonathas/ ẏ he ſhulde not laye ſege to the caſtel, but come ⁊ ſpeake with him in all ẏ haſte. Neuertheles, when Jonathas herde this, he commaunded to beſege it. He choſe alſo certayne of ẏ elders and preſtes of Iſrael, & put hym ſelfe in the parel, & toke wᵗ hym gold/ſyluer, clothyng, and diuerſe preſentes: & went to Ptolomais vnto the kynge, and founde him gracyous.

And though certaine vngodly men of his owne people made cõplayntes vpõ him yet 1. Mac 2. b. the kyng intreated him, * lyke as his predeceſſours had done before: & promoted him in yͤ ſight of all his frendes, cõfirmed him in yͤ hye preſthode wᵗ all the worſhyppe yͭ he had afore, & made him his chefe frẽde. Jonathas alſo deſyred the kyng, yͭ he wolde make Je- 1. Mach 2. c and 7. b. wry fre, * wᵗ the thre heade cyties of Samaria & the lãdes pertaynyng therto: vpõ this dyd Jonathas ꝓmyſe him thre. C. talentes. Where vnto yͤ kyng cõſented/ & gaue Jonathas wrytyng of the ſame/ cõcernynge theſe wordes: kyng Demetriꝰ ſẽdeth gretyng vnto his brother Jonathas & to yͤ people of the Jewes. We ſende you here a copy of yͤ letter whiche we dyd wryte vnto oure elder Laſthenus, cõcernyng you yͭ ye ſhulde knowe it.

D Kynge Demetrius ſendeth greting vnto Laſthenes hys elder. For the faythfulneſſe yͭ our frendes the people of the Jewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louyng kyndnes which they beare towarde vs: we are determyned to do thẽ good. Wherfore we ordayne all the coaſtes of Jewry wᵗ thre cyties, Lydda and Ramatha (whiche are added vnto Jewrye frõ Samaria) & all yͤ lãdes pertaynyng therevnto, to be frely ſeparated for ſuch as do ſacryfyce i Jeruſalẽ: both cõcernyng yͤ paymẽtes which the kyng toke yearely afore tyme, and yͤ frutes alſo of the earth & trees. As for other tythes & trybutes yͭ belonged vnto vs, we diſcharge thẽ therof frõ this tyme forth. In lyke maner we graunte vnto thẽ all the cuſtumes of ſalt & crowne taxes whiche were brought vnto vs And this fredome ſhall they haue firme & ſtedfaſt, from this tyme forth for euermore. Therfore ſe that ye make a copy of theſe our letters, & delyuer it vnto Jonathas: that it may be kepte vpõ the holy mounte in a conueniente place.

E After this whẽ Demetrius yͤ kynge ſawe that his lãde was in reſt and yͭ no reſiſtaũce was made him: he ſent awaye all his hooſt, euery mã to his owne place, except an army of ſtraungers, whõ he brought frõ yͤ Iles of the Heathen, wherfore all his fathers hooſt had euel wyl at him. * Nowe was there one 1. Mac 12. c. Triphon (yͭ had bene of Alexanders parte afore) which when he ſawe that all the hooſt murmured agaynſt Demetrius: he went to Emalcuel the Arabiã, that brought vp Antiochus the ſonne of Alexander, and laye ſore vpon hym/to delyuer hym this yong Antiochus: that he myght rayne in his fathers ſteade. He tolde hym alſo/what great euel Demetrius had done/and howe his men of warre loued hym not: and ſo remayned there a longe ſeaſon.

And Jonathas ſent vnto kynge Demetrius, to driue thẽ out which were in yͤ caſtel at Jeruſalẽ, & in the other refugies, for they dyd Iſraell great harme. So Demetrius ſent worde vnto Jonathas/ſayenge: I wyl not onely do theſe thinges for the & thy people/but at a tyme conueniẽt I wyl do bothe F the & thy people great worſhyp. But nowe thou ſhalt do me a pleaſure, yf yͧ wylt ſende me men to helpe me: for all myne armye is gone fro me. So Jonathas ſent hym thre thouſande ſtrõge mẽ vnto Antioche, & they came vnto yͤ kyng, wherfore the kynge was very glad at theyr cõmynge. But they that were of the cytie (euen an hundred & twenty thouſande men) gathered thẽ together/and wolde haue ſlayne the kynge whiche fled into his courte/and the cyteſins kepte the ſtretes of the cytie/and beganne to fyght.

Then the kyng called for yͤ Jewes helpe, which came vnto hym all together/& wente abrode thorow the cyte, & ſlewe yͤ ſame daye an hundred thouſande mẽ: ſet fyre vpon the cytie/get many ſpoyles in yͭ day/& delyuerd the kynge. So when the cyteſins ſawe that the Jewes had gottẽ theyr wyll of yͤ cytie, & they thẽ ſelues diſapoĩted of theyr purpoſe, they made theyr ſupplicaciõ vnto the kyng, ſayeng: Graũt vs peace/and let the Jewes ceaſſe frõ troubling vs & the cytie/and vpõ this they caſt awaye theyr weapens. Thus they made peace/and the Jewes gat greate worſhip in yͤ ſight of yͤ kyng, & in yͤ ſyght of all yͭ were in his realme, and were ſpoken of thorowe out the kingdome: & ſo they came agayne to Jeruſalem with greate goodes. G

So the kyng Demetrius ſat in the trone of his kingdome, and had peace in his lãde. Neuertheleſſe/he diſſembled in al that euer he ſpake/and withdrewe hym ſelfe from Jonathas/ neyther rewarded hym accordynge to the benefytes whiche he had done for hym/but troubled hym very ſore, After thys came Tryphon agayne with yonge Antiochus/which raygned & was crowned kynge. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of warre/whom Demetrius had put away: theſe fought agaynſt Demetriꝰ, which fled and turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, and wanne Antioche. And yonge Antiochus wrote vnto

Upon this he ſent him golden veſſels to be ſerued in, and gaue him leue to drynke in golde, to be clothed in purple, and to were a colar of gold. He made his brother Symon alſo captayne, frō the coaſtes of Tyrus vnto the borders of Egypt. Then Jonathas toke his iourney, & went thorowe the cyties beyonde the water (of Jordane) and all the men of warre of Syria gathered thē vnto hym for to helpe hym. So he came vnto Aſcalon, & they of the cytie receaued him honorably, and from thence went he vnto Gaza, but they wolde not let hym in: wherfore he layde ſege vnto it burnynge vp & ſpoylyng the places that were aboute the cytie.

H And the cytezins of Gaza ſubmytted thē ſelues vnto Jonathas/ whiche made peace with thē, but toke of theyr ſonnes to pledge, ſent thē to Jeruſalē, & went thorowe yͤ countre vnto Damaſcus. Nowe whē Jonathas herde yͭ Demetrius prynces were come into Cades (which is in Galilee) wͭ a great hoſt, purpoſynge to put Demetrius out from medlynge in yͤ reame: he came agaynſt thē, and lefte Symon his brother in the lande: which came to Bethſura, & layed ſege to it a longe ſeaſon, & diſcomfyted thē. So they deſyred to haue peace wͭ him, which he graunted thē, and afterwarde put them out from thence/ toke the cytie, and ſet men to kepe it. And Jonathas wͭ his hooſt came to the water ſo Geneſar, & by tymes in the mornynge gat them to the playne felde of Azor.

And beholde, the hooſtes of the Heathen met them in the felde/ and layed watch for them in the mountaynes: ſo that when Jonathas came agaynſt them, the other (which were layed to watch) roſe out of theyr places/ and fought/ and they that were of Jonathas ſyde, fled euery man: and there was not one of them lefte excepte Mathathias the ſonne of Abſolomus/ and Judas the ſonne of Calphi yͤ captayne of the hooſt. Then Jonathas rente hys clothes/ layed earth vpon his heade/ made his prayer, and turned agayne to them in the felde: where they fought together/ and he put them to flyght. Nowe when his owne men, that were fled, ſawe thys: they turned agayne vnto hym, and helped hym to folowe vpon all theyr enemyes vnto theyr tentes at Cades. So there were ſlayne of the Heathen the ſame daye thre thouſande men, and Jonathas turned agayne to Jeruſalem.

¶ Jonathas ſendeth Embaſſytoures to Rome and to the people of Sparta to renue theyr couenauntes of frendſhyp. Jonathas putteth to flyghte the prynces of Demetrius. Tryphon taketh Jonathas by deceate.

CAPI. XII.

A Mach. 8. Jonathas ſeyng yͭ the tyme was mete for hym/ choſe certayne men & ſent thē vnto Rome for to ſtablyſh & to renue the frendſhyppe with thē. He ſent letters alſo vnto Sparta/ and to other places in lyke maner. So they went vnto Rome/ & entred into yͤ coũcell/ & ſayde: Jonathas yͤ hye preeſt & the people of yͤ Jewes ſent vs vnto you/ for to renue yͤ olde frēdſhip & bonde of loue. Upon this yͤ Romaynes gaue thē fre paſportes, yͭ men ſhulde lede thē home into the lande of Juda peaceably. And this is yͤ copy of yͤ letters yͭ Jonathas wrote vnto yͤ Spartians.

Jonathas yͤ hye preeſt wͭ the elders, preeſtes, & the other people of yͤ Jewes, ſēde gretyng vnto yͤ Spartiās their brethrē. There were letters ſente longe agoo vnto Onias the hye preeſt frō Arius/ which than raigned amonge you, yͭ ye are our brethrē, as yͤ wrytynge made therupon/ ſpecyfyeth. And Onias entreated yͤ embaſſitour yͭ was ſent, honorably/ & receaued the letters: where in there was mēcion made of the bonde of loue & frendſhyp. B But as for vs, we nede no ſuch wrytinges: for why/ we haue yͤ holy bokes of ſcripture in oure handes to our comforte. Neuertheleſſe: we had rather ſēde vnto you for the renuynge of yͤ brotherhode & frendſhyppe: leſt we ſhulde be ſtraūge vnto you: for it is longe, ſens yͤ tyme yͭ ye ſent wordes vnto vs. Wherfore in the ſacryfyces yͭ we offre & other cerimonies vpō yͤ ſolēpne daies & other, we alwaye remembre you without ceaſſyng (lyke as reaſon is, & as it becōmeth vs to thynke vpon our brethren) yee and are ryght glad of youre proſperous honoure.

And thoughe we haue had great troubles and warres, ſo yͭ the kynges about vs haue foughten agaynſte vs: yet wolde we not be greuous vnto you/ nor to other of oure louers & frēdes in theſe warres. For we haue had helpe frō heauen, ſo yͭ we are delyuered, & our enemyes ſubdued. Wherfore we choſe Numenius the ſonne of Antiochus & Antipater the ſōne of Jaſon/ & ſent thē vnto the Romaynes/ for to renue the olde bonde of frēdſhyp & loue wͭ them. We cōmaunded thē alſo to come vnto you to ſalute you & to delyuer you our letters/ cōcernynge yͤ renouacion of our brotherhode. And now ye ſhal do right wel, to geue vs an anſwere ther vnto.

Arius kynge of the Sparcians ſendeth gre- C tynge vnto Onias the hye preſt. It is founde in wryttynge, that the Sparcians & Jewes are brethren, and come out of the generacyō of Abraham. And nowe for ſo much as this is come to oure knowledge, ye ſhall do well, to wryte vnto vs of youre proſperite. As for vs, we haue wrytten oure mynde vnto you: Oure catell and goodes are yours, & yours oures. Theſe thynges haue we commaūded to be ſhewed vnto you.

When Jonathas herde, that Demetrius prynces were come forth to fyght agaynſte hym wͭ a greater hooſt then afore, he wente from Jeruſalem, & met them in the lande of Hemath, for he gaue them not ſpace to come into his owne cōtree. And he ſent ſpyes vnto theyr tentes, whiche came agayne & tolde hym, ẏ they were appoynted to come vpon him in the nyght ſeaſon. Wherfore whē the ſunne was gone downe, Jonathas cōmaunded his men to watch all the nyght, & to be ready wͭ weapens for to fyght: & ſet watch- D men rounde aboute the hooſt. But when the aduerſaryes herde ẏ Jonathas was ready with his men to the battayll, they feared, & were afrayed in theyr hertes, and kyndled fyres in theyr tentes, brake vp, and gat thē awaye. Neuertheleſſe Jonathas and hys company knewe it not tyl the mornynge, for they ſawe the fyres burnynge.

Then Jonathas folowed vpon them, but he myght not ouertake them, for they were gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto the Arabians (whiche were called Zabadei) ſlewe thē, & toke theyr goodes. He proceaded further alſo, & came vnto Damaſcus, & went thorowe al ẏ countre. But Simō his brother toke his iourney and came to Aſcalon and to the next ſtrong holdes: departynge vnto Joppa, & wanne it. For he herde ẏ they wolde ſtande of Demetrius partye: wherfore he ſet mē of warre in the cytie, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home agayne/and called the elders of the people together: & deuyſed with thē for to buylde vp the ſtronge holdes in Jewry & the walles of Jeruſalē, to ſet vp an hye wal betwixte the caſtell & the cytie/ for to ſeparate it frō the cytie ẏ it myght be alone/and that men ſhulde neyther bye nor ſell in it.

Upon thys they came together for to buylde vp the cytie/and for ſo muche as the wall vpō the broke of the weſtſyde (called Caphenah) was fallen downe, they repaired it. And Simō ſet vp Adiadath i Sephelah, and made it ſtronge ſettynge portes & lockes vpō it. Nowe when † Tryphon purpoſed to rayne in Aſya/to be crowned/ and to ſleye the kynge Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas wolde not ſuffre hym/ but fyght agaynſt him. Wherfore he went aboute to take Jonathas/ and to kyll hym.

So he departed/ & came vnto Bethſan. E Then went Jonathas forth agaynſte hym to the battayll with fourtye thouſande choſen men/and came vnto Bethſan alſo. But when Tryphon ſawe that Jonathas came with ſo greate an Hooſt to deſtroye him/he was afrayed: and therfore he receaued hym honorably/commended hym vnto all hys frendes, and gaue him rewardes/and commaunded his men of warre to be as obediēt vnto hym as to him ſelfe.

And ſayde vnto Jonathas: why haſte thou cauſed this people to take ſuche trauayle/ſeynge there is no warre betwixt vs. Therfore ſende them home agayne/ & choſe certayne men to wayte vpon the/and come thou with me to Ptolomais: for I wyl geue it the/with the other ſtronge holdes/men of warre and theyr offycers: As for me I muſt F departe, this is onely the cauſe of my commynge. Jonathas beleued him/and dyd as he ſayde/puttynge awaye his hooſt/whiche went in to the lāde of Juda: He kept but.iij.M.by hym, wher of he ſent.ij.M.into Galilee, and one.M.went with hym ſelfe.

Nowe as ſoone as Jonathas entred in to Ptolamais, the cytezyns ſparred the gates of the cytie/and toke hym, and ſlewe all them with the ſwearde / that came in with hym. Then ſent Triphon an Hooſt of fote men and horſmen into Galilee and into the greate playne felde / to deſtroye all Jonathas company. But when they knewe that Jonathas was taken, and all they ſlayne that wayted vpon hym: they toke councell together / and came forth ready to the battayll. So when they whiche folowed vpon them/ſawe that it was a matter of lyfe, they turned backe agayne. As for the other, they went in to the lande of Juda peaceably, and bewayled Jonathas, and them that were with hym ryght ſore. And Iſraell made greate lamentacyon. Then all the Heathen that were rounde aboute thē, ſought to deſtroye them. For they ſayde: nowe haue they no captayne, nor any man to helpe them. Therfore let vs ouercome them, and rote out theyr name from amonge men.

¶ After Jonathas was takē, Symon is choſen captayne, of whom Triphon takynge hys chyldre and money for the redempcyon of Jonathas, kylleth hym and his chyldren. The graue of Jonathas. Triphon kylleth Antiochus, and poſſeſſeth the realme. Demetrius taketh truce with Symon: Symon wynneth Gaza, he poſſeſſeth the tower of Syon. he maketh his ſonne Jhon Captayne.

CAPI. XIII.

A NOwe when Simō herde ỹ Triphon gathered a great hoſt, to come into ỹ lande of Juda, & to deſtroye it, & ſawe that the people was in greate fearfulnes & care: He came vp to Jeruſalē, & gathered the people together, & gaue thē exhortaciō, ſaying: Ye knowe what great battayls I & my brethrē & my fathers houſe haue ſtrike for the law and ỹ Sanctuary, & what maner of troubles we haue ſene: thorow occaſion wherof * al my brethren are ſlayne for Iſraels ſake, & I am left alone. And nowe let not me ſpare myne owne life in any maner of trouble, for I am no better thē my brethrē: but wyl auēge my people and the Sanctuary, our chyldren & oure wyues: for all the Heythen are gathered together, to deſtroy vs of very malyce.

At theſe wordes the hertes of the people were kyndled together, ſo that they cryed wt a loude voyce, ſaying: Thou ſhalt be our captayne in ſteade of Judas & Jonathas thy brethrē, B ordre ỹ our battayle, & whatſoeuer ỹ cōmaūdeſt vs, we ſhal do it. So he gathered al the mē of warre, making haſt to fyniſh al the walles of Jeruſalē, whiche he made ſtronge roūde about. Then ſent he Jonathas ỹ ſōne of Abſalomus wt a freſh hoſte vnto Joppa / which droue thē out ỹ were in the caſtel, & remayned there hi ſelf. Triphon alſo remoued frō Ptolomais with a great army / to come into the lāde of Juda, & Jonathas with him in warde. And Simō pytched his tentes at Addꝰ before the playne felde.

But when Triphon knewe that Symon ſtode vp in ſteade of his brother Jonathas, & that he wolde warre againſt hī: he ſent meſſengers vnto hī, ſaying, Whereas we haue kept Jonathas thy brother, it is for money ỹ he is owyng in the kinges accōpt, concernynge the buſyneſſe that he had in hāde. Wherfore ſēde now an .C. talētes of ſyluer & his two ſonnes for ſuretye, that when he is lette forth he ſhall not forſake vs: & we ſhall ſende hym agayne. Neuertheles Symon knewe, that he diſſēbled in his wordes: yet cōmaūded he the money and chyldren to be deliuered vnto hī: leſt he ſhulde be the greater enemye agaynſt the people of Iſrael: and ſay: becauſe he ſent him not the money and the chyldren, therfore is Jonathas deed.

C So Simon ſent him the children and an hundreth talentes, but he diſſembled, & wold not let Jonathas go. Afterwarde came Triphon into the lande, to deſtroye it, and wente rounde aboute by the waye, that ledeth vnto Ador, But where ſoeuer they wente, thyther went Simon & hys hoſt alſo. Now they ỹ were in the caſtell, ſent meſſaūgers vnto Triphō that he ſhulde make haſt to come by the wyldernes, & to ſende thē vytayles. And Triphō made redy al his horſmē, to come that ſame night. Neuertheles it was a very gret ſnow ſo that he came not in galaadithim. And whē he drewe nye Baſchama, he ſlewe Jonathas & his ſonnes there, and then turned for to go home into his owne lande.

Then ſente Simon for to fet his brothers deed coarſe, & buried it in Modin his fathers cyte. So al Iſrael bewayled him wt great lamētacion, & mourned for hī very longe. And Simon made vpō the ſepulcre of his father and his brethrē, a buyldyng hye to loke vnto of fre ſtone behynde and before: & ſet vp ſeuē pillers, one agaynſt another (for his father / his mother & foure brethrē) and ſet great pillers roūde aboute, with armes vpon thē for a perpetuall memory, and carued ſhippes beſyde the armes: that they might be ſene of mē ſaylyng in the ſee. This ſepulcre whiche he made at Modin, ſtādeth yet vnto this daye.

D * Now as Triphon went forthe to walke with the yonge kyng Antiochus, he ſlew him trayterouſly / & raygned in his ſteade, crowned him ſelfe kynge of Aſia / and dyd muche euyl in the lande. Symon alſo buylte vp the caſtels in Jewry, makynge thē ſtronge with hye towres, great walles: portes and lockes and layed vp vytayles in the ſtrong holdes, And Symon choſe certayne mē, and ſent thē to kynge Demetrius: to deſyre hym, that he wolde diſcharge the lāde from al bōdage, for Triphon had ſpoiled it very ſore. Wherupō Demetrius the kyng anſwered hī, and wrote vnto him after this maner.

Demetrius the kynge ſendeth gretynge vnto Symon the hye preiſte his frende, with the elders and people of the Jewes. The golden crowne and precious ſtone that ye ſente vnto vs, haue we receyued: and are redye to make a ſtedfaſt peace with you / yee and to wryte vnto our offycers, for to releaſe you / concernynge the thynges wherin we made you fre: and the appoyntment that we make with you, ſhalbe fyrme and ſtable. The ſtronge holdes which ye haue buylded, ſhall be youre owne. As for any ouerſyghte or fawte commytted vnto thys daye / we forgeue it, and the crowne taxe that ye ought vs alſo. And where as was any other tribute ī Jeruſalem, it ſhal nowe be no trybute: and loke who are mete amonge you to be in our court, let them be wrytten vp, that there maye be peace betwyxte vs.

E Thus the yocke of the Heythen was takẽ from Iſrael, in the hundreth and ſeuentyeth yeare. And the people of the Iewes beganne to wryte in theyr letters & actes on thys maner * In the fyrſt yeare of Symon the hye prieſt, and prynce of the Iewes. 1.Mac.14.b

In thoſe dayes wẽt Simon vnto Gaza/ & beſeged it roũde aboute: where he ſet vp ordinaũce of warre. And wãne a towre, whiche he toke. So they that gat into the towre lept into the cite, whiche was in great a feare: In ſo muche that the people of the cytie rẽt their clothes, & clymmed vp vpon the walles wͭ theyr wyues & chyldren beſechynge Symon to be at one with them, ſayinge.

O rewarde vs not after our wyckednes, but be gracious vnto vs, and we ſhal do the ſeruyce. Then Simon for very pitye, wolde F fyght nomore agaynſt them/ but put thẽ out of the cytie, and cauſed the houſes(wherein the ymages were) to be clenſed: & ſo entred the cytie with Pſalmes of prayſe, gyuynge thanckes vnto the Lorde. So when he had caſt all abhominaciõs out of the cytie, he ſet ſuche men in it as kepte the law of God, and made the cyte ſtronge, & buylded a dwellyng place for him ſelfe.

Nowe when they in the caſtel at Ieruſalẽ were kept ſo ſtraytely, that they coulde not come forth into the coũtre, & might nether bie nor ſell: they were very hungrye, & many of them famiſhed to death: In ſomuch that they beſought Simõ to be at one wͭ them, whiche he graũted them. So he put them out from thence, & clenſed the caſtel from fylthyneſſe. And vpõ the .xxiij. daye of the ſecõde moneth in the. C.lxxi. yere they entred ĩto it wͭ thankeſgyuyng & braunches of palme trees, with harpes, crowdes, cymbales/ and lutes/ ſyngynge Pſalmes, and ſonges of prayſe vnto God/ for that the great enemy of Iſrael was ouercome.

And Symon ordayned, that the ſame day ſhulde be kepte euery yeare in gladneſſe, and made ſtronge the hyl of the temple that was beſyde the caſtell, where he dwelte hym ſelfe with his company. Simon alſo perceyuyng that Ihon his ſonne was a myghty man of armes, made him captayne of al the hoſtes & cauſed him to dwel at Gaza.

¶ Demetrius is ouercome of Arſaces. Symon beyng captayne there is great quyetneſſe in Iſrael. The couenaunt of frendſhyppe with the Romaynes & with the people of Sparta is renued.

CAPI. XIIII.

A IN the. C.lxxij. yeare gathered kynge Demetrius his hoſt, and departed vnto Media, to get hym helpe for to fyght agaynſte Triphon. Nowe when Arſaces the kynge of Perſia and Medea herde, that Demetrius was entred wͭ in his borders: he ſent out one of his prynces to take him alyue: & to brynge hym vnto hym. So he went and ſlewe Demetrius hoſte, toke him ſelfe, brought him to Arſaces, whiche kept hĩ inwarde. And al the lãde of Iuda was in reſt, ſo longe as Symõ lyued, for he ſought the wealth of his people, therfore were they glad to haue him for theyr ruler, & to do him worſhyppe alway.

Symon wãne the cytie of Ioppa alſo for an hauẽ towne, & made it an entraũce into the Iles of the ſee. He enlarged the borders of hys people, and cõquered them more lãde. He gathered vp many of their people that were priſoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethſura & the caſtel, whiche he clenſed frõ fylthynes, & there was no man that reſiſted hĩ. So B that euery mã tylled his groũde in peace, the lande of Iuda & the trees gaue theyr frute & encreace. The elders ſat all in iudgement/ & toke theyr deuice for the wealth of the lande: the yongemen put on worſhyp & harneſſe vpon them. He prouyded vytayles for the cyties, & made goodly ſtronge holdes of thẽ: ſo that the fame of his worſhyp was ſpoken of vnto the ende of the worlde. * For he made peace thorow out the lande, & Iſrael was ful of myrth and ioy. Leuit. 3.Regi

Euery man ſat vnder his vyne and fygg trees, & there was no mã to fray them away. There was none in the lãde to fyght againſt thẽ, for then the kynges were ouercome. He helped thoſe that were in aduerſite amonge his people, he was diligẽt to ſe the law kept: as for ſuch as were vngodly & wicked, he toke them away. He ſet vp the Sanctuary, & encreaſed the holy veſſels of the temple.

When the Romaynes and Sparcyans had gotten worde, that Ionathas was deed they were ryght sory. But when they herde that Simon his brother was made hie prieſt in his ſteade, & howe he had wonne the lande agayne with the cyties in it: they wrote vnto him in tables of braſſe, to renue the frẽdſhyp and bonde of loue, whiche they had made afore with Iudas and Ionathas hys brethrẽ. Whiche wrytynges were red before the congregacyon at Ieruſalem. 1.Ma and

C And this is the copye of the letters/ that the Sparcians ſent: The Senatours and citeſins of Sparta ſent gretyng vnto Simõ the great prieſt, with the elders/ prieſtes/ and the other people of the Iewes their brethrē: When your ambaſſytours that were ſent vnto our people, certifyed vs of your worſhyp/ honoure and proſperous wealth: we were glad of theyr cōmyng, and haue wrytten the earande whiche they ſpake before the councell of the people: namely/ that Numenius the ſonne of Antiochus. And Antipater the ſōne of Iaſon the Iewes embaſſitours are come vnto vs, for to renue the olde frendſhip with vs. Upon this the people cōſented, that the men ſhulde be honorably intreated, and that the copy of theyr earande ſhulde be wrytten in the ſpeciall bookes of the people, for a perpetual memory vnto the Sparcians: yee ⁊ that we ſhulde ſende a copy of the ſame vnto Symon the great Preſte.

D After this dyd Simon ſēde Numeniꝰ vnto Rome, with a golden ſhylde of a thouſāde poūde weight, to cōfyrme yͤ frēdſhyp wͭ thē: which when the Romaynes vnderſtode, they ſayde: what thāckes ſhal we recōpēce agayne vnto Simon ⁊ his chyldrē? For he hath ſtabliſhed his brethrē, ⁊ ouercome yͤ enemies of Iſrael. Wherfore, they graunted hī to be fre. And al this wrote yͤ Iewes ī tables of braſſe, ⁊ nayled it vnto the pyllers vpō the mounte Syon. The copy of the wrytynges is this.

Auguſt. The .xviij. day of the moneth * Elul in yͤ Clxxij. yere in the thirde yere of Symō yͤ hye preſt, in the great cōgregaciō the preſtes, rulers of the people, ⁊ elders of yͤ coūtre at Aſarame, were theſe wordes openly declared.

E For ſo much as there was much warre in our land, therfore Simon the ſonne of Matathias (come of the chyldren of Iareb) and his brethren, put them ſelues in parell/ and reſyſted the enemies of their people: yͭ theyr Sanctuary ⁊ lawe myght be mayntayned, and dyd theyr people great worſhype: Ionathas in lyke maner, after that he had gouerned his people ⁊ bene their hye preſte: dyed ⁊ lyeth buried beſyde his elders.

After that wold theyr enemyes haue troden their holy thynges vnder fote, deſtroyed their lande, and vtterly wayſted their Sanctuary. Then Symon withſtode them/ and fought for his people, ſpēt much of his owne money, weapened the valeaunt men of hys people, gaue them wages, made ſtronge the cyties of Iuda/ with Bethſura that lyeth vpon the borders of Iewry (where the ordynaūce of the enemies laye ſomtyme) ⁊ ſet Iewes there for to kepe it.

F He made faſt Ioppa alſo, which lieth vpō the ſee, ⁊ Gaza that bordreth vpon Azotus (where yͤ enemies dwelt afore) ⁊ there he ſet Iewes to kepe it: ⁊ what ſoeuer was mete for the ſubduyng of the aduerſaryes, yͭ layed he therin. Nowe whē the people ſawe the noble actes of Simō, ⁊ what worſhyp he purpoſed to do for thē, his godly behauour, ⁊ faythfulnes which he kept vnto thē, ⁊ how he ſought by al wayes yͤ wealth of his people, becauſe he dyd al thꝭ, therfore they choſe hī to be their prince ⁊ hye preſt. And in his tyme they ꝓſpered wel by hī, ſo yͭ the Heythen were takē out of their lāde: ⁊ they alſo whiche were in the citie of Dauid at Ieruſalē in the caſtel (where they wēt out ⁊ defyled al thinges that were aboute the Sāctuary, ⁊ did great harme vnto clēlynes) ⁊ Symon put men of the Iewes in it, for the defence of the lande and cytie, ⁊ ſet vp the walles of Ieruſalem.

G And kyng Demetrius cōfyrmed hī in his hye preſthod, made hī hꝭ frēde, ⁊ dyd hī great worſhyp. For he herd that the Romaynes called the Iewes their frendes, louers ⁊ brethrē: how honorably they receyued Simōs embaſſitours: how the Iewes ⁊ preſtes cōſented yͭ he ſhulde be theyr prince ⁊ hye preſt perpetually (tyl God rayſed vp the true ꝓphete) ⁊ yͭ he ſhuld be their captaine, to care for the Sāctuary, ⁊ to ſet officers vpō the workes therof, ouer yͤ lāde, ouer the weapēs, ouer the houſes of defence: to make prouiſion for the holy thinges, ⁊ to be obeyed of euery mā, ⁊ all the wrytynges of the lande to be made in his name: yͭ he ſhulde be clothed in purple ⁊ gold, ⁊ that it ſhuld be lawful for none of the people nor preſtes to breake any of theſe thynges, to wtſtande his wordes, nor to cal any cōgregacion in the lande without him: that he ſhulde be clothed in purple, ⁊ weare a colar of gold: And if there were any which diſobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, yͭ he ſhulde be punyſhed.

So all the people conſented to alowe Simon, and to do accordynge to theſe wordes: Symon alſo him ſelfe toke it vpon hym, and was cōtent to be the hye Preſt, the captayne and prince of the Iewes and preſtes/ and to gouerne them all. And they commaunded to make this wrytynge in tables of braſſe, and faſten it vnto the compaſſe of the Sanctuary in an open place: and to lay vp a copy of the ſame in the treaſury, that Symon ⁊ his poſterite myght haue it.

¶ Antiochus maketh a couenaunt of frendſhyppe with Symon, and Tryphon is perſecuted. The Romaynes wryte letters vnto kynges and nacyons in the defence of the Iewes. Antiochus refuſynge the helpe that Symon ſente hym, breaketh his couenaunt.

CAP. XV.

A MOreouer, kyng Antiochus the ſonne of Demetrius ſente letters frō the Iles of the ſee, vnto Symon the hye preſte & prynce of the Iewes, & to all the people cōtaynynge theſe wordes: Antiochus yͤ kyng ſendeth gretyng vnto Symon the hye preſt & to the people of the Iewes. For ſo muche as certayne wycked mē haue gotten yͤ kyngdome of oure progenitors, I am purpoſed to chalēge yͤ realme agayne, and to reſtore it to the olde eſtate

Wherfore I haue gathered a great hoſt, & B made ſhippes of warre, yͭ I may go thorowe the coūtre, & be auenged of thē which haue deſtroyed our lande, & waſted many cities ī my realme. And therfore now I make yͤ fre alſo frō al the tributes, wherof al kīges my progenitours haue diſcharged the & frō other cuſtomes (where frō they haue releaſed yͤ) whatſoeuer they be: Ye I gyue the leaue to ſmyte money of thyne owne wᵗin thy lande. As for Ieruſalē, I wil that it be holy & fre: & al the wepens & houſes of defence which yͧ haſte buylded & kepeſt in thyn hāds, ſhalbe thine. Wher as any thynge is or ſhalbe owynge vnto the kyng, I forgeue it the, from this tyme forth for euermore. And when we haue optayned our kyngedome, we ſhal do the, thy people & the temple great worſhyp: ſo yͭ your honoure ſhalbe knowē thorow out the whole worlde.

In the .Clxxiiij. yeare went Antiochus into his fathers lāde, & al the mē of warre came together vnto hī, ſo yͭ fewe were lefte wᵗ Tryphon. So the kyng Antiochꝰ folowed vpon him, but he fled vnto Dora, which lyeth by the ſee ſyde: for he ſawe yͭ there was myſchefe cōmyng vnto him, & that his hoſte had forſaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an hundreth & twentye thouſande men of armes vpon fote, & eyght thouſande horſmen. So he cōpaſed the citie rounde aboute, & the ſhippes came by the ſee. Thus they vexed the cytie by lande & by water, in ſo muche that they ſuffred no man to go in nor out.

1.Macha. viii.b. In the meane ſeaſon came* Numenius (& they that had bene wᵗ him) from the cite of Rome, hauing letters wryttē vnto the kynges C & prynces, wherin were cōtayned theſe wordes: Lucius the Conſul of Rome ſendeth gretyng vnto Ptolomy the kyng. The embaſſitours of the Iewes our frēdes being ſent frō Simon the hye preſt & from the people of the Iewes, came vnto vs for to renue the old frēdſhyp, & bōde of loue, brought a ſhylde of gold being a thouſād poūde, which we were cōtēt to receyue of them. Wherfore we thought it good to wryte vnto the kynges and prouyncies, to do them no harme, nor to take parte agaynſt them, their cyties nor countreys, nether to mayntene their enemies agaynſt thē. If there be any wycked perſonnes therfore fled from their countre vnto you, delyuer thē vnto Symon the hye preſte, that he may punyſh them accordyng to theyr owne lawe.

The ſame wordes wrote the Romaynes alſo vnto Demetrius the kynge, to Attalus, Araba, Arſaces & to al regiōs: as Sāſanes, to thē of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Ciciō, Carea, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Alicarnaſſū, & to the Rhodes, D to Faſelis, Coo, Sida, Aradw, Gortina, Gnydū, to Cypres, & to Cyren. And of euery lettre they ſēt a copye to Simon the hye preſt & to the people of the Iewes. So Antiochus yͤ kyng brought his hoſte vnto Dora yͤ ſecōde tyme, to take it: where he made diuers ordinaūces of warre, & kepte Tryphō in, yͭ he ſhulde not come forth. Then ſent Symon to Antiochus two thouſāde choſen men to help him wᵗ gold, ſyluer, & other plentuous geere: Neuertheleſſe, he wolde not receyue thē, but brake al the couenaunt which he made wᵗ Simon afore, and wᵗdrewe him ſelfe from him.

He ſēt Athenobius alſo a frende of his vnto Simō, for to reaſon wᵗ him, ſaying: Ye wᵗholde fro me Ioppa & Gaza (with the caſtel yͭ is at Ieruſalē) which are cities of my realme whoſe borders ye haue deſtroied, & done great euyl in the lāde, hauyng the dominaciō in many other places of my kyngdome. Wherfore delyuer now yͤ cities which ye haue takē, wᵗ yͤ trybutes of the places yͭ ye haue rule vpon without yͤ borders of Iewry: Or els geue me v.C. talentes of ſiluer, yee and for the harme that ye haue done in yͤ cytyes & for the trybutes of the ſame, other fyue hundreth talētes. E If no, we ſhal come and fyght agaynſt you.

So Athenobiꝰ the kynges frēde came to Ieruſalē, & when he ſawe the great worſhyp & honour of Symō in golde, ſiluer & ſo great plēty of ornamentes: he marueled, & tolde Symon as yͤ king cōmaūded hī. Then anſwered Symon & ſayd vnto hī. * As for vs, we haue nether takē other mens lāds, nor wᵗhold thē, but onely our fathers heritage, which our enemies had vnrighteouſly in poſſeſſion a certayne tyme. This herytage of oure fathers haue we chalenged in proceſſe of tyme. And where as yͧ cōplaneſt cōcernyng Ioppa & Gaza, they did gret harme to our people & in our lāde, yet wyl we gyue an .C. talētes for them.

Neuertheles Athenobius anſwered hī not one word, but turned agayne wrathfully vnto the kyng, & tolde him al theſe wordes, & the great dignite of Symon, with al yͭ he had ſene, & the king was very angry. In the meane tyme fled Tryphō by ſhyp vnto Orthoſaida. Then the kyng made Cendebeus captayne of the ſee coaſt, & gaue hī an hoſt of fote men & horſmen, cōmaundyng hym to remoue the hoſt towarde Iewry, & to buylde vp ẏ cyte of Cedron, to make vp the portes, & to warre agaynſt the people of the Iewes. As for ẏ kyng hym ſelfe, he folowed vpon Tryphō. So Cendebeus came vnto Iamnia, & begāne to vexe the people, to treade downe Iewry, to take ẏ people preſoners, to ſley them, & to buylde vp Cedron: where he ſet horſmen & other men of warre, that they myght come forth & go thorowe the ſtretes of Iewry, lyke as the kyng had cōmaunded hym. u.16.b

¶ Cendebeus the Captayne of Antiochus hooſte is put to flyght of the ſonnes of Symon. Ptolomeus the ſōne of Abobus kylleth Symon and his two ſonnes at a banket. Jhon kylleth them that lye in wayte for his lyfe.

CAPI. XVI.

A Then came Jhon vp from * Gaza, & told Symon his father, what Cendebe⁹ had done among their people. Upon this called Symō two of his eldeſt ſōnes, Judas and Jhon, & ſaid vnto them, I & my brethren and my fathers houſe, haue euer frō our youth vp vnto this daye, foughten agaynſte the enemyes of Iſrael, and God gaue vs good fortune to delyuer Iſrael oft tymes. And now for ſo muche as I am olde, be ye in ſteade of me and my brother, to go forth and fyght for our people, and the help of God be with you. So he choſe .xx. M. fyghtyng men of the cōtre with horſmen alſo, whiche wente forth agaynſt Cendebeus, and reſted at Modin: ac.3.f

B In the mornynge they aroſe, and went in to the playne felde: and beholde, a myghtye great hoſt came agaynſt them, bothe of fote men and horſmen. Nowe was there a water broke betwyxt them, and Jhon remoued the hoſt towarde them. And when he ſawe that the people was afrayed to go ouer the water broke, he went ouer fyrſt hym ſelfe: & the men ſeinge this, folowed hym.

Then Jhon ſet his horſmen and fote men in ordre, the one by ẏ other, for their enemyes horſmen were very many. But when they blew vp the preſtes trōpettes, Cendebeus fled with his hoſt, wherof many were ſlayne, and the remnaunt gat them to theyr ſtrong holdꝫ Judas alſo Jhons brother was wounded at the ſame tyme. And Jhon folowed ſtyl vpon the enemyes, tyll he came to Cedrō, * whiche he buylded. The enemyes fled alſo vnto the towres that were in the feldes of Azotus, and thoſe dyd Jhon burne vp. Thus there were ſlayne .ii. M. men of them, & Jhon turned agayne peaceably into Iewry. a.15.e

And in the felde of Jericho was Ptolomy the ſonne of Abobus made captayne: whiche becauſe he had aboundaunce of ſyluer and golde (for he had maried the daughter of Symō the hye preſt) waxed proude in his mynde, and thought to conquere the lande, ymagenyng falſhed agaynſt Symon and his ſones to deſtroye them. Now as Symon was goyng aboute thorowe the cyties, that were in the countre of Iewry, and caring for them: he came downe to Jericho with Matathias and Judas his ſonnes, in the .Clxxvij. yere in the .xj. Moneth called * Sabat. Then Ptolomy the ſonne of Abobus receiued them (but with diſceyte) into a ſtronge houſe of hys called Doch, which he had buylded, where he made them a banket. C Januarij.

So when Symon and his ſonnes were mery and had dronken well, Ptolomy ſtode vp with his men (whom he had hyd there) & toke their weapens, entred into the banket houſe, and ſlewe Symon with hys two ſonnes, and certayne of his ſeruauntes. Suche great vnfaythfulneſſe dyd Ptolomy in Iſrael, and recōpenſed euyl for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy the ſame vnto kynge Antiochus, requyryng hym, that he ſhulde ſende hym an hoſt to helpe hym: and ſo ſhulde he delyuer hym the lande, with the cyties and trybutes of the ſame. He ſent other men alſo vnto Gaza, for to take Jhon: and wrote vnto the captaynes to come to hym, and he ſhulde gyue them ſyluer, golde and rewardes. And to Jeruſalem he ſent other, to take it, and the Sanctuary. D

Then ranne there one before, and tolde Jhon in Gaza, that his father & his brethren were ſlayne, & howe that Ptolomy had ſente to ſleye hym alſo When Jhon herde this, he was ſore abaſhed, and layed handes of them that were come to deſtroye hym, and ſlewe them: for he knewe, that they went aboute to kyll hym.

As for other thynges concernyng Jhon: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued hym ſelfe manfully) of the buyldyng of walles which he made, and other of his dedes: They are wrytten in the cronicles of his preſthode, frō the time forth that he was made hye preſt after hys father.

¶ An Epyſtle of the Jewes that dwelt at Jeruſalem ſente vnto them which dwelt in Egypt, wherin they exhorte them to geue thankes for the death of Antiochus. Of the fyre that was hyd in the pyt. The prayer of Nehemias.

CAPI. I.

A THe brethren of the Jewes which be at Jeruſalem, and in the lande of Jewry, wyſh vnto thoſe brethren of the Jewes that are thorowe out Egypte: good fortune, health, and peace.

God be gracious vnto you/ and thyncke vpon his couenaunt that he made with Abraham Iſaac and Jacob his faythfull ſeruaūtes:* and gyue you all ſuch an herte, that ye may loue and ſerue hym, yee and perfourme his wyll with an whole herte and of a wyllig mynde: He open your hertes in his lawe and in his commaundementes/ ſende you peace: heare your prayers/ be at one w̄ you, and neuer forſake you in tyme of trouble. This is here our prayer for you. Deut.xx.5

What tyme as Demetrius raygned, ī the .C.lxix. yeare, we Jewes wrote vnto you in the trouble and vyolēce that came vnto vs. In thoſe yeares/ after that Jaſon departed out of the holy lande ⁊ kyngdome/ they brēt vp the portes/ ⁊ ſhed innocent bloude. Then made we our prayer vnto ȳ lord, ⁊ were herd: we offred: ⁊ lyghted the cādels, ſettyng forth cakes ⁊ bred. * And nowe come ye vnto the feaſt of tabernacles in the moneth* Caſleu. Leui.23.f Nouember

B In the .C.lxxxviii. yeare/ the people that was at Jeruſalem and in Jewry/ the councell and Judas hym ſelfe/ ſent this wholeſome ſalutacyon vnto Ariſtobolus kynge Ptolomys maiſter/ which came of the generacyō of the annoynted preſtes: and to the Jewes that were in Egypte: in ſo muche as God hath delyuered vs from greate parels/ we thancke hym hyghlye. In that we reſyſted ſo myghty a kynge. And why, he brought men out of Perſes by heapes/ to fyght agaynſte vs/ and the holye cytie. For as he was in Perſis (namely/ the Captayne with the greate hoſt) he peryſhed in the temple of Naneas/ beynge diſceyued thorowe the deuyſe of Naneas preſtes. For as he was purpoſed to haue dwelt there. Antiochus and hys frendes came thyther/ to receyue muche moneye for a dowry. So when Naneas preſtes had layed forth thys moneye/ ye entred with a ſmal company into the cōpaſſe of the temple, ⁊ ſo they ſhut the temple.

C Nowe whē Antiochus entred by openyng the preuye intraunce of the tēple, the preſtes ſtoned the captayne to death, hewed them in peces that were with hym/ ſmote of theyr heades/ and threw them out. In al thynges god be prayſed/ whiche hath delyuered the wycked into our handes.

Where as we nowe are purpoſed to kepe the puryfycacyon of the temple vpō the .xxv. daye of the moneth Caſleu, we thought neceſſarye to certifye you therof: that ye alſo myght* kepe the tabernacles feaſt day/ and the day of the fyre, which was geuen vs whē Nehemias offred, after that he had ſet vp ȳ temple ⁊ the aulter. For what tyme as our fathers were led away vnto Perſis, the preſtes (which then ſought the honour of God) toke the fyre preuely from the aulter, ⁊ hyd it in a valley, where as was a depe dry pyt: ⁊ therin they kepte it, ſo that the place was vnknowē to euery man. Nowe after many yeares whē it pleaſed God, that Nehemyas ſhuld be ſent from the kynge of Perſia,* he ſent the chylders chyldrē of thoſe preſtes (whiche had hyd the fyre) to ſeke it. And as they tolde vs they
D founde no fyre/ but thycke water. Then cōmaunded he them to drawe it vp, ⁊ to bryng it hym, and the offringes withal. Now when the ſacrifices were layed on and ordred/ the preſt Nehemias commaunded to ſprynkle them and the wod with water. When thys was done/ and the tyme come that the Sūne ſhone, whiche afore was hyd in the cloude: there was a great fyre kyndled. In ſo muche that euery man marueled. Nowe all the preſtes prayed, whyle the ſacryfyce was a makynge. Jonathas prayed fyrſt, and the other gaue anſwere.

And Nehemias prayer was after this maner: O Lorde God maker of al thinges, ȳ fearful ⁊ ſtronge, thou ryghteous, ⁊ mercyful, ȳ that art onely a gracious kyng, onely liberall, onely iuſt, Almyghtye/ ⁊ euerlaſtynge/ thou that delyuereſt Iſrael from all trouble, thou that haſt choſen the fathers, ⁊ halowed them: receyue the offeryng for the whole people of Iſrael, preſerue thyne ownē porcion/ ⁊ halowe it. Gather thoſe together/ that are ſcatred abrode from vs: delyuer them that are vnder the Heythens bondage/ loke vpō them/ which are deſpiſed/ and abhorred/ that the Heythen maye knowe/ and ſe/ howe that thou art oure God: Punyſhe them that oppreſſe/ and proudely put vs to diſhonoure. *Set thy people agayne in thy holy place/ *

lyke as Moyſes hath ſpoken.

E And the preſtes ſonge Pſalmes of thankeſgeuyng, ſo longe as the ſacrifice endured. Nowe when the ſacrifice was brente, Nehemias commaunded the greate ſtones to be ſprynckled with the reſydue of the water.* Whiche when it was done, there was kyndled a flamme of them alſo: but it was conſumed thorowe the lyght, that ſhyned from the aulter. So when this matter was knowen / it was tolde the kynge of Perſia / that in the place where the preſtes / whiche were led awaye / had hyd fyre / there appeared water in ſteade of fyre / and that Nehemias and hys company had puryfied the ſacrifices wythall. Then the kynge conſyderynge and ponderynge the matter diligẽtly, made him a tẽple to proue the thynge that was done. And when he founde it ſo in dede / he gaue the preſtes many gyftes and dyuers rewardes: yee, he toke them with hys owne hand and gaue thẽ. And Nehemias called ẏ ſame place Nephthar, whiche is as much to ſaye, as a clenſynge: but many men call it Nephi.

¶ Howe Jeremy hydde the tabernacle, the Arcke, and the aulter in the hyl. Of the.v.bokes of Jaſon contryued in one.

CAPI. II.

A IT is founde alſo in the wrytinges of Jeremy the prophete, that he cõmaunded them which were caried away, to take fire: as it is ſayd afore.* He cõmauded thẽ alſo, that they ſhulde not forget the law and cõmaundemẽtes of the Lord, & that they ſhulde not erre in theyr myndes, when they ſe Images of ſiluer and golde with theyr ornamentes. Theſe & ſuch other thinges cõmaunded he them, and exhorted them ꝥ they ſhulde not let the law of God go out of their hertes.

It is wrytten alſo howe the Prophete (at the commaundement of God) charged them to take the Tabernacle / and the arcke wyth them: and he went forth vnto the mou̅tayne, where Moyſes clymed vp,* & ſawe the herytage of God. And when Jeremy came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layed the tabernacle / the arke and ẏ aulter of incenſe / and ſo ſtopped the hole. There came certaine men together alſo folowyng hym, to marcke B the place, but they coulde not fynde it. Whiche when Jeremye perceyued / he reproued them, ſayinge: As for that place / it ſhalbe vnknowen / vntyll the tyme that God gather his people together agayne / and receyue thẽ vnto mercy. Then ſhal God ſhewe thẽ theſe thiges, & the maieſtye of the Lorde ſhall appeare, and ẏ cloude alſo lyke as it was ſhewed vnto Moyſes, and lyke as where Salomon deſyred that ẏ place might be ſanctifyed and it was ſhewed him.

For he beynge a wyſe man, handled honorably and wyſely, offerynge vnto God in the halowynge of the temple, when it was fyniſhed.* And lyke as whẽ Moſes prayed vnto the Lorde, the fyre came downe from heauẽ / and conſumed the burntofferynge: Euen ſo prayed Salomon alſo,* and the fyre came downe from heauen / and cõſumed the burnt offerynge. And Moyſes ſayd: because the ſinofferynge was not eaten, therfore it is conſumed. In lyke maner Salomon kepte the dedycacion (or halowyng) eyght dayes.

2.Par.7.a

C In the Annotacions and wrytynges of Jeremy, were theſe thynges put alſo and how he made a lybrary: and how he gathered out of all countrees the bokes of the prophetes, of Dauyd, the epyſtles of the kynges, and of the preſentes. Euen ſo Judas alſo / loke what he lerned by experyence of warre / and ſuche thynges as hathe happened vnto vs, he gathered them all together / and ſo we haue them by vs. If ye nowe deſyre to haue the ſame / ſende ſome body to fetch thẽ vnto you. Where as we then are aboute to celebrate the puryficacyon / we haue written vnto you. Therfore ye ſhall do wel, yf ye kepe the ſame dayes. We hope alſo, that the God (whiche delyuered hys people, and gaue thẽ al the herytage, kingdome, preſthode & Sanctuary that he promyſed them in the lawe) ſhall ſhortly haue mercy vpon vs, and gather vs together from vnder the heauen into his holy place: for he hath ſaued vs from great parels, and hath clenſed the place.

Deut.xxx.a

D As concernynge Judas Machabeus, and his brethren, the puryfycacyon of the greate temple / the dedycacion of the aulter / yee / and of the warres that concerne noble Antiochus, and * Eupator his ſonne, of ẏ ſhynynges that came downe from heauen vpon thoſe / which manfully defended the Jewes. For thoughe they were but fewe / yet defended they the whole lande / droue awaye the enemyes hoſt, recouered agayne the tẽple / that was ſpoken of thorowe out all the worlde / delyuered the cytye / doynge theyr beſt / that the lawe of the Lord whiche was put downe / myght with all tranquylyte be reſtored agayne vnto the Lorde, that was ſo mercyfull vnto them. As touchynge Jaſon alſo of Cyren, we haue vndertaken compendiouſly to bryng into one boke, the thinges that were comprehended of hym in fyue. For we conſyderynge ſyderyng the multitude of the bokes, ⁊ howe harde it ſhulde be foꝛ thē that wold medle wͭ ſtoꝛies ⁊ actes (and that becauſe of ſo dyuers matters) haue vnder takē ſo to cōpꝛehend the ſtoꝛies: yͭ ſuch as are diſpoſed to rede, myght haue pleaſure ⁊ paſtyme therin: ⁊ that they which are diligēt in ſuch thinges, myght the better thinke vpō them: yee and that whoſoeuer rede them, myght haue pꝛofyte therby.

1.Mac.vi.a

C Neuertheles, we our ſelues that haue medled with this matter foꝛ the ſhoꝛtnyng of it / haue taken no ſmal labour, but great diligēce, watchīges, ⁊ trauayle. Lyke as they that make a feaſt, wolde fayne do other men pleaſure: Euē ſo we alſo (foꝛ many mēs ſakes) are very wel cōtent to take the labour / where as we may ſhoꝛtly cōpꝛehende, the thinges that other men haue truly wꝛytten.

For he yͭ buyldeth an houſe a newe / muſte pꝛouyde foꝛ many thynges, to yͤ whole buyldynge: but he that paynteth it afterwarde / ſeketh but onely what is comly / mete and cōueniēt to garnyſh it withall. Euen ſo do we alſo in lyke maner. And why? He that begynneth to wꝛyte a ſtoꝛy foꝛ yͤ fyrſt, muſt with his vnderſtandyng gather the matter together, ſet his woꝛdes in oꝛdꝛe / and diligently ſeke out of euery parte: But he that afterwarde wyl ſhoꝛten it / vſeth few woꝛdes / ⁊ toucheth not the matter at yͤ largeſt. Let thys be ſufficient foꝛ a Pꝛologe / nowe wyll we begynne to ſhewe the matter: foꝛ it is but a fooliſhe thyng to make a longe Pꝛologe / ⁊ to be ſhoꝛt in the ſtoꝛye it ſelfe.

¶ Of the honoure done vnto the temple by the kynges of the Gentyles. Symon bewrayeth what treaſure is in the temple. Heliodorus is ſent to take them awaye. He is beaten of God, and healed at the prayer of Onias.

CAPI. III.

A What tyme as the holy cytie was inhabited in al peace ⁊ wealth / and when the lawes were yet very well kepte (Foꝛ ſo was it oꝛdayned by Onias the hie pꝛeſt and other godly mē / that were enemies to wyckednes)

i.Mach.i.c It came therto / * that euen the kynges ⁊ pꝛinces them ſelues dyd the place great woꝛſhyp ⁊ garnyſhed the temple with great gyftes: In ſo muche that Seleucus kynge of Aſia ii.Mach.iii of his owne rentes / bare al the coſtes belongyng to the ſeruice of the offerynges. Then * Simon of the tribe of Ben Jamin / a ruler of the temple, laboured to woꝛke ſome miſchefe in the cytie: but the hie pꝛeſte reſyſted him.

2.Mac.iii.b Neuertheleſſe when he myght not ouercome Onias / he gat him to * Appollonius yͤ ſonne of Therſa (which then was chefe Loꝛd in Celoſyꝛia and Phenices) and tolde hym, yͭ the treaſury in Jeruſalem was ful of innumerable money / ⁊ how that the cōmō goodes (whiche belonged not vnto the offerynges) were exceadyng great alſo: yee and howe it were poſſible / yͭ all theſe myght come vnder the kynges power.

B Nowe when Appolonius had ſhewed the kynge of the money / as it was tolde hym: the king called foꝛ Heliodoꝛus hys ſtewarde ⁊ ſent him with a commaundement / to bꝛing hym the ſame money. Immediatly Heliodoꝛus toke his iourney / but vnder a coloure / as though he wolde go thoꝛowe Celoſyꝛia and Phenices to viſet the cities, but his purpoſe was to fulfyll the kynges pleaſure. So when he camē to Jeruſalem, and was louyngly receyued of the hye pꝛeſte into the cyte: he tolde what was determyned cōcernynge the money, ⁊ ſhewed the cauſe of his cōmyng: he aſked alſo / yf it were ſo in dede. Then yͤ hye pꝛeſt told him, yͭ there was ſuch money layed vp foꝛ the vpholdyng of wyddowes ⁊ fatherleſſe chyldꝛē, and howe that a certayne of it belōged vnto Hyꝛcanus Tobias a noble mā and that of al the money (which yͤ wycked Simō had bewꝛaied) there were .iiii. C. talentes of ſyluer, ⁊ .ii. C. of golde: ye ⁊ that it were vnpoſſibell foꝛ thoſe mens meanynge to be diſceyued, that had layed vp theyꝛ money in the place and temple (which is had in woꝛſhippe thoꝛowe yͤ whole woꝛlde) foꝛ yͤ mayntaynaūce and honoure of the ſame. Where vnto Heliodoꝛus anſwered, that the kynge had commaunded hym in any wyſe / to bꝛynge him in the money.

C So at the daye appoynted / Heliodoꝛus entred into the temple to oꝛdꝛe this matter. But there was no ſmall feare thoꝛowe out yͤ whole cytie. The Pꝛeſtes fell downe befoꝛe the aulter in theyꝛ veſtymentes / and called vnto heauen vpon him, * which had made a lawe concernynge ſtuffe geuen to kepe that they ſhulde be ſafely pꝛeſerued, foꝛ ſuch as cōmytte them vnto kepyng. Then who ſo had loked the hye pꝛeſte in the face, it wolde haue greued his herte: Foꝛ his countenaunce and the chaungynge of hys colour / declared the inwarde ſoꝛowe of his mynde. The mā was all in heuyneſſe, and his body in feare. Wherby they that loked vpon him, might perceiue the grefe of his hert. The other people alſo came out of their houſes by heapes vnto the cōmō pꝛaier, becauſe the place was like to come into confuſion. The wemē came together thoꝛowe the ſtretes, with heayre clothes about theyꝛ bꝛeſtes:

The vyꝛgyns alſo that were kept in, rāne to Onias, ſome ĩ the walles, other ſome loked out of the wyndowes: yee they all helde vp theyr handes towarde heauen, ⁊ prayed. A myſerable thynge was it, to loke vpõ the comen people, ⁊ the hye preſt beinge in ſuch trouble. But they beſought almyghty god, that the goodes which were commytted vnto them, myghte be kepte whole, for thoſe ẏ had delyuered thẽ vnto theyr kepynge. Neuertheles the thyng that Heliodorus was determyned to do, that perfourmed he in the ſame place, he hym ſelfe perſonally beynge about the treaſury wyth hys men of warre. But ẏ ſpryte of almyghty God ſhewed him ſelfe openly, ſo that al they which preſumed to obeye Helyodorus, fell thorow the power of God into a great fearfulneſſe and drede. *For there appeared vnto them an horſe, wᵗ a terrible man ſytting vpon hym, decked in goodly araye, ⁊ the horſe ſmote at Heliodorus wᵗ hys fore fete. Nowe he that ſat vpon the horſe / had harneſſe of golde vpon hym.

Morouer there appeared .ij. fayre ⁊ beutyfull yõge men in goodly aray, which ſtode by him, ſcourged hym of both the ſydes, and gaue hym many ſtrypes without ceaſſinge. E *With that fel Heliodorus ſodẽly vnto the grounde. So they toke him vp (beinge compaſed aboute wyth great darckneſſe) ⁊ bare hym oute vpon a bere. Thus he that came wyth ſo many runners and men of warre into the ſayde treaſury, was borne out, whereas no man myght helpe him: ⁊ ſo the power of God was manyfeſt and knowne. He laye ſtyll domme alſo by the power of God, deſtitute of all hope ⁊ lyfe. And they prayſed the lord, that he had ſhewed his power vpõ his place and tẽple, which a lytle afore was full of feare ⁊ trouble: and that thorow the reuelacyon of the almightie Lorde it was fylled wyth ioye and gladneſſe.

Thẽ certaine of Heliodorus frẽdes prayed Onias / that in all haſt he wolde call vpon God, to graũte him his lyfe / which was geuynge vp the gooſt. So the hye preſt conſidered the matter, and leſt the kyng ſhuld ſuſpecte that the Iewes had done Heliodorus ſome euyll, he offred an health offerynge for him. Now when the hie Preſt had opteined hys peticion, the ſame yonge men in ẏ ſame clothyng appeared, ⁊ ſtode beſyde Heliodorus, ſaying: F Thancke Onias the hye preſt / for ẏ Lorde*, for his ſake hath graũted ẏ thy lyfe: therfore ſeyng ẏ god hath ſcourged the geue hym prayſe ⁊ thankes / and ſhewe euery man his might ⁊ power. And whẽ they had ſpoke theſe wordes, they appeared nomore.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made great vowes vnto him, which had graũted him his lyfe, thãcked Onias, toke his hoſt / ⁊ went agayne to the kynge. Then teſtified he vnto euery man of the great workes of God, ẏ he had ſene with his eyes. And whẽ the kinge aſked Heliodorus who were mete to be ſent yet once agayne to Ieruſalem, he ſayde: yf thou haſt any enemy or aduerſary vnto thy realme, ſende him thyther, ⁊ thou ſhalt haue him puniſhed, if he eſcape wᵗ his lyfe: for in ẏ place (no doute) there is a ſpeciall power ⁊ workyng of god. For he ẏ dwelleth ĩ heauẽ, viſiteth ⁊ defẽdeth ẏ place: ⁊ al that come to do it harme, he puniſheth ⁊ plagẽth thẽ. This is now the matter cõcerning Heliodorus, ⁊ the kepynge of the treſury at Ieruſalem.

CAPI. IIII.

A THys Symon nowe* (of whõ we ſpake afore) being a bewrayer of the moneye and of hys owne naturall countre, reported the worſte of Onias: as though he had moued Helyodorus vnto thys, ⁊ as though he had bene a brynger vp of euyl. Thꝰ was he not aſhamed to cal hĩ an enemy of ẏ realme that was ſo faythful an ouerſeer ⁊ defender of the cite ⁊ of his people: yee ⁊ ſo feruent in the law of God. But whẽ the malice of Symon increaſed ſo farre, ẏ thorow his frẽdes there were certayne manſlaughters cõmitted: Onias cõſydered the parell that myght come thorow this ſtrife, ⁊ how that Appolonius (namely the chefe Lorde in Celoſiria ⁊ Phenices) was al ſet vpõ tyranny, ⁊ Symõs malice increaſed the ſame: he gat hĩ to the kyng, not as an accuſer of the cytezins, but as one ẏ by hĩ ſelfe intẽded the cõmõ wealth of the whole multitude. For he ſawe it was not poſſible to lyue in peace, nether Simon to leaue of frõ his folyſhneſſe, except ẏ kĩge dyd loke therto. B But after the deeth of Seleucus, when Antiochus (whiche is called ẏ noble) toke ẏ kyngdome: Iaſon the brother of Onias laboured to be hye preſte. For he came vnto the king, ⁊ promiſed him thre hundreth ⁊ .lx. talẽtes of ſiluer, ⁊ of the other rẽtes .lxxx. talentes. Beſides this he promiſed hĩ yet an .C. ⁊ .L. if he might haue ẏ ſcole of the children, ⁊ that he myght cal them of Ieruſalem Antiochians. Which when the king had graũted, ⁊ he had gotten ẏ ſuperiorite / he begãne immediatly to drawe his kinſmẽ to the cuſtome of the Heathen, put downe ẏ

John yͤ father of Eupolemus, which was ſent ambaſſytour vnto Rome, for to make yͤ of other neceſſary matters. But he (when he was prayſed of the kyng for magnifying of his power) turned yͤ preſthod vnto him ſelf, laying vp. iij. C. talentes of ſyluer for Jaſon.

So whã he had gotten cõmaundementes fro the king (he came hauing nothing that becõmeth a preſt, but bearyng the ſtomacke of a cruel tyraũt & yͤ wrath of a wylde brute beeſt. * Thẽ Jaſon (which had diſceued his owne brother) ſeyng that he him ſelfe was begyled alſo was fayne to fle into the lande of the Ammonites, & Menelaus gat the dominion.
But as for the money that he had promyſed vnto yͤ kyng, he dyd nothing therin / when Soſtratus the ruler of the caſtell requyred it of him. For Soſtratus was yͤ mã that gathered the cuſtomes: wherfore they were both called before yͤ kinge. Thus was Menelaus put out of the preſthode, & Lyſimachus his brother came in his ſteade. Soſtratus alſo was made lord of the Cyprians.
F It happened in the meane ſeaſon, that the Tharſians & Mallotiãs made inſurrectiõ, becauſe they were geuen for a preſent vnto kyng Antiochus cõcubyne. Then came the kyng in all the haſte, to ſtyll them agayne, & to pacifye the matter, leauyng Andronicus there to be his debyte, as one mete therfore.
Now Menelaus ſuppoſing that he had gotten a ryght conuenyent tyme / ſtole certayne veſſels of golde out of the temple, and gaue them to Andronicus for a preſent: & ſome he ſolde at Tirus & in the cities therby. Which when Onias knew of a ſuerty, he reproued him: but he kepte him in a Sanctuary beſide Daphenis, that lyeth by Antioche wherfore Menelaus gat hĩ to Andronicus & prayed him yͭ he wold ſlay Onias. So whã he came to Onias, he counceled hĩ craftely to come out of the Sanctuary, geuyng him his hãde with an othe (how be it he ſuſpect hym) and then he ſlew Onias, without any regarde of ryghtuouſneſſe. For the whiche cauſe not only the Jewes, but other nacyõs alſo toke indignacyon / & were diſpleaſed for the vnryghtuous death of ſo godly a man.

G And when the kynge was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes and certaine of the Grekes wente vnto him, complayninge for yͤ vnryghtuous death of Onias. Yee Antio chus hym ſelfe was ſory in hys mynde for Onias, ſo that it pitied him, & he wepte / remembrynge hys ſoberneſſe & manerly beha uoure. Wherfore he was ſo kyndled in hys minde, that he cõmaũded Andronicus to be ſtriped out of his purple clothing, & ſo to be led thorow out the cite, yee: & yͤ vngracious man to be ſlayne in the ſame place / where he cõmitted his wickednes vpõ Onias. Thus the Lorde rewarded hym his punyſhmẽt, as he had deſerued. Now when Lyſymachus had done many wycked dedes in the temple

thorowe the councel of Manelaus/and the voice came abrode:the multitude gathered them together agaynſt Lyſimachus:for he had caryed out nowe much golde.

So when the people aroſe,and were ful of diſpleaſure/Lyſymachus armed.iii.M. vnthriftes to defende him:a certaine tiraſt beyng theyr captayne, which was growen bothe in age and woodneſſe. But when the people vnderſtode the purpoſe of Lyſymachus,ſome gat ſtones,ſome good ſtrong clubbes,⁊ ſome caſt aſhes vpõ Liſimachus Thus there were many of thẽ woũded, ſome beynge ſlayne,⁊ al the other chaſed awaye.

h But as for the wycked churchrobber hym ſelfe,they killed him beſide the treaſury. Of theſe matters therfore there was kepte a courte agaynſt Manelaus. Now when the kynge came to Tirus,they made a cõplaite vnto hym of Menelaus/ concernynge this buſyneſſe,and the ambaſſytours were thre. But Menelaus wẽt ⁊ promyſed Prolomy, to geue hym much money/ yf he wolde perſwade yͤ king. So Ptolomy wẽt to the king into a courte,(where as he was ſet to coole hym)⁊ brought hym out of yͤ mynde. In ſo much yͭ he diſcharged Menelaus from the accuſacyons, that not withſtandynge was cauſe of all myſchefe: and thoſe poore men/ which yf they had tolde theyr cauſe, yee, before the Scithiãs,they ſhuld haue bene iudged innocent, them he condemned to death.

Thus were they ſoone punyſhed, whiche folowed vpon the matter for the cite,for the people,⁊ for the holy veſſel. Wherfore they of Tyrus toke indignacion,and buried thẽ honorably. And ſo thorow the couetouſnes of them that were in power, Manelaus remayned ſtyl in auctorite,increaſing in malyce,to the hurt of the cyteſyns.

¶ Of the ſignes and tokens ſene in Jeruſalem. Of the ende and eſtate of Jaſon. The purſute of Antiochus agaynſt the Jewes. The ſpoylynge of the temple.

CAPI. V.

A AT the ſame tyme Antiochus made him ready to go agayne into Egipt. Then were there ſene at Jeruſalẽ.xl.dayes long/ horſmen,running to and fro in the ayre which had raiment of golde,⁊ ſpeares. There were ſene alſo whole hooſtes of men weapened,⁊ horſes running in an ordre/how they came together, howe they helde forth theyr ſhyldes, howe the harneſſed men drewe out theyr ſweardes, and ſhote their dartes.

The ſhyne of the golde weapens was ſene,and all of maner of armure. Wherfore euery man prayed,that thoſe tokens might turne to good. Nowe when there was gone forth a falſe rumour,as though Antiochus had bene deed: Jaſon toke a.M.mẽ,⁊ came ſodenly vpon the cytye. The cyteſyns ran vnto the walles , at the laſte was the cytye taken,⁊ Manelaus fled in to the caſtell.

B As for Jaſon,he ſpared not hys owne cyteſyns i the ſlaughter,nether conſydered he what greate euel it were,to deſtroye yͤ proſperite of his owne kynſmen:but dyd as one that had gotten the victory of his enemies, ⁊ not of his frendes. For al this gat he not yͤ ſuperiorite, but at the laſt receaued cõfuſyõ for his malice, * ⁊ fled againe lyke a vagabunde into the lande of the Ammonytes. 1 Mat. 4. c

Finally,for a rewarde of his wickedneſſe, he was accuſed before Aretha the kynge of the Arabiãs: In ſo much that he was faine to fle frõ cyte to cite,being deſpiſed of euery mã as a forſaker of the lawes,⁊ an abhomynable perſõne. And at the laſt(as an open enemy of hys owne natural countre ⁊ of the cyteſyns)he was dryuen in to Egypte.

Thus he that afore put many out of their owne natyue land,periſhed from home him ſelf. He wẽt to Lacedemon,thinckyng there to haue gotten ſuccour by reaſon of kinred. And he that afore had caſten many one out vnburyed , was throwen out hym ſelfe/no man mournynge for hym,nor puttinge him in hys graue:ſo that he nether enioyned the buryall of a ſtraunger,nether was he partaker of hys fathers ſepulcre.

C Nowe when thys was done,the kyng ſuſpecte,that the Jewes wolde haue fallen fro hym: wherfore he came in a greate dyspleaſure out of Egypte,* ⁊ toke yͤ cytie by vyolence. He cõmaunded his mẽ of warre alſo/ yͭ they ſhuld kyl ⁊ not ſpare, but ſley downe ſuch as wͭſtode them , or climed vp vpõ the houſes. Thus was there a great ſlaughter of yong men,oldemen,wemen,children and virgines . In.iii.dayes were there ſlayne. lxxx.M.xl.M.put in preſon, ⁊ no leſſe ſold. Yet was he not content wͭ this,but durſt go into the moſte holy temple(Menelaus that traytour to yͤ lawes ⁊ to hys owne natural countre,being his gyde) ⁊ with his wycked hãdes toke the holy veſſel, which other kinges ⁊ cities had geuen thither for the garnyſhing ⁊ honour of the place:them toke he in his handes vnworthely,⁊ defyled them. 1 Mach 1. c to haue bene lapped in many ſynnes / thys Antiochus (as ſoone as he had come) had ſodenly bene punyſhed/ and ſhut oute for hys preſumpcyon, + lyke as Heliodorus was, whō Seleucus the kynge ſent to robbe the treaſury. 2.Mac.3.b Neuertheles, God hath not choſen the people for the places ſake/ but the place for the peoples ſake: and therfore is ẏ place become partaker of ẏ peoples trouble, but afterwarde ſhal it enioye the wealth of them. And lyke as it is nowe forſakē in the wrath of Almyghtye God, ſo when the great God is recōciled, it ſhalbe ſet vp ī hye worſhip againe.

D So mad was Antiochus,that he conſydered not,how that God was a lytle wroth for the ſinnes of them that dwelt in the cite, for the which ſuch cõfucion came vpon that place. ⁊ And why/if it had not happened thẽ Iere. 8.

E So whē Antiochus had takē a. M. & viii. C. talētes out of ẏ tēple, he gat him to Antioch ī al the haſt, thincking in his pride/ that he myght make men ſayle vpon ẏ drye land, & to go vpō the ſee, ſuch an hye mynde had he. He left debites there, to vexe the people: At Ieruſalē left he Philyp a Phrygian, in maners more cruel thē him ſelf ẏ ſet hym there: At Garizim he left Andronicus & Menelaus, which were more greuous to the cytezens thē other. 1.Mac.1.a + Nowe as he was thus ſet in malyce agaynſt the Iewes, he ſent Appollonius an hated prynce/ with xxii. M. commaūding him to ſley thoſe ẏ were of perfect age, & to ſel the wemen, maidens & children. Whē he came now to Ieruſalem, he fayned peace, & kepte him ſtyll vntyl the Sabboth day. And then he cōmaūded his men to take them to their weapens (for the Iewes kepte holy day) & ſo he ſlew all thē that were gone forth to the open play, runnyng here & there thorow the cytye with his men weapened/ & murthured a great nōbre. 1.Mach.11 + But Iudas Machabeus which was the tenth, fled into ẏ wildernes/ led his life there with his company among wild beaſtes & vpon the mountaynes, dwellyng there and eating graſſe/ leſt they ſhulde be partakers of the fylthyneſſe.

¶ The Iewes are compelled to leaue the lawe of god. The temple is defyled. The readers are monyſhed that they ſhal not deſpyſe the chaſtiſyng wherwith the Lorde afflicteth them. The glorious payne of Eleazarus.

CAPI. VI.

A NOt long after this, ſent the king a meſſaunger of Antioche, for to compel the Iewes, to altre the ordinaūces of ẏ fathers & the law of god, to defile the tēple that was at Ieruſalē/ & to call it the tēple of Iupiter Olimpius: & that they ſhuld be ī Gazarim/ as thoſe which dwel at the place of Iupiter herberous. This wicked ſedition of the vngodly was heuy vpon all the people: for the tēple was full of voluptuouſnes, bibbynge & bollynge of the Heathen, of rybaudes and harlottes together. The wemen wente into the holy place, and bare in that was not lawfull. The aulter alſo was full of vnlaufull thynges, which the lawe forbyddeth to laye vpon it. The Sabbothes were not kepte, ẏ other ſolēpne feaſtes of the lande were not regarded. To be playne / there durſt no mā be a knowne that he was a Iewe. In ẏ day of the kinges byrth they were cōpelled parforce to offre: & when ẏ feaſt of Bachus was kept, they were conſtrayned to were garlandes of yuye, & ſo to go aboute ẏ honoure of Bachus. Moreouer thorow the coūcel of Ptolomi there went out a cōmaūdement in ẏ next cities of the Heathen, ẏ they ſhuld intreate the Iewes in lyke maner: namely/ to cōpel them for to do ſacrifice after the lawes of the Gentiles: and who ſo wolde not / to put them to death. A pyteous thing was it to ſe. There were. ij. wemen accuſed to haue circumciſed theyr ſonnes, whom when they had led rounde aboute the cyte (the babes hāgyng at their breſtes) they caſt them downe headlinges ouer the walles. Some that were crepte in dennes & had kepte the Sabboth, were accuſed vnto Phylyppe/ & brent in the fyre: becauſe that for the feare of God they kepte the commaūdement ſo ſtyfly/ & wolde not defende them ſelues. Now I beſeche all thoſe which reade thys boke, that they refuſe it not for theſe falles of aduerſite: & iudge ẏ thinges (that are happened) for no deſtruccyō, but for a chaſtenyng of our people. And why? When God ſuffreth not ſynners lōge to folow their owne mynde/ but ſhortly punyſheth them, + it is a tokē of his greate louynge kyndnes. For thys grace haue we of god more then other people, that he ſuffreth not vs lōg to ſine vnpuniſhed like as other nacyons, that when the day of iudgment cōmeth, he maye punyſh them in the fulnes of theyr ſynnes. If we ſinne, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercy from vs: & though he punyſh with aduerſyte, yet doth he neuer forſake his people. But let thys that we haue ſpoken now ī few wordes, be for a warnyng & exhortacyon of ẏ Heathen:

Now wyll we come to the declarynge of ẏ matter. Eleazar one of ẏ principall Scrybes, an aged man & of a wel fauored countenaunce, was conſtrained to gape with open mouth, + & to eate ſwynes fleſhe. But he deſyryng rather to dye gloriouſly then to lyue with ſhame, offred him ſelfe wyllyngly to ẏ martyrdome. Now when he ſaw ẏ he muſt nedes go to it, he toke it paciētly: for he was at a poynte wyth hym ſelfe / that he wolde

But he beganne to cōſydꝛe hys diſcrete ⁊ honoꝛable age, hȝ noble ⁊ woꝛſhypful ſtock, and howe ỷ from hys youth vp he had bene of an honeſt ⁊ good cōuerſacyon: yee ⁊ howe conſtantly he had kept the oꝛdinaunces and lawes cōmaūded by God, wherfoꝛe he gaue them this anſwere, ⁊ ſayd: Yet had I rather fyꝛſt be layde i my graue. * Foꝛ it becōmeth not myne age (ſayde he) in any wyſe to diſſēble, wherby many yonge perſonnes myght thynke, that Eleazar beyng .lxxx. yeare olde ⁊ .x. were nowe gone to a ſtraunge lyfe: ⁊ ſo thoꝛow myne ypocriſy (foꝛ a lytle tyme of a tranſytoꝛy lyfe) they myght be diſceaued: by this meanes alſo ſhulde I defyle myne age, and make it abhomynable. Foꝛ though I were nowe delyuered frō the toꝛmētes of mē, yet ſhulde I not eſcape ỷ hand of almyghty God nether alyue noꝛ deed. ¶ The puniſhmēt of the .vij. bꝛethꝛen and of theyꝛ mother.

CAPI. VII.

A IT happened alſo that there were .vij. bꝛethꝛen (with theyꝛ mother) taken, ⁊ cōpelled by the kynge * agaynſt the lawe, to eate ſwynes fleſh: namely wͭ ſcourges ⁊ lethꝛen whyppes. And one of them whiche was the cheefe, ſayde: what ſekeſt thou, ⁊ what requyreſt thou of vs? As foꝛ vs, we are readye rather to ſuffre death, then to offende the lawes of God ⁊ the fathers. Then was the kynge angrye, and bad heate cauldꝛons ⁊ bꝛaſen pottes. Whiche when they were made hote, immediatly he cōmaunded the tonge of hym that ſpake fyꝛſt, to be cut out, to pul ỷ ſkynne ouer his head, to pare of the edges of his handes ⁊ fete: yee and ỷ in the ſyght of hys mother and the other of his bꝛethꝛē. Nowe when he was cleane marred, he cōmaunded a fyꝛe to be made, and ſo (whyle there was any bꝛeath in hym) to be fryed in the cauldꝛon: In the which when he had bene longe payned, the other bꝛethꝛen with theyꝛ mother exhoꝛted him to dye manfully, ſayeng: The Loꝛde God ſhall regarde the trueth, ⁊ comfoꝛte vs, lyke as Moſes teſtifyeth * and declareth in his ſonge, ſayenge: and he wyll haue compaſſyon on hys ſeruauntes. Deut.32.c.

So when the fyꝛſt was deed after thys B maner, they bꝛought the ſecōde to haue him in derysyon, pulled the ſkynne wͭ the heare ouer his heade, ⁊ aſked him, yf he wold eate ſwynes fleſh, oꝛ he were payned in the other mēbꝛes alſo thoꝛow out his bodye. But he anſwered boldly, ⁊ ſayde: I wyll not do it. And ſo was he toꝛmented like as the fyꝛſt, ⁊ when he was euen at the geuyng vp ỷ goſt, he ſayde: Thou moſt vngracious perſonne putteſt vs nowe to death, but ỷ kyng of the woꝛlde ſhall rayſe vs vp (which dye foꝛ hys lawes) in ỷ reſurrectiō of euerlaſtyng lyfe.

After him, was the thyꝛde had in derysyon: and whē he was requyꝛed, he put out his tonge, ⁊ that right ſoone, holdyng foꝛth hys handes manfully, ⁊ ſpake wͭ a ſtedfaſt fayth: Theſe haue I of heauē, but nowe foꝛ the lawe of God I deſpyſe thē: foꝛ my truſt is, ỷ I ſhall receaue thē of hym agayne. In ſo much ỷ the kynge ⁊ they which were with him, marueiled at the yong mans boldneſſe, that he nothynge regarded the paynes. C

Nowe when he was deed alſo, they vexed the fourth with toꝛmentes in lyke maner. So when he was nowe at hys death, he ſayde: It is better ỷ we beynge put to death of men, haue our hope and truſt in God, foꝛ John.v.c. he ſhall rayſe vs vp agayne. * As foꝛ the, thou ſhalt haue no reſurreccyon to lyfe.

And when they had ſpoken to the fyfth, they toꝛmented hym. Then loked he vnto the kyng, ⁊ ſayd: thou haſt power among men, foꝛ thou art a moꝛtal man alſo thy ſelf, to do what thou wylt, but thynke not, that God hathe foꝛſaken our generacion. Abyde the tary ſtyl a whyle, and thou ſhalt ſe the great power of God, howe he wyl punyſh the and thy ſede. After hym they brought the ſyxte, which beynge at the poynte of death, ſayde: Be not diſceaued (O kynge) for this we ſuffre for our owne ſakes, becauſe we haue offẽded our God, & therfore merueylous thinges are ſhewed vpon vs. But thynke not thou, whiche takeſt in hande to ſtryue agaynſte God, that thou ſhalt eſcape vnpunyſhed.

D This excellent mother (worthy to be well reported of, and had in remembraũce) ſawe her ſeuen ſonnes dye in one day, and ſuffred it paciently, becauſe of the hope that ſhe had in God: yee, ſhe exhorted euery one of thẽ in eſpecyall, and that boldly & ſtedfaſtly with perfyte wyſdome, wakynge vp her wyuyſh thought with a manly ſtomacke, and ſayde vnto them: I can not tel how ye came in my wõbe, for I nether gaue you breth nor ſoule, no nor lyfe. It is not I yͭ ioyned the mẽbres of youre bodyes together, but the maker of the worlde, whiche faſhyoned the byrth of man, & beganne all thynges. Euen he alſo of his owne mercy ſhall geue you breath & lyfe agayne, lyke as ye nowe regarde not youre owne ſelues for hys lawes ſake.

Nowe thought Antyochus that ſhe had deſpyſed hym, therfore he let her go with her reproues, and beganne to exhorte the yongeſt ſone (which yet was lefte) not onely with wordes but ſwore vnto hym with an othe, that he ſhulde make hym a ryche and welthy man (yf he wolde forſake the lawes of hys fathers) yee, and that he ſhulde geue hym, what ſoeuer were neceſſarye for hym.

E But when the yonge man wolde not be moued for all theſe thynges, he called hys mother, and counceled her to ſaue her ſonnes lyfe. And when he had exhorted her with many wordes, ſhe promyſed hym that ſhe ſhulde ſpeake vnto her ſonne. So ſhe turned her vnto hym (laughynge the cruell tyraunte to ſcorne) and ſpake with a bolde voyce: O my ſonne, haue pytie vpõ me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue the ſucke, norryſhed the and brought the vp vnto thys age.

I beſeche the (my ſonne) loke vpon heauẽ and earth and all that is therin, & conſydre, that God made them and mans generacyõ of nought: ſo ſhalt thou not feare this hangman, but ſuffre death ſtedfaſtly, lyke as thy brethren haue done: yͭ I maye receaue the agayne in the ſame mercy with thy brethren.

Whyle ſhe was yet ſpeakynge theſe wordes, the yonge man ſayde: Whom loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wyll not obeye the kynges cõmaundement, * but the lawe that God gaue vs by Moſes. As for thou that ymagyneſte all myſchefe agaynſte the Iewes, thou ſhalte not eſcape the hande of God, for we ſuffre theſe thynges, becauſe of oure ſynnes.

And though God be angry with vs a lytle whyle (for oure chaſtenynge and reformacyon) yet ſhall he be at one agayne with his ſeruaũtes. But thou (O ſhameful and moſte abhomynable perſonne.) Pryde not thy ſelfe thorowe vayne hope, in beynge ſo malycyous vpon the ſeruauntes of God: for thou haſt not yet eſcaped the iudgement of the God whiche is almyghtye, and ſeyth all thynges. My brethren that haue ſuffred a lytle payne, are nowe vnder the couenaũt of euerlaſtynge lyfe: but thorowe the iudgement of God, thou ſhalt be punyſhed righteouſly for thy pryde.

As for me (lyke as my brethren haue done) I offre my ſoule and my body for the lawes of oure fathers, callynge vpon God, that he wyll ſoone be mercyfull vnto oure people: yee and with payne and punyſhmẽt * to make the graunte, that he only is God. In me nowe and in my brethren the wrath of almyghtye God is at an ende, whiche ryghteouſly is fallen vpon all oure people.

Then the kynge beynge kyndled in anger, was more cruell vpon hym then vpon all the other, and toke indygnacyon, that he was ſo lyghtly regarded. So thys yonge man dyed vndefyled, and put his truſt ſtyll in the Lorde. Laſt of al after the ſõnes, was the mother put to death alſo. Let this nowe be ynough ſpoken, concernynge the offrynges, and extreme cruelneſſe.

¶ Iudas gathereth together hys hooſt. Nicanor is ſent agaynſt Iudas. Iudas exhorteth hys ſouldyers to cõſtauntnes. Nicanor is ouercome. The Iewes geue thankes after they haue put theyr enemyes to flyght, dyuydynge the ſpoyles vnto the fatherleſſe and vnto the wydowes. Nicanor flyeth vnto Antiochus.

CAPI. VIII.

I THEN Iudas Machabeus, and they that were with hym, wente pryuely into yͤ townes called theyr kynſfolkes & frendes together, toke vnto them all ſuche as contynued yet in the fayth and lawe of the Iewes, and brought forth .vi.M. men.

So they called vpon the Lorde, that he wolde haue an eye vnto his people, whiche was trodden downe of euery man: to be gracyous vnto the temple that was defyled of the vngodly: to haue cõpaſſyon vpon the deſtruccyon of the cytie, whiche was ſhortly lyke to be layed waſte, to heare the voyce of the bloude that cryed vnto hym: to remēbre the moſte vnryghteous deathes of yonge innocent chyldren, yͤ blaſphemyes alſo done vnto his name, and to punyſh them.

* Nowe when Machabeus had gathered this multitude together, he was to myghtye for the Heathen (for the wrath of the Lorde was turned into mercy) he fel vpō yͤ townes and cyties vnwares, brent them, toke the moſt commodious places, and ſlew many of the enemyes. But ſpecyally he made ſuche chaſes by nyght, in ſo muche that hys manlyneſſe was ſpoken of euery where.

B So when Phylippe ſawe that the man increaſed by lytle & lytle, and that yͤ matter proſpered wͭ him for the moſt part: he wrote vnto Ptolomy (which was a captayne in Celoſyria and Phenices) to helpe him in the kynges buſynes. Then ſent he Nycanor Patrocly (a ſpeciall frende of his) in al the haſt, and gaue him of the comen ſorte of the Heathen no leſſe then .xx. M. harneſſed men, to rote out yͤ whole generacyon of the Iewes, hauynge to helpe hym one Gorgias a man of warre, which in matters cōcernynge battayls, had great experiēce. Nicanor ordened alſo the tribute (which the Romaynes ſhuld haue had) to be geuen vnto the kinge, out of the captyuyte of the Iewes, namely .ij. M. talētes. And immediatly he ſent to yͤ cyties of the ſee coaſt, requyrynge them for to bye Iewes to be theyr ſeruauntes & bonde men, promiſynge to ſell thē .lxxx. and ten for one talente: but he conſidered not yͤ wrath of almyghtye God, that was to come vpon hym.

C When Iudas knewe of this, he tolde the Iewes yͤ were wͭ him of Nicanors cōming. Nowe were there ſome of them fearfull, not truſtynge vnto the ryghteouſnes of God, & fled theyr waye. But the other yͤ remayned, came together, & beſought the Lorde, to delyuer thē from that wycked Nicanor, which had ſolde thē, or euer he came nye them: and though he wolde not do it for theyr ſakes, yet for the couenaūt yͤ he made with their fathers, & becauſe they called vpon his holy & glorius name. * And ſo Machabeus called his men together, namely aboute .vj. M. exhortynge them not to agree vnto theyr enemyes, * nether to be afrayed for yͤ multitude of theyr aduerſaries cōmynge agaynſt them vnryghteouſly: but to fyght manly, cōſyderynge the reprofe yͤ they had done to yͤ holy place without cauſe, howe they had deſpyted & oppreſſed the cytie, yee, & deſtroyed the lawes of the fathers. * For they (ſayde he) truſt in theyr weapens & boldneſſe, but oure confidēce is in yͤ almighty Lorde, which in the twynckling of an eye may both deſtroye them yͤ come agaynſt vs, and al the worlde.

D He exhorted thē alſo to call to remēbraūce the helpe yͤ God ſhewed vnto theyr fathers: & as whē there periſhed an .C. & .lxxxv. M. of Sennacheribs people: And of the battayll that they had in Babylon agaynſt the Gallatyans: howe al the Macedonians yͤ came to helpe thē, ſtode in feare: & how they beyng but only .vj. M. ſlew an .C. & .xx. M. thorow the helpe yͤ was geuen thē frō heauen, wherby they alſo had receaued many benefytes.

Thorowe theſe wordes the mē toke good hertes vnto them, ready to dye for the lawe and the countre. So he ſet vpon euery company a captayne, one of his owne brethren: Symon, Ioſeph and Ionathas: geuynge eche one .xv. C. men. He cauſed Eſdras alſo to reade the holy boke vnto thē, and to geue them a token of the helpe of God.

* Then he hym ſelfe beynge captayne in the fore front of the battayll, buckled with Nicanor. And God was theyr helpe, in ſo much yͤ they ſlewe aboue .ix. M. men & compelled the more parte of Nicanors hooſt to fle, they were ſo woūded & feable. Thus they toke the money from thoſe that came to bye thē, & folowed vpon thē on euery ſyde. But when yͤ tyme came vpon thē, they returned, for it was the Sabbath, & therfore they folowed nomore vpon thē. So they toke theyr weapens and ſpoyles and kepte the Sabbath, geuynge thākes vnto yͤ Lorde, which had delyuered them that daye, and ſhewed them his mercy. After the Sabboth * they diſtributed the ſpoyles to the ſycke, to the fatherleſſe and to wyddowes, and the reſydue had they them ſelues with theyrs. When this was done, and they all had made a generall prayer: they beſought the mercyfull Lorde to be at one with his ſeruauntes.

Of thoſe alſo that were with Timotheus and Bachides, which fought againſt them, they ſlewe .xx. And when they had dylygently gathered theyr weapens together, they layed them all in cōuenientē places, & the remnaunt of the ſpoyles brought they to Ieruſalem. They ſlewe alſo Phylarches yͤ wycked perſonne, which was with Timotheus, and had vexed many Iewes. And when they helde the thankeſgeuyng at Ieruſalem for the vyctorye, they F brent thoſe that had ſet fyre on the porches of the tẽple: namely Calyſthenes, whiche was fled in to an houſe: ⁊ ſo they gat a worthy rewarde for theyr wyckedneſſe. As for yͤ moſt vngracyous Nicanor, which had brought a thouſande marchauntes, to bye the Iewes, he was thorow the helpe of yͤ Lord brought downe euen of thẽ whom he regarded not: in ſo muche yͭ he put of his gloryous rayment, fled by ſee, and came alone to Antioche, with greate ſhame and dyſhonour, whiche he gat thorowe the deſtruccyon of his hooſt. Thus he that promyſed the Romaynes to paye thẽ theyr trybute, when he toke Ieruſalem: beganne nowe to ſaye playnely, that God was the defender of the Iewes, and therfore not poſſible to wounde them, becauſe they folowed the lawes whiche God had made.

¶ Antiochus wyllynge to ſpoyle Perſepolis is dryuen to flyght. He threateneth the Iewes, he is ſtrycken of the Lorde. The fayned repentaunce of Antiochus. his deth.

CAPI. IX.

A 1. Mac. vi. a AT the ſame tyme came Antiochus agayne with dyſhonour out of Perſys, For when he came to Perſepolis, and vndertoke to robbe the temple and to ſubdue the cytie, the people ranne together ⁊ defended them ſelues, in ſo much that he and his were fayne to fle with ſhame. And ſo after that flyght, it happened, that Antiochus came agayne with dyſhonoure. But when he came to Egbathana, he gat knowlege what was happened vnto Nicanor and Tymotheus. Nowe as he was auauncynge hym ſelfe in his wrath, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to them, vpon the Iewes: and therfore commaunded to make ready his charet, hayſtynge on hys iourney without ceaſſynge, the iudgemente of God prouokynge hym, becauſe he had ſpoken ſo proudly, yͭ he wolde come to Ieruſalẽ, and make it a graue of the Iewes. But the Lorde God of Iſrael, yͭ ſeyth al thinges, ſmote hym with an inuyſyble plage, whiche no man coulde heale.

B For as ſoone as he had ſpoken theſe wordes, there came vpon him an horrible payne of his bowels, and a ſore grefe of the armes. And yͭ was but ryght: for he had martyred other mens bowels with dyuers ⁊ ſtraunge tormentes, howbeit he wolde in no wyſe ceaſſe from his malyce. Yee, he was yet the prouder ⁊ more malicious againſt yͤ Iewes: But whyle he was commaũdynge to make haſt in the matter, it happened that he fell downe vyolently from the charet ſo that it brosed hys bodye, ⁊ dyd hym greate payne.

And ſo he that thought he myght commaũde the floudes of yͤ ſee (ſo proude was he beyonde the cõdycyon of man) ⁊ to weye the hye mountaynes in a payre of balaunce, was nowe brought downe to yͤ groũde, ⁊ caryed vpon an horſlytter, knowlegyng the manyfeſte power of God vpon him: ſo that yͤ wycked body of hys * was full of wormes whiche in his payne fel quyck out of his fleſh in ſo moch that his hooſt was greued with the ſmell and ſtynke of him. Actes xii. Thus he that a lytle afore thought he myght reach to yͤ ſtarre of heauen, hym myght no man nowe abyde nor beare, for the vehemence of ſtyncke. C

Therfore, he beynge brought from hys greate pryde, begãne for to come to yͤ knowlege of him ſelf: for the puniſhement of God warned him, and his payne increaſed euer more and more. And whẽ he him ſelf myght not abyde his owne ſtyncke, he ſayde theſe wordes, It is reaſõ to be obediẽt vnto God, and yͭ a man deſyre not to be lyke vnto him. This wycked perſonne prayed alſo vnto the Lorde, of whom he ſhulde haue optayned no mercy. And as for the cytie that he came vnto ſo haſtely, to brynge it downe to the groũde, and to make it a graue for deed men: nowe he deſyreth to delyuer it fre. And as touchinge the Iewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buryed, but wold haue caſt thẽ out for to be deuoured of the foules and wylde beaſtes, ſayeng, yͭ he wolde haue deſtroyed both olde ⁊ yonge: Nowe he promyſeth, to make them lyke the cytezyns of Athens. And where as he had ſpoyled the holy temple afore, nowe he maketh promiſe to garnyſh it wͭ great gyftes, to increaſe the holy ornamẽtes, ⁊ of his owne rẽtes to beare the coſtes, ⁊ charges belonginge to the offerynges: yee, and yͭ he wolde alſo become a Iewe him ſelf, to go thorowe euery place of the worlde, and to preach the power of God. D

But when his paynes wolde not ceaſſe, (for yͤ righteous iudgmẽt of God was come vpõ him) out of a very deſpayre he wrote vnto the Iewes a lettre of interceſſion, cõteynynge theſe wordes: The kyng ⁊ prynce Antiochus wiſheth vnto yͤ vertuous cytezyns of yͤ Iewes, moch health ⁊ good proſperite.

If ye and youre chyldren fare well, and yf all thinges go after your mynde: we geue greate thankes. In my ſyckneſſe alſo do I remembre you louyngly: for as I came out of Perſya, ⁊ was taken with ſore dyſeaſſe: I thought it neceſſary to care for the comen wealth. Neyther deſpayre I in my ſelfe, but haue a good hope to eſcape thys ſyckneſſe.

But conſyderynge that my father led an hoſt ſomtyme in the hyer places, and ſhewed who ſhulde raygne after hĩ, that (if there happened any controuerſy, or any harde thynge were declared) they in the lãde myght knowe theyr chefe Lorde, that there ſhulde be no inſurreccion: E Agayne: when I pondre by my ſelfe, howe that al the myghtye men ⁊ neyghbours rõude about, are laying wayte, ⁊ loke but for oportunyte to do harme: I haue ordayned that my ſõne Antiochus ſhal raygne after me, whom I ofte cõmended to many of you, when I was in the hyer kyngedomes, ⁊ haue wrytten vnto hĩ as it foloweth herafter Therfore I pray you ⁊ requyre you, to remẽbre yͤ benefites yͭ I haue done vnto you generally, ⁊ in eſpecial (⁊ yͭ euery mã wil be faythful to me ⁊ my ſõne) For I hope that he ſhalbe of ſober ⁊ louyng behauour, ⁊ yf he folow my deuyce, he ſhalbe indifferent vnto you.

Dan. 8. c. * Thus, that murtherer ⁊ blaſphemer of God was ſore ſmytten: ⁊ lyke as he had intreted other men, ſo he dyed a myſerable deth in a ſtraunge countre vpon a mountayne. And hys body did Philyppe (that went with hym) cary away: which e fearyng the ſonne of Antiochus, wente into Egypte to Ptolomye Philometor.

¶ Judas Machabeus taketh the cytie and the temple. He begynneth to ſhewe the actes of Eupator. The Jewes fyght agaynſt the Idumeans. Timotheus inuadeth Jewry, with whom Judas ioyneth batayle. Fyue men appeare in the ayre to the helpe of the Jewes. Timothy is ſlayne.

CAPI. X.

A 1. Mach. 4. e. MAchabeus nowe ⁊ his cõpany (thorowe the helpe of the Lorde) wãne the temple ⁊ the cytie agayne, deſtroyed the aulters and chapels yͭ the Heythen had buylded thorowe the ſtretes: cleſed the temple, * made another aulter of brycke ſtone, ⁊ after .ij. yeres they offered ſacrifices, ſet forth the incenſe, the lyghtes ⁊ ſhewe bred. Exod. 20. b. When that was done, they fel downe flat vpon the grounde, ⁊ beſought the Lord, that they myght come nomore into ſuche trouble: but yf they ſynned any more agaynſt him, he him ſelfe to chaſtẽ them wyth mercy, and not to come in the handes of thoſe aleaũtes and blaſphemous men.

Nowe vpon the ſame day that the ſtraũgers poluted the temple, it happened that on the very ſame daye it was cleſed agayne: 1. Mac. 4. f. namely, * the .xxij. daye of the moneth called B Caſleu. They kept .viij. dayes in gladneſſe, lyke as in the feaſt of the tabernacles: remẽbrynge that not longe afore, they helde the feaſt of the tabernacles vpon the mountaynes ⁊ in dennes lyke beaſtes. And to the ſame toke they bare grene bowes, braunches ⁊ palmes before him that had gyuen thẽ good fortune to cleſe his place. They agreed alſo together, ⁊ made a ſtatute, yͭ euery yeare thoſe dayes ſhulde be ſolemply kepte of all the people of the Jewes.

Howe Antiochus then (that was called the noble) dyed, it is ſufficiently tolde. Nowe wyll we ſpeake of Eupator the ſonne of that wycked Antiochus, howe it happened wyth him: ⁊ ſo wͭ fewe wordes to cõprehende the aduerſite that chaunſed in the warres. When he had taken in the kyngdome, he made one Lyſias (which had bene captayne of the hoſt in Phenices ⁊ Syria) ruler ouer the matters of the realme. For Ptolomy that was called Macron, beyng a ruler for the Jewes (⁊ ſpecially, to ſyt in iudgemẽt for ſuche wrong as was done vnto thẽ) vndertoke to deale peaceably wͭ thẽ. For the which cauſe he was accuſed of yͤ frendes before Eupator: ⁊ when he C was ſuſpecte to be a traytour (becauſe he had left Cypres that Philometor had cõmytted vnto hym: ⁊ becauſe he departed from noble Antiochus, that he was come vnto) he poiſoned him ſelfe, and dyed.

Nowe whẽ Gorgyas was gouernoure of the ſame places, he toke ſtraũgers ⁊ vndertoke oftymes to warre with the Jewes. Moreouer, the Idumeans that helde the ſtrong holdes, receyued thoſe that were dryuen from Jeruſalẽ, and toke in hãde to warre alſo. 1. Mac. 5. a. But they that were wͭ Machabeus beſought and prayed vnto the Lorde, that he wolde be their helper: ⁊ ſo they fel vpon the ſtronge holdes of the Idumeans, and wãne many places by ſtrẽgth: Such as came agaynſt thẽ they ſlew ⁊ kylled no leſſe (of all together) then twenthouſande. Neuertheleſſe ſome, no leſſe then nyne thouſãde, were fled into two ſtrong towres, hauyng al maner of ordynaunce to withſtande them.

Then Machabeus leauyng Symon, Joſephus, D Zacheus, and thoſe that were wyth them (which were very many) wente to beſege thẽ, and to fyght where moſte nede was. Nowe they that were wyth Symon, beynge led wyth couetouſneſſe, were intreated, for money, thorowe certayne of thoſe that lay in the towres: toke .lxx. [illegible]chmas, ⁊ let ſome of them eſcape. But when it was tolde Machabeus what had happened, he called yͤ captaynes of the people together, accuſynge thoſe perſonnes, yͭ they had ſolde the brethrẽ for money, and let their enemyes go. So he ſlewe thoſe traytours, and immediatly went in hande with the .ij. towers. And when they had ordred thē ſelues manly with their weapens and handes, they ſlewe in the two Caſtels mo then twentye thouſande.

1.Mac.v.b * Now Timotheus: whō the Jewes had ¶ Lyſias goeth aboute to ouercome the Jewes. Succoure is ſent from heauen vnto the Jewes. The letter of Lyſias to the Jewes. The letter of kynge Antiochus vnto Lyſias. A letter of the ſame vnto the Jewes. A letter of the Romaynes to the Jewes.

CAPI. XI.

NOt longe after this, Lyſias the kynges A ſtewarde and a kinſman of his (whiche had the gouernaūce of his matters) toke ſore diſpleaſure for ỷ thīges that had happened: & when he had gathered. lxxx. M. men of fote with all the hoſt of ỷ horſmen, he came agaīſt the Jewes, thynckyng to wynne the cytie, to make it an habitacion for the Heythen, * and Joha the temple wolde he haue to be an houſe of lucre, lyke as the other Goddes houſes of the Heythen are, & to ſell the preſtes offyce euery

but was wylde in his mynde, * truſtyng in ỷ Eſay.31 multitude of fote men, in thouſandes of horſmen, & in his. lxxx. Elephantes.

So he came into Jewry & then to Bethſura B (a caſtell of defence) lyinge in a narowe place. v. furlonges from Jeruſalem, & wāne
it. Nowe when Machabeus and his cōpany knewe that the ſtronge holdes were taken,
* they fell to their prayers with weppyng and 1.Ma teares before the Lord. And all the people in lyke maner beſought hī, that he wolde ſend a good angell to delyuer Iſrael. Machabeus hym ſelfe was the fyrſt that made him ready to the battayl, exhortyng the other that were with him, to ieoparde them ſelues, & to helpe their brethren. And when they were goynge forth of Jeruſalem together with a redy and 2.Ma wyllyng mynde, * there appeared before thē vpon horſbacke a man in whyte clothynge wyth harneſſe of golde, ſhakyng his ſpeare.
Then they prayſed the Lorde all together, which had ſhewed them mercy, & were comforted in their myndes: in ſo muche that they were ready, not onely to fyght with men, but with the moſt cruel beaſtes, yee, and to runne thorowe walles of yron.

Thus they went on wyllyngly hauynge C an helper frō heauen, and the Lord mercyful vnto thē. They fell myghtely vpon their enemyes lyke lyons, brought downe. xi. M. fote men. xvi. C. horſmen, put al ỷ other to flyght, many of them beyng wounded, and ſome gat away naked. Yee Liſias him ſelfe was fayne to fle ſhamefully, and ſo to eſcape. Neuertheleſſe, ỷ man was not without vnderſtanding, but cōſydered by hī ſelfe that his power was mynyſhed, and pondred howe the Jewes beyng defended by the helpe of Almighty god, were not able to be ouercome: wherfore he ſent them wordꝭ, & promyſed, ỷ he wolde con-

ſent to al thynges which were reaſonable, ⁊ to make the kyng their frende. To the which prayer of Liſias, Machabeus agreed, ſekyng in all thynges the comen wealth: and whatſoeuer Machabeus wrote vnto Lyſias concernynge the Jewes, the kynge graunted it. For there were letters wrytten vnto the Jewes fro Lyſias, contaynyng theſe wordes.

Lyſias ſendeth gretynge to the people of the Jewes. Jhon and Abſalon which were ſent from you, delyuered me wrytynges, and requyred me to fulfyl the thynges cõcernyng theyr earande. Therfore loke what might be graunted, I certifyed the kynge therof: and what ſoeuer was cõuenient, I agreed therto. If ye nowe wyll be faythful in the matters, I ſhall endeuour my ſelfe hereafter alſo to do you good. As concernynge other thynges by euery article therof: I haue cõmitted them to your meſſaunzers, and to thoſe whom I ſẽt vnto you, to comen with you of the ſame, fare ye well. In the hundreth ⁊ .xlviij. yeare, the .xxiiij. day of the moneth Dioſcorinthius.

Now the kinges lettre cõtayned theſe wordes. kyng Antiochus ſendeth gretyng vnto his brother Lyſias. For ſo muche as our father * is nowe deade, oure wyll is, that they which are in oure realme, lyue wythout any inſurreccion, ⁊ euery man to be diligẽt in his owne matters. We vnderſtand alſo yͭ the Jewes wold not conſent to our father, for to be brought vnto the cuſtome of the Gentyles, but ſtyfly to kepe their owne ſtatutes: for the whiche cauſe they requyre of vs alſo, to let them remayne ſtyll by theyr owne lawes.

E Wherfore, oure mynde is, yͭ this people ſhalbe in reſt: we haue concluded ⁊ determyned alſo, to reſtore them their temple agayne: that they may lyue accordyng to the vſe and cuſtome of theyr forefathers. Thou ſhalt do vs a pleaſure therfore, yf thou ſẽde vnto thẽ and agre with them: that when they are certifyed of our minde, they may be of good chere and loke to theyr owne wealth.

And this was the letter, that the kynge wrote vnto yͤ Jewes: kynge Antiochus ſendeth gretynge vnto the councell and yͤ other people of yͤ Jewes: If ye fare well, we haue our deſyre: as for vs, we are in good health. Menelaus came and tolde vs, howe yͭ youre deſyre was to come downe to youre people, whyche are with vs.

F Wherfore thoſe that wyll come, we gyue them fre liberte, vnto the .xxx. daye of the moneth of Apryl, that they may vſe the meates of the Jewes and theyr owne lawes, lyke as afore: ⁊ none of them by any maner of waies to haue harme, for thynges done in ignoraunce. Menelaus whom we haue ſent vnto you, ſhall comen with you at large, fare ye wel. In the .Cxlviij. yeare, the .xv. daye of the moneth of Apryl.

The Romaynes alſo ſent a letter, contaynynge theſe wordes: Quyntus Memmius ⁊ Titus Manlius embaſſitours of the Romaynes, ſende gretynge vnto the people of the Jewes. Loke what Lyſyas the kynges kynſman hath graunted you, we graunt you the ſame alſo. But as concernyng the thynges whyche he referred vnto the kynge, ſende by ther ſome with ſpede: and pondre the matter diligently amonge your ſelues, that we may caſth the beſte to youre profyte, for we muſte departe nowe vnto Antioche. And therfore wryte ſhortly agayne, yͭ we may knowe your mynde: Fare well. In the hundreth .xlviij. yere, the fyftenth daye of the Moneth of Apryll.

¶ Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wycked dede of the Jeppites agaynſt the Jewes. Judas is auenged of them. He ſetteth fyre on the gate of Jamnia. The purſute of the Jewes agaynſt Tymothy. Tymothy is taken and let go vnhurte. Judas purſueth Gorgyas. Judas offereth ſacryfyce for the deade, ſheweth the hope of the reſurreccyon.

CAPI. XII.

WHen theſe couenauntes were made A Lyſias went vnto the kynge, ⁊ the Jewes tylled their grounde. But Timotheus, Appollonius the ſonne of Gemei, Jeromy and Demophan the prouoſt, Nicanor the captayne of Cipers, ⁊ they that lay in thoſe places: wold not let them lyue in reſt and peace. They of Joppa alſo did euen ſuch a ſhamefull dede. They prayed the Jewes yͭ dwelt amonge them, to go wyth their wyues and chyldren into the ſhyppes whiche they had prepared, and dyd with them, as though they had ought thẽ no euyl wyl. For ſo much then as there was gone forth a general proclamacyon thorow the cyte, becauſe of peace, they conſented therto, and ſuſpecte nothyng: but when they were gone forth into the depe, they drowned no leſſe then two hundreth of them.

When Judas knew of this cruelte ſhewed vnto his people, he commaunded thoſe that were with hĩ to make them ready, exhortyng them to cal vpon God the ryghtuous iudge: went forth agaynſt thoſe murtherers of hys brethren, ſet fyre in the hauẽ by nyght, brente vp the ſhyppes, and thoſe that eſcaped from the fyre, he ſlewe with the ſwearde. And when B he had done thys, he departed as though he wolde come agayne, and rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gottē worde, that the Jānites were mynded to do in lyke maner vnto ỷ Jewes which dwelt amonge thē, he came vpon the Jamnites by nyght, ⁊ ſet fyre on the hauen wyth the ſhyppes: ſo that the lyght of the fyre was ſene at Jeruſalem, vpon a.ij.C.and.xl.furlonges:

Nowe when they were gone from thence ix.furlonges, in their iourney towarde Tymotheus. v.M.mē of fote and.v.C.horſmē of the Arabians fought wᵗ him. So when ỷ battel was earneſt, ⁊ proſpered with Judas thorowe the helpe of God: the reſydue of the Arabians being ouercome, beſought Judas to be at one wᵗ them, ⁊ promyſed to gyue him certaine paſtures, ⁊ to do hī good in other thīges. Judas thynking that they ſhuld in dede be profytable concernynge many thynges, promyſed them peace: wherupon they ſhoke handes, and ſo they departed to their tentes. Judas wente alſo vnto a cytie, whiche was very faſte kepte with brydges, fenſed roūde aboute with walles, and dyuerſe kyndes of people dwellynge therin, called Caſpin.

C They that were within it, put ſuche truſte in the ſtrength of the walles, ⁊ in their ſtoare of vitayles: that they were the ſlacker ī theyr doynges, curſynge and reuylynge Judas wᵗ blaſphemyes, and ſpeakynge ſuche wordes as it becommeth not. But Machabeus callynge vpon the greate Prynce of the worlde (whiche without any battayle rāmes, or ordinaūce of warre, dyd * caſt downe the walles of Jericho, in the tyme of Joſue) fell mānfully vpon the walles, toke the cytie, and thorowe the helpe of the Lorde) made an exceadynge greate ſlaughter: In ſo much ỷ a lake of two furlonges brode which laye therby, ſemed to flowe wyth the bloude of the ſlayne.

Then departed they from thence. vij.C.⁊ l.fourlonges, and came to Taraca vnto the Jewes that are called Tubianei. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get him there: for (not one matter diſpatched) he was departed from thence, and had lefte certayne men in a very ſtronge holde. But Doſitheus and Soſipater, which were Captaynes with Machabeus, ſlewe thoſe ỷ Timotheus had lefte in the houſe of defence, euen.x.M.men. And Machabeus prepared hym with the.vi.M.men ỷ were aboute him, ſet them in order by companyes, and went forth agaynſt Timotheus, which had with him an.C.and.xx.M men of fote.ij.M.and.v.C.horſmen.

D When Timotheus had knowledge of Judas cōmynge, he ſent ỷ women, children and the other baggage vnto a caſtel called Carnion. (For it coulde not be wōne, ⁊ was hard to come vnto, the wayes of the ſame places were ſo narow) ⁊ when Judas cōpany came firſt in ſyght, ỷ enemyes were ſmytten wyth feare, thorowe the preſence of God, whyche ſeyth all thynges: In ſo muche ỷ they fleyng one here, another there, were rather dyſcōfyted of theyr owne people, * and wōuded wᵗ ỷ ſtrokes of their owne ſweardes. Judas alſo was very earneſt in folowynge vpon them, punyſhyng thoſe vngodly, and ſlewe.xxx.M mē of thē. Timotheus alſo hym ſelfe fel into the hādes of Doſitheus and Soſipater, whō he beſought with many teares, to let hym go with his life: becauſe he had many of the Jewes fathers ⁊ brethrē in priſon, which (if they put hī to death) myght be dyſapoynted. So when he had promyſed faythfully to delyuer them agayne according to the cōdiciō made, they let him go without harme, for the health of the brethren. And when Judas had ſlayne xxv.M.he went from Carnion.

E Now after ỷ he had chaſed away ⁊ ſlayne his enemies, he remoued the hoſte towarde * Ephron a ſtrong cytie, wherin dwelt many diuerſe people of the Heythen, ⁊ the ſtronge yong men kepte the walles, defendyng them myghtely. In this cytie was much ordynaūce and prouiſion of dartes. But when Judas and his cōpany had called vpon Almyghtye God (whiche wyth his power breaketh the ſtrength of the enemyes) they wāne the cytie, and ſlewe.xxv.M.of thē, ỷ were within. Frō thence wente they to the cytie of the Scithyans, whiche lyeth.vi.C.furlonges from Jeruſalē. But when the Jewes whiche were in the citie teſtyfied, that the cytezyns dealte ſo louyngely with them, yee, and intreated them kyndely in the tyme of their aduerſyte, Judas and his company gaue them thanckes, deſyrynge them to be frēdly ſtyll vnto them: and ſo they came to Jeruſalem the hye feaſte of the wekes beynge at hande. And after the feaſt of Pentecoſt they went forth agaynſte Gorgias the gouernoure of Idumea, wyth. iii.M.men of fote ⁊.iiij.C.horſmen. Which when they met together, it chaunſed a fewe of ỷ Jewes to be ſlayne. F And Doſitheus one of ỷ Bachenors a mighty horſmā toke holde of Gorgias, and wolde haue takē hī quycke. But an horſman of Thracia fell vpon hym, and ſmote of his arme, ſo ỷ Gorgias eſcaped ⁊ fled into Moreſa. When they nowe ỷ were of Gorgias ſyde, had foughten longe ⁊ were weary: Judas called vpō the Lorde, that he wolde be their helper, ⁊ captayne of the felde: and wyth that he beganne wyth a manly voyce to take vp a ſong of prayſe, & a cry: In ſo muche ỹ he made the enemyes afrayed, & Gorgias mē of warre toke their flyght. So Judas gathered his hoſt, & came into ỹ cite of Odolla. And when the ſeuenth day came vpō them, they cleſed them ſelues (as the cuſtome was) & kept the Sabboth in the ſame place. And vpon the day folowyng, Judas & his cōpany came to take vp the bodyes of thē that were ſlaine, & to bury them in the fathers graues. Nowe vnder the cotes of certayne Jewes which were ſlayne, they foūde Jewels that they had taken out of the tēple & frō the Idols of the * Jamniters: whiche thyng is forbydden the Jewes by the law. ut.vii.c. u.vii.a Then euery man ſaw, ỹ this was the cauſe, G wherfore they were ſlaine. And ſo euery mā gaue thanckes vnto ỹ Lorde for hys ryghtuous iudgment, which had opened ỹ thing that was hyd. They fell downe alſo vnto their prayers, & beſought God, ỹ the fawte which was made, might be put out of remēbraūce. Beſydes that, Judas exhorted ỹ people earneſtly, to kepe them ſelues from ſuch ſynne: for ſo much as they ſawe before theyr eyes: ỹ theſe men were ſlaine for the ſame offēce. So he gathered of euery one a certaine, in ſo much ỹ he brought together two thouſande drachmas of ſyluer which he ſent vnto Jeruſalē, that there myght a ſacryfice be offred for the miſſe dede. In the whichplace he dyd wel & ryght: for he had ſome conſyderacion & pondering of ỹ lyfe that is after this tyme. For yf he had not thought that they, which were ſlayne, dyd yet lyue, it had bene ſuperfluous & vayne, to make any vow or ſacryfice for them, ỹ were deed. But for ſo muche as he ſaw, ỹ they which dye i the fauour & beleue of God, are in good reſt and ioy, he thought it to be good & honorable for a recōcylyng, to do the ſame for thoſe which were ſlayne, that the offence myght be forgeuen.

¶ The cōmyng of Eupater into Jewrye. The deth of Menelaus. Machabeus goynge to fyght agaynſt Eupater, moueth his ſouldiars vnto prayer. He ſleyeth .xiiii.M. men in the tētes of Antiochus. Rodocus the betrayer of the Jewes is taken. Antiochus retayneth frendſhype with the Jewes.

CAPI. XIII.

A 1.Mac.vi.b IN ỹ. Cxlix. yeare gatt Judas knowlege, ỹ Antiochus Eupater was cōming with a great power into Jewry, & Lyſias the ſtewarde & ruler of his matters with hym hauing an. C. & x. M. men of fote. v. M. horſmen. xxii. Elephātes. & iii. C. charettes. Menelaus alſo ioyned him ſelfe with them (but with great diſceat) & ſpake faire to the kīge not for any good of ỹ coūtre, but becauſe he thought to haue bene made ſome great mā of auctoryte. But ỹ kyng of kinges moued Antiochus mynde agaynſt thys vngodly perſonne, and Lyſias infourmed the kyng, * that thys Menelaus was the cauſe of all myſchefe: ſo that the king commaunded to take him, and (as the maner of them is) to put him vnto death in the ſame place. ii.Mac.iv.b

There was alſo in the ſame place a towre of. L. cubites hye, heapped with aſſhes: but aboue it was ſo made, that men might loke downe on euery ſyde. Where into the kinge cōmaunded that ſhameful perſon to be caſt among the aſſhes, as one that was cauſe of all vngraciouſnes. And reaſon it was that the vnthrift ſhuld dye ſuch a death, and not to be buried. for he had done much miſchefe vnto the aulter of God (whoſe fyre & aſſhes were holy) therfore was it ryght, ỹ he hym ſelfe alſo ſhulde be deſtroyed wyth aſſhes.

But ỹ kynge was wood in hys mynde, and came to ſhewe him ſelf more cruell vnto the Jewes, then hys father was, B whiche when Judas perceaued, * he cōmaūded the 2.Mac.ix.a people to cal vpon ỹ Lorde night and day: that he wold now helpe thē alſo, lyke as he had done alwaye: For they were afrayed to be put from theyr lawe, from theyr naturall countre and from the holy temple: and not to ſuffre the people (which a lytle while afore beganne to recouer) to be ſubdued agayne of the blaſphemous nacions.

So when they had done thys together, C and beſought the Lord for mercy, with wepynge and faſtynge thre dayes longe, flat vpon the groūde: Judas exhorted them, to make them ſelues ready. But he and the elders together deuiſed, to go forth firſt with theyre people, afore the kynge brought hys hooſt into Jewry, and afore he beſeged the cytie, & ſo to cōmytte the matter vnto God.

Wherfore he aſcrybed the power of all thynges vnto God the maker of ỹ worlde, exhorting his people to fyght mā fully (yee, euen vnto death) for the lawes, the temple, the cyte, theyr owne natyue countre, and to defende the cytezins: and ſet his hoſt before Modyn. He gaue them alſo that were with him, a token of the victory of God, choſyng out the mālyeſt yonge men, wente by night into the kynges pauylyō, ſlewe of the hooſt xiiii. M. men, * & the greateſt Elephantes, 1.Mac.vi.f wyth thoſe that ſat vpon them.

Thus when they had brought a greate D feare and rumour amōge the tētes of theyr enemyes, & all thynges wente proſperouſly with thē, they departed in the breake of the day, God beyng theyr helper and defender.

Nowe

Now whẽ the kynge perceaued the manlyneſſe of the Jewes, he went about to take ỹ ſtronge places by craft, & remoued his hooſte * vnto Bethſura, whiche was a well kepte houſe of defence of the Jewes: but they were chaced away, hurte, & diſconfyted. And Judas ſent vnto thẽ that were in it, ſuch thynges as were neceſſary. In ỹ Jewes hoſt alſo there was one Rhodocus, which tolde the enemies their ſecretes: but they ſought him out, & whẽ they had gottẽ him, they put him in priſon. After this did ỹ king comen with them that were in Bethſura, toke truce with them, departed, & ſtroke a battayl wyth Judas, which ouercame him. But when he vnderſtode, that Phylyp (whom he had left to be ouerſeer of his buſineſſes at Antioch) begãne to rebel againſt him, he was aſtõnyed in his mynde: ſo ỹ he yelded him ſelfe to the Jewes, & made them an othe, to do whatſoeuer they thought ryght. Now whẽ he was reconcyled wt thẽ, he offred, made much of ỹ tẽple, gaue greate gyftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus, makynge him captayne & gouernour frõ Ptolomais vnto the Gaerenes.

Neuertheleſſe when he came to Ptolomays, ỹ people of the cytie were not content with the bonde of frendſhyppe: for they were afraied, that he wolde breake the couenaũt.

Then wente Lyſias vp into the ſeate, and enfourmed the people, ſhewed thẽ the cauſe why, and pacifyed thẽ. So he came agayne to Antioche. Thys is now the matter cõcernyng the kynges iourney, & his returne.

D

¶ By the mocyon of the Lord, Demetrius ſendeth Nicanor to kil the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a cõpact with the Jewes which he yet breaketh through the mocyon of the king. Nicanor cõmaũdeth Razis to be takẽ. The boldnes of Razis.

After thre yeares was Judas infourmed, how that Demetrius the ſõne of Seleucus was come vp wt a greate power & ſhyppes, thorowe the hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne commodyous places & coũtreys, againſt Antiochus and his captayne Lyſias. Now Alcimus (which had bene hye preſt, & wylfully defyled him ſelf, in ỹ tyme of the myxtyng) ſeing, that by no meanes he could be helped, nor haue any more intraũce to ỹ aultare: he came to king Demetrius in the hũdreth & one & fyftye yeare, preſentyng vnto hym a crowne of golde, a palme & an olyue tree: which (as men thought) belõged to the temple, & that daye he helde his tong. But when he had gotten oportunyte for his madneſſe, Demetrius called hym to coũcel, and aſked hym, what thinges or coũcels the Jewes leaned vnto? He anſwered: The Jewes ỹ be called Aſſidei (whoſe captayne is Judas Machabeus) maintaine warres, make inſurreccyons, and wyl not let the realme be in peace.

For I beynge depryued of my fathers honoure (I meane the hye preſthode) am come hyther: partly becauſe I was faithful vnto the kynge, and partly becauſe I ſought the profyt of the cytezyns. And why? all oure people, thorow the wickedneſſe of them, are not a litle troubled. Wherfore I beſeche the (O kynge) conſydre all theſe thynges dylygently, and then make ſome prouyſion for ỹ lande and the people, according to the kyndneſſe that thou haſt offred vnto thẽ. For as lõge as Judas hath the vpperhãde, it is not poſſible that men can lyue in peace,

When he had ſpoken theſe wordes, other frendes alſo hauynge euyll wyll at Judas, ſet the kynge Demetrius on fyre agaynſt hĩ. * Which immediatly ſent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephãtes) a captayne, into Jewrye: cõmaundinge him, to take Judas him ſelfe alyue, but to ſlaye thẽ that were with him, & to make Alcimus hye preſt of ỹ great tẽple.

Then the Heathen which fled oute of Jewry frõ Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes, thinckynge the harme and decay of the Jewes to be theyr welfare. Nowe when the Jewes herde of Nicanors commynge, and the gatheryng together of the Heathẽ: they ſprinckled thẽ ſelues with earth, † & beſought hym, whiche made them hys people, & euer defended hys owne porcion with euydẽt tokens, that he wolde preſerue them ſtyll. So at the commaundemẽt of the captayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Deſſaſon. And Symõ Judas brother fel i hãde wt Nicanor, but thorow ỹ ſodayne commyng of the enemyes, he was afrayed.

Neuertheles Nicanor hearynge the manlynes of them that were wyth Judas, & the bolde ſtomackes that they had to fyght for theyr naturall countre, durſt not proue the matter wyth bloudſheddynge. Wherfore he ſent Poſſidonius, Theodocius & Mathias before, to geue and to take peace. So when they had taken long auiſement there vpõ, and the captaine ſhewed it vnto the multytude, they were agreed in one mynde, to haue peace. And they appointed a day to ſit vpon theſe maters quyetly amonge them ſelues, the ſtoles alſo were brought and ſet forth. Neuertheleſſe Judas commaũded certaine men of armes to wayte in couenient places, leſt there ſhulde ſodenly aryſe any euyl thorow the enemyes. And ſo they cōmoned rea-D ſonably together. Nycanor, whyle he abode at Jeruſalē, ordred him ſelfe not vnreaſonably, but ſent away the people yͭ were gathered together. He loued Judas euer with his hert, ⁊ fauoured him. He prayed him alſo to take a wyfe, ⁊ to brīge forth children. So he maryed, lyued ī reſt, ⁊ they led a comen lyfe. But Alcimus perceauyng yͤ loue that was betwyxte them, ⁊ how they were agreed together, came to Demetrius, ⁊ told him that Nycanor had taken ſtrāūge matters ī hāde ⁊ ordened Judas (an enemy of yͤ realme) to be the kīges ſucceſſour. Then the king was ſore diſpleaſed, ⁊ thorowe yͤ wycked accuſacions whiche Alcimus made of Nicanor, he was ſo prouoked, that he wrote vnto Nycanor, ſaying: that he was very angrie for the frēdſhip ⁊ agremēt, whiche he had made wͭ Machabeus. Neuertheles he cōmaūded hī in al the haſt, that he ſhuld take Machabeus preſoner, and ſēde him to Antioche. Which

E letters when Nicanor had ſene he was at hys wyttes ende, ⁊ ſore greued, yͭ he ſhuld breke the thynges wherin they had agreed: ſpecially, ſeing Machabeus was yͤ mā, yͭ neuer dyd him harme. But becauſe he myght not wͭſtande the kyng, he ſought oportunyte to fulfyl his cōmaundemēt. Notwithſtādinge when Machabeus ſawe yͭ Nicanor beganne to be churlyſh vnto him, ⁊ yͭ he intreated hī more rughly thē he was wont, he perceaued yͭ ſuch vnkyndnes came not of good, ⁊ therfore he gathered a fewe of hys men, ⁊ wythdrew him ſelfe frō Nicanor. Which when he knewe yͭ Machabeus had manfully preuented him, he came into yͤ great ⁊ moſt holy tēple: ⁊ cōmaūded the preſtes (which were doinge their vſual offringes) to delyuer him yͤ mā. And whē they ſware yͭ they could not tel where yͤ mā was whō he ſought, he ſtretched
Ma.7.e. out his hāde, * ⁊ made an othe, ſaying: If ye wyl not delyuer me Judas captyue, I ſhal remoue this tēple of god ī to yͤ plaine felde, I ſhall breake downe the aulter, ⁊ cōſecrate this tēple vnto Bachus. After theſe wordes
F he departed. Thē the preſtes lyft vp their hādes towarde heauē, ⁊ beſought hym yͭ was euer yͤ defēder of their people, ſaying, Thou O Lord of al, which haſt nede of nothynge, woldeſt yͭ the tēple of thy habitacion ſhulde be amōge vs. Therfore now O mooſte holy Ma.4.e. Ma.1.e. Lorde, kepe thys houſe euer vndefyled, * which lately was clenſed. Nowe was there accuſed vnto Nicanor, one Razis an Alderman of Jeruſalē, a louer of the whole cytie, ⁊ a man of good report: which for yͤ kynde hert yͭ he bare vnto the people, was called a father of yͤ Jewes. This mā oft tymes, whē the Jewes were mynded to kepe thē ſelues vndefiled, defēded ⁊ delyuered thē being cōtent ſtedfaſtly to ſpende his body ⁊ hys lyfe for his people. So Nicanor wyllyng to de- G clare yͤ hate yͭ he bare to the Jewes, ſet fyue hundreth men of warre to take hym: for he thought, yf he gat hym he ſhulde brynge the Jewes in great decay. Nowe when the people beganne to ruſh into hys houſe, to breake the dores, ⁊ to ſet fyre on it: he beynge nowe taken, wolde haue defended him ſelfe with hys ſwearde: choſynge rather to dye manfully, then to yelde him ſelfe to thoſe wicked doers: ⁊ becauſe of his noble ſtocke, he had rather haue bene put to extreme cruelte. Notwithſtanding what tyme as he myſſed of hys ſtroke for haſt, ⁊ the multytude fel in violētly betwixte the dores: he ranne boldly to the wall, ⁊ caſt him ſelfe downe manfully among the heape of them, which gaue ſome place to his fall, ſo that he fel vpon hys bely. Neuertheleſſe whyle there was yet breth wythin him, he was kyndled in his mynde, ⁊ whyle his bloude guſſhed out exceadīgly (for he was very ſore woūded) he ranne thorow the myddeſt of the people, and gat hym to the toppe of a rocke. So when his bloude was nowe gone, he toke out his owne bowels with both his hādes, ⁊ threw thē vpon yͤ people: callyng vpō yͤ Lord of lyfe ⁊ ſpryte, to rewarde him this agayne, and ſo he dyed.

¶ Nicanor goeth aboute to come vpon Judas on the Sabboth day. The blaſphemy of Nicanor. Machabeus expoūdyng vnto the Jewes the viſyō boldeneth theyr hertes. The prayer of Machabeus. After the hoſt of Nicanor is ouercome, Machabeus commaundeth his hed and his handes to be cut of, and his tonge to be geuen vnto fowles.

CAPI. XV.

A NOwe when * Nicanor knewe yͭ Judas was in the countre of Samaria, he 1.Mac.7.d. thought wͭ al his power to ſtryke a felde wͭ him vpon a Sabboth daye. Neuertheles the Jewes yͭ were cōpelled to go wͭ him, ſayde: O do not ſo cruelly ⁊ vnkyndly, but halow the Sabboth daye, and worſhype hym that ſeyth all thynges. For all thys, yet ſayde the vngracyous perſonne: * Is there a myghty 1.Reg.xx.c. one in heauē, that cōmaūded the Sabboth daye to be kepte? And when they ſayde yet the lyuynge God, the myghtye Lorde in heauen * commaunded the ſeuenth daye to be Exod.xx.b. kept, he ſayd: And I am mighty vpō earth, to commaūde them for to arme them ſelues, ⁊ to perfourme the kynges buſyneſſe. Notwͭſtādyng he myght not haue his purpoſe.

B Nicanor had deuyſed with great pryde to ouercome Judas, & to brynge away the vyctory. But Machabeus had euer a faſt confydence & a perfect hope in god, that he wolde helpe him, & exhorted his people, not to be afrayed at the cōming of the Heathen: but alway to remembre the helpe that had bene ſhewed vnto the frō heauen, yee & to be ſure now alſo, that almyghtye God wolde geue them the vyctory. He ſpake vnto them out of the law & prophetes, puttinge thē in remembraũce of the battayls, that they had ſtriken afore, and made them to be of a good corage.

So when theyr hartes were plucte vp, he ſhewed them alſo the diſceatfulneſſe of the Heathen, and how they wolde kepe no couenaũt nor othe. Thus he weapened them nat wyth the armoure of ſhylde & ſpeare, but wͭ wholſome wordes and exhortacyōs. C He ſhewed thē a dreame alſo, wherthorow he made them al glad, whiche was thys: he thought that he ſawe Onias (whiche had bene hye preſt, a vertuous & louing man, ſad & of honeſt cōuerſacion, wel ſpoken, & one that had bene exercyſed in Godlynes from a chylde) holdyng vp his handes towarde heauen, & praying for his people. After this ther apeared vnto hī another man, which was aged, honorable & glorious. And Onias ſayde. This is a louer of the brethren, & of the people of Iſraell. This is he that prayeth much for the people, and for al yͤ holy citie: Jeremy the prophet of god. He thought alſo that Jeremy helde out his ryght hāde, & gaue vnto Judas a ſwearde of gold, ſaying: Take thy holy ſweard, a gyft frō god, wherwith thou ſhalt ſmyte downe the enemyes of the people of Iſrael. And ſo they were wel cōforted thorow the wordes of Judas, & toke corage vnto them, ſo that the yōge men were determyned in theyr myndes to fyghte, & to byde ſtyfly at it: In ſo much yͭ i the thīges which they toke in hande, their boldneſſe ſhewed yͤ ſame, becauſe the holy cytie and the temple were in parell: for the which they toke more care, then for theyr wyues, chyldren, brethren & kynsfolckes. Agayne, they that were in the [illegible], were moſt careful for thoſe which were to fight. Nowe when they were al in a hope that the iudgmēt of the matter was at hāde, & the enemyes drew nye, the hoſt beyng ſet i aray, yͤ Elephātes & horſmen euery one ſtādyng in hys place: Machabeus conſydered the cōming of the multytude, yͤ ordynaunce

C And ſo all the generacyons from Abraham to Dauid, are fourtene generacyons: And from Dauid vnto the captiuite of Babilon, are fourtene generacions. And from the captiuite of Babilon vnto Chryſt, are xiiii. generacyons. The byrthe of Jeſus Chryſt was on this wyſe. ✠ When his mother Mary was maryed to Joſeph (before they came to dwel togyther) ſhe was founde with chylde by the holy gooſt. Then Joſeph her huſbande (bycauſe he was a ryghteous man, and wolde not put her to ſhame) he was mynded priuely to departe from her. But whyle he thus thought, beholde, the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym in ſlepe, ſayenge: Joſeph, thou ſonne of Dauid: feare not to take vnto the Mary thy wyfe. For that whiche is conceyued in her, cometh of the holy gooſt. D She ſhall brynge forth a ſonne, and thou ſhalt call his name * Jeſus. For he ſhall ſaue his people from theyr ſynnes.

¶ The tyme and place of Chryſtes byrth. The wyſe men offer theyr preſentes. Chryſt fleeth in to Egypte, the yonge chyldren are ſlayne, Chryſt turneth in to Galile.

CAPI. II. ✠

A WHen Jeſus was borne at Bethleem a cytye of Jury, in the tyme of Herode the kyng. Beholde, there came wyſemen from the Eaſt to Juruſalem, ſayenge: where is he that is borne kynge of Jues? For we haue ſene his * ſterre in the Eaſt, and are come to worſhyp hym. When Herode the kynge had herde theſe thynges, he was troubled, and al the cytye of Jeruſalem with hym; And when he had gathered all the cheyfe Preeſtes and ſcrybes of the people togyther, he demaunded of them, where Chryſt ſhulde be borne.

Nu. xxiiii.

And they ſayde vnto hym: at Bethleem in Jury. For thus it is wrytten by the prophet: ☞ * And thou Bethleem in the land of Juda, arte not the leaſt amonge the Prynces of Juda. For * out of the ſhall there come vnto me the captayne, that ſhall gouerne my people Iſraell.

Joh. vii. f

B Then Herode (when he had priuely called the wyſemen) he enquyred of them dilygently what tyme the ſterre appeared, and he bad them go to Bethleem and ſayde: Go youre waye thyther, and ſearche dilygently for the chylde. And when ye haue found him / brynge me worde agayne, that I maye come & worſhyp hym alſo. ✠ When they had herde the kynge, they departed: and lo, the ſterre which they ſawe in the Eaſt, went before them / tyll it came, and ſtode ouer the place, wherin the chylde was: When they ſawe the ſterre, they were exceadynge glad: & went in to the houſe / and founde the chylde with Mary his mother * and fell downe flat and worſhypped hym, and opened theyr treaſures, and offered vnto hym gyftes, golde, frankynſence, and myrre. And after they were warned of god in ſlepe (that they ſhulde not go agayne to Herode) they returned in to theyr owne countrey another waye. ⊦ C When they were departed: beholde, the angel of the lorde appeared to Joſeph in ſlepe ſayeng: aryſe and take the chyld and his mother, & flee in to Egypt, and be thou there tyll I brynge the worde.

For it wyll come to paſſe, that Herode ſhal ſeke the chylde, to deſtroye hym. So when he awoke, he toke the chylde and his mother by nyght, and departed in to Egypte, and was there vnto the death of Herode: that it might be fulfylled, whiche was ſpoken of the lorde by the Prophet, ſayeng: * out of Egypt haue I called my ſonne. Then Herode when he ſawe that he was mocked of the wyſe men, he was exceadynge wroth, and ſent forth men of warre, and ſlue all the chyldren that were in Bethleem, and in all the cooſtes (as many as were two yere olde or vnder) accordynge to the tyme, which he had diligently knowen out of the wyſe men. Then was fulfylled that, whiche was ſpoken by the Prophet Jeremy: where as he ſayde: in Rama was there a voyce herde * lamentacyon, weppynge, and great mournynge: Rachell weppynge for her chyldren, and wolde not be conforted ☞ bycauſe they were not. ⊦

¶ The diſciples plucke the eares of corne. Chryſt healeth the dryed hande, helpeth the poſſeſſed that was blynde & dombe, and ſheweth who is his brother, ſyſter, and mother.

CAPI. XII.

A AT that tyme Jeſus went on the Sabboth dayes * thorowe the corne, and his diſciples were an hungred, and began to * plucke the eares of corne, and to eate. But when the Phariſes ſawe it, they ſayd vnto hym: Beholde, thy diſciples do that, which is not lawfull ⁂ (for them) to do vpon the Sabboth day. But he ſayd vnto them: Haue ye not red what Dauid dyd, when he was an hungred, & they that were with hym? * Howe he entred in to the houſe of god, and dyd eate the ſhewe breades, whiche were not lawfull for hym to eate, neyther for them whiche were with hym, but onely for the preeſtes? Or haue ye not red in the lawe, howe that (on the Sabboth dayes) the preeſtes in the temple breake the Sabboth, and are blameleſſe? But I ſay vnto you: that in this place is one greater then the temple. Wherfore, yf ye wyſt what this meaneth, * I requyre mercy, and not ſacrifyce: ye wolde not haue condemned innocentes. ⊦ For the ſonne of man alſo, is lorde euen of the Sabboth day. And he departed thence * and went in to the ſynagoge: and beholde, there was a man which had his hande dryed vp. And they aſked hym ſayenge: * Is it lawful to heale vpon the Sabboth dayes? that they myght accuſe hym. And he ſayd vnto them: whiche of you wyll it be, that ſhall haue * a ſhepe, and yf it fall into a pyt on the Sabboth day, wyll he not take it and lyfte it out? Howe moche more then is a man better then a ſhepe? Wherfore, it is lawfull to do a good dede on the Sabboth dayes.

Then ſayth he to the man: ſtretche forthe thy hande. And he ſtretched it forthe. And it was reſtored vnto helth, lyke as the other. B

⊦ * Then the Phariſes went out, and helde a counſel agaynſt hym, howe they myght deſtroy hym. But when Jeſus knewe it, he departed thence, & moche people folowed hym, and he healed them all, & charged them, that they ſhulde not make hym knowen: that it myghte be fulfylled whiche was ſpoken by Eſay the prophet, whiche ſayeth: * Beholde my chylde, whom I haue choſen, my beloued in whom my ſoule delyteth. I wyll put my ſpirite vpon hym, and he ſhall ſhewe iudgement to the gentyls. He ſhall not ſtryue nor crye, neyther ſhall any man heare his voyce in the ſtretes, a broſed reed ſhall he not breake and ſmokyng flaxe ſhall he not quenche, tyll he ſende forth iudgement vnto victorye, and in his name ſhall the gentyls truſt. ⊦

* Then was brought to hym a blynde and dombe man, that was vexed with a deuyll: & he healed hym, in ſo moch, that the blynd and dombe, both ſpake & ſawe. And all the people were amaſed, & ſayde: Is not this that ſonne of Dauid? * But when the Phariſes herde it, they ſayd. This felow dryueth the deuyls none otherwyſe out, but by the helpe of Belzebub the cheyfe of the deuyls. But when Jeſus knew theyr thoughtes, he ſayd vnto them: Euery kyngdome deuyded agaynſt it ſelfe, ſhall be brought to nought.

C And euery citye or houſe deuyded agaynſt it ſelfe, ſhall not ſtande. And yf Satan caſte out Satan, then is he deuyded agaynſt hym ſelfe. How ſhall then his kyngdome endure? Alſo, yf I by the helpe of Belzebub caſt oute deuyls, by whoſe helpe do your chyldren caſt them out? Therfore, they ſhal be your iudges. But yf I caſt out the deuyls by the ſpirite of God, then is the kyngdome of God come vnto you. Or els * howe can one entre in to a ſtronge mannes houſe, and ſpoyle his Juels excepte he fyrſt bynde the ſtronge man, and then ſpoyle hys houſe?

* He that is not with me, is agaynſt me. And he that gathereth not with me, ſcattereth abrode. Wherfore I ſaye vnto you, all maner of ſynne and blaſphemye ſhall be forgyuen vnto men, * but the blaſphemye agaynſt the ſpirite, ſhal not be forgyuen vnto men. * And who ſoeuer ſpeaketh a worde agaynſt the ſonne of man, it ſhall be forgyuen hym. But whoſoeuer ſpeaketh agaynſt the holy gooſt, it ſhal not be forgyuen hym, neyther in this worlde, nor in the worlde to come. * Eyther make the tree good, and the fruyte good, or els make the tree euyll, ⁊ his fruyte euyll. * For the tree is knowen by his fruyte. O generacyon of vypers, howe can ye ſpeake good thynges, when ye your ſelues are euyll? * For out of the aboundaũce of the herte, the mouth ſpeaketh. A good mã out of the good treaſure of the herte, bryngeth forthe good thynges. And an euyll man, out of euyl treaſure, bryngeth forth euyl thynges. But I ſay vnto you, of euery ydle worde that men ſhall haue ſpoken, they ſhal gyue accountes in the daye of iudgement. * For out of thy wordes thou ſhalte be iuſtified: and out of thy wordſ thou ſhalte be condemned. ⊦

✠ Then certayne of the ſcribes and of the phariſes aſked hym, ſayenge. * Mayſter, we D wyll ſe a ſygne of the. But he anſwered and ſayd to them. * The euyll and aduouterous generacion * ſeketh a ſygne and there ſhall no ſygne be gyuen to them, but the ſygne of the prophet Ionas. * For as Ionas was thre dayes and thre nyghtes in the whales belly: ſo ſhall the ſonne of man be thre dayes ⁊ thre nyghtes in the herte of the earth. The he ſayth: I wyll returne in to my houſe, from whence I came out. And when he is come, he fyndeth it emptye, and ſwepte, and garnyſſhed. Then goeth he, ⁊ taketh vnto hym ſeuen other ſpirites worſe then hym ſelfe, and ſo entreth he in, and dwelleth there. And * the ende of that man is worſe then the begynnynge. Euen ſo ſhal it be alſo, vnto this froward generacion. Whyle he yet talked to the people: * behold his mother and his brethren ſtode without, deſyryng to ſpeake with hym. Then one ſayd vnto hym: Beholde, * thy mother ⁊ thy brethren ſtande without, deſyrynge to ſpeake with the. But he anſwered, and ſayde vnto hym that had tolde hym: Who is my mother? or who are my brethren? And he ſtretched forth his hande towarde his diſciples, and ſayde: * beholde, my mother and my brethren. Some fell vpon ſtony places, where they had not moche earth, and anone they ſprang vp, bicauſe they had no depenes of earth, and when the ſonne was vp, they caught heate, ⁊ bicauſe they had no rote, they wythered away Agayne, ſome fell amonge thornes, and the thornes ſprange vp and chooked them. Mar.iiii.b. Luke.viii.b. ✱ Heare ye therfore the ſimilitude of the ſower. Whē one heareth the worde of the kyngdom, ⁊ vnderſtandeth it not, then cometh the euyll man, and taketh awaye that which was ſowē in his hert: this is he, which was ſowen by the waye ſyde. But he that receyued the ſede whiche was caſt in to ſtonye places, the ſame is he that heareth the worde, and anone with ioy receyueth it, yet hath he no rote in hym ſelfe, but dureth for a ſeaſon: for when tribulacyon or perſecucyon happeneth bycauſe of the worde, by ⁊ by he falleth. He alſo that receyued ſede in to the thornes, is he that heareth the worde: and the care of this worlde, and the deceytefulnes of ryches, choke vp the worde, ⁊ ſo is he made vnfruytful. But he that receyueth ſede in to the good grounde, is he that heareth the worde, ⁊ vnderſtandeth it: which alſo beareth fruyte, and bryngeth forth, ſome an hundred folde, ſome ſyxtye folde, ſome thyrtye folde.

D In other ſimilitude put he forth vnto them ſayenge: Mar.iiii.c. ✚ ✱ The kyngdom of heuen is lykened vnto a man, whiche ſowed good ſede in his felde. But whyle men ſlepte, his enemy came, and ſowed tares amonge the wheate, and went his way. But when the blade was ſpronge vp, and had brought forthe fruyte, then appeared the tares alſo. So the ſeruauntes of the houſholder came, and ſayde vnto hym. Syr, dydeſt not thou ſow good ſede in thy felde? from whence then hath it tares? He ſayd vnto them: the enuyous man hath done this. The ſeruauntes ſayde vnto hym: wylte thou then that we go, and wede them vp? but he ſayde nay, leſt whyle ye gather vp the tares, ye plucke vp alſo the wheate with them, let bothe growe togyther vntyll the harueſt, and in tyme of harueſt, I wyll ſaye vnto the reapers: gather ye fyrſt the tares, and bynde them togyther in ſheaues to be burnt: but gather the wheate in to my barne. ⊦

✚ An other parable put he forth vnto them ſayenge: Mar.iiii.c. Luke.xiii.f. ✱ The kyngdome of heuen is lyke vnto a grayne of muſtarde ſede, which a mā toke and ſowed in his felde, which is the leaſt of all ſedes. But when it is growen, it is the greateſt amonge herbes, and is a tree: ſo that the byrdes of the ayre come, and make theyr neſtes in the braunches therof.

An other ſimilitude ſpake he vnto them: ✱ The kyngdome of heuen is lyke vnto leuē, whiche a woman taketh and hydeth in thre peckes of meele, tyl all be leuened. ✱ All theſe thynges ſpake Jeſus vnto the people by ſimilitudes, and without a parable ſpake he nothyng vnto them: that it myght be fulfylled, whiche was ſpoken by the prophet, that ſayeth, ✱ I wyll open my mouth in parables: I wyl ſpeake forth thynges which haue bene kepte ſecrete frome the begynnynge of the worlde. ⊦ When the people were ſent away, then came Jeſus in to the houſe. ✱ ✚ And his diſciples came vnto hym, ſayenge: declare vnto vs the parable of the tares of the felde. He anſwered ⁊ ſayd vnto them: He that ſoweth the good ſeed, is the ſonne of man. The felde is the worlde. And the chyldren of the kyngdome, they are the good ſeed: the tares are the children of the wicked: the enemy that ſoweth them, is the deuyll. The harueſt is the ende of the worlde: the reapers be the angels. Euē as the tares therfore, are gathered ⁊ burnt in the fyre: ſo ſhal it be in the ende of this worlde.

✱ The ſonne of man ſhall ſende forthe his angels, ⁊ they ſhall gather out of his kyngdome all thynges that offende, ⁊ them which do iniquite: ⁊ ſhall caſt them in to a fournace of fyre. There ſhall be waylyng ⁊ gnaſſhyng of teeth. ✱ Then ſhal the righteous ſhyne as the ſon in the kyngdom of theyr father. Who ſo euer hath eares to heare, let hym heare. ⊦

✚ Agayne, the kyngdome of heuen is lyke vnto treaſure hyd in the felde, the whiche a man hath founde and hyd: and for ioy therof goeth ⁊ ſelleth al that he hath, and byeth the felde. Agayne the kyngdom of heuen is lyke vnto a merchaunt man, ſekyng goodly pearles, which (whē he foūde one precious pearle) went ⁊ ſolde all that he had, and bought it. Jeſus ſayth vnto them: haue ye vnderſtande all theſe thynges? They ſaye vnto hym: yea lorde. Then ſayde he vnto them.

G Therfore euery ſcribe which is taught vnto the kyngdom of heuen, is lyke vnto a man that is an houſholder, which bryngeth forth out of his treaſure, thynges new and olde. ⊦ And it came to paſſe, that when Jeſus had fyniſhed theſe ſimilitudes, ✱ he departed thence.

And when he came into his owne countrey, he taught them in theyr ſynagoges, in ſo moch that * they were aſtonyed, and ſayd: whence cometh this wyſdome, ⁊ powers vnto hym? * Is not this the carpenters ſonne? Is not his mother called Mary? and his brethren James and Joſes and Symon and Judas? And are not all his ſyſters with vs? Whence hath he then al theſe thynges. And they were offended at hym. Jeſus ſayde vnto them. * A prophet is not without honoure, ſaue in his owne countrey, and in his owne houſe.

And he dyd not many myracles there, bycauſe of theyr vnbeleſe.

A AT that tyme * Herode the Tetrarcha herde of the fame of Jeſu, and ſayd vnto his ſeruaũtes: this is Iohñ the Baptyſt. He is ryſen from the deade, and therfore are myracles wrought by hym. For Herode had * taken Iohñ, and bounde hym, and put hym in pryſon bycauſe of Herodias, his brother Philips wyfe. For Iohñ ſayd vnto hym: * It is not lawfull for the to haue her. And when he wolde haue put hym to death, he feared the people, * bycauſe they counted hym as a prophet. But when Herodes * byrth day was kepte, the doughter of Herodias daũſed before them, ⁊ pleaſed Herode. * Wherfore he promiſed with an othe, that he wold gyue her what ſoeuer ſhe wolde aſke. CAPI. XXVI.

A AND it came to paſſe, when Ieſus had fyniſſhed al theſe ſayenges, he ſayd vnto
Mar. xiiii. a Luke. xxii. a his diſciples: ✠* Ye knowe that after two dayes ſhalbe Eaſter, and the ſon of man ſhall be delyuered ouer, to be crucifyed.
Iohn. xi. f * Then aſſembled togyther the cheyfe preeſtes and the ſcribes and the elder of the peple vnto the palace of the hygh Preeſt / (whiche was called Cayphas) & helde a counſell, that they myght take Ieſus by ſubteltie, and kyll hym: but they ſayde: not on the holy day, leſt there be an vproure amonge the people.

When * Ieſus was in Bethany, in the Mar. 14. a Iohn. xii. a houſe of Symon the leper, there came vnto hym a woman * hauyng an alabaſter boxe of Luke. vii. precious oyntment, & powred it on his head, as he ſat at the borde. But when his diſciples ſaw it, they had indignacion, ſayeng: Wherto ſerueth this waſte? This oyntment myght haue bene well ſolde, and gyuen to the poore. When Ieſus vnderſtode that, he ſayd vnto them: why trouble ye the woman? For ſhe hath wrought ☞ a good worke vpon me. * For ye ☞ Iohn. xii. haue the poore alwayes with you: But me ſhall ye not haue alwayes. And in that ſhe hath caſt this oyntment on my body, ſhe dyd it to burye me. Verely I ſay vnto you: whereſoeuer this goſpell ſhal be preached in all the worlde, there ſhal alſo this that ſhe hath done be tolde for a memoryall of her.

* Then one of the twelue (whiche was called Iudas Iſcarioth) wente vnto the cheyfe Mar. 14. b Luke. xxii. a Iohn. xiii. preeſtes, and ſayde vnto them: What wyll ye gyue me, and I wyll delyuer hym vnto you? And they appoynted vnto hym thyrtie peces of ſyluer. And frõ that tyme forth, he ſought oportunite to betray hym. * The fyrſt day of Mar. 14. b Luke. xxii. ſwete bread, the diſciples came to Ieſus, ſayenge vnto hym: where wylt thou that we prepare for the, to eate the ☞ Paſſeouer? And he ☞ he ſayd: go in to the citye, to ſuche a man, and ſaye vnto hym, the mayſter ſayeth: My tyme is at hande, I wyll kepe myne Eaſter by the, with my diſciples. And the diſciples dyd as Ieſus had appoynted them, and they made redy the Paſſeouer. * When the euen was Mar. xiiii. Luke. xxii. come, he ſat downe with the twelue. And as they dyd eate, he ſayd. Verely I ſay vnto you that * one of you ſhall betraye me. And they Iohn. xiii. were exceadyng ſorowfull, & began euery one of them to ſay vnto him: Lorde, is it I? He anſwered & ſayd: he that dyppeth his hand with me in the dyſſhe, the ſame ſhall betray me.

* The ſonne of man truely goeth, as it is Pſal. xli. C wrytten of hym: but wo vnto that man, by whom the ſonne of man is betrayed. It had bene good for that man, yf he had not bene borne. Then Iudas whiche betrayed hym, anſwered, and ſayde: Mayſter, is it I? He ſayde vnto hym: thou haſt ſayde. When they were eatyng, Ieſus toke bread, & when he had gyuen thankſ, he brake it, & gaue it to the diſciples, & ſayd: * Take, eate, this is my i. Corin. xi. Luke. xxii. b Mar. 14. c body. And he toke the cup, and thanked, and gaue it them, ſayenge: drynke ye all of this.

For this is my bloode (whiche is of the newe teſtament) that is ſhed for many, for the remyſſyon of ſynnes. But I ſaye vnto you: I

CAPI. XI.

A AND the apoſtles and brethren that were in Juery, herde that the hethen had alſo receyued the worde of God. And when Peter was come vp to Jeruſalem, they that were of the circumciſyon, contended agaynſt hym, ſayeng: Deut.vii * Thou wenteſt in to men vncircumciſed, and dydeſt eate with them. But Peter reherſed the matter from the begynnynge, and expounded it by order vnto them ſayenge: Actes.x.b * J was in the citye of Joppa, prayenge, and in a traunce, J ſawe a viſion, a certayne veſſell deſcende, as it had bene a great ſhete, let downe from heuen by the foure corners, and it came to me. Vnto the whiche whe J had faſtened myne eyes, J conſidered, and Leuit.xi. Deut. ſawe * foure foted beaſtes of the earth, and vermen and wormes, and foules of the ayre.

B But J ſayde: not ſo Lorde, for nothynge comon or vncleane hathe at any tyme entred in to my mouth. But the voyce anſwered me agayne frome heuen: counte not thou thoſe thynges comon, whiche God hath clenſed. And this was done thre tymes. And al were taken vp agayne in to heuen.

And beholde, immediatly there were thre men alredye come to the houſe where I was ſent from Ceſarea vnto me. And the ſpirite ſayde vnto me, that I ſhulde go with them, without doutyng. Moreouer * theſe ſyxe brethren accompanyed me: and we entred in to the mans houſe. And he ſhewed vs, howe he had ſene an angell in his houſe, whiche ſtode and ſayde to hym: ſende men to Ioppa, ⁊ call for Symon, whoſe ſyrname is Peter: he ſhal tel the wordes, wherby thou and al thy houſe ſhalbe ſaued. C And as I began to preache, the holy gooſt fell on them, * as he dyd on vs at the begynnyng. Then came it to my remembraunce, howe that the Lorde ſayde: * Iohn baptyſed with water: but ye ſhall be baptyſed with the holy gooſt. For as moche then as god gaue them lyke giftes as he dyd vnto vs, whē we byleued on the lorde Ieſus Chriſt

What was I, that I ſhulde haue withſtande god? When they herde this, they helde theyr peace, and glorified god, ſayenge: then hath God alſo to the Gentyls graunted repentaunce vnto lyfe.

* They alſo which were ſcattered abrode thorowe the affliccion that aroſe about Steuen, walked thorowout vnto Phenices and Cypers, and Antioche, preachyng the worde to no man, but vnto the Iues onely. Some of them were men of Cypers ⁊ Cyren: which when they were come to Antioche, ſpake vnto the Grekes, and preached the lorde Ieſus. And the hande of the Lorde was with them, and a great nombre byleued and turned vnto the lorde. Tydynges of theſe thyngꝭ came vnto the eares of the congregacyon, whiche was in Ieruſalem. And they ſent forth Barnabas, that he ſhulde go vnto Antioche.

D Which when he came, and had ſene the grace of God, was glad, and * exhorted them all, that with purpoſe of herte, they wolde contynuallye cleue vnto the Lorde. For he was a good man, and full of the holy gooſt and of fayth: and moche people was added vnto the lorde. Then departed Barnabas to Tarſus for to ſeke Saul.

And when he had founde hym, he brought hym vnto Antioche. And it chaunſed that a hole yere they had theyr conuerſacyon with the congregacyon there, and taught moche people: in ſo moche that the diſciples of Antioche were the fyrſt that were called chriſten.

* In thoſe dayes came Prophettes from the citye of Ieruſalem vnto Antioche. And there ſtode vp one of them named Agabus, and ſignified by the ſpirite, that there ſhulde be greate derthe thorowout all the worlde, whiche came to paſſe in the Emperour Claudius dayes. Then the diſciples euery man accordynge to his abilite, purpoſed to ſende * ſuccoure vnto the brethren whiche dwelte in Iurye. Whiche thynge they alſo dyd, and ſente it to the elders, by the handes of Barnabas and Saul.

But we beleue, that thorow the grace of the Lorde Jeſu Chriſt, we ſhalbe ſaued, as they do. Then all the multitude was peaſed and gaue audience to Barnabas ⁊ Paul, whiche tolde what ſygnes ⁊ wondres God had ſhewed amonge the Gentyls by them.

C And when they helde theyr peace, James anſwered, ſayinge: Men ⁊ brethren, herken vnto me. Simeon tolde, howe God at yͤ begynninge dyd viſit yͤ gentyls, to receaue of thē a people in hys name. And to thys agre yͤ wordes of the prophetes, as it is wrytten, ix.b. * After thys J wyl returne, and wyl buylde agayne yͤ tabernacle of Dauid, which is fallen downe: ⁊ that whiche is fallen in decaye of it, wyl J bulde agayne, ⁊ J wyl ſet it vp, yͤ the reſydue of mē myght ſeke after yͤ Lorde, ⁊ alſo the Gentyls vpō whom my name is named ſayth the Lorde, which doth all theſe thynges: knowē vnto God are all his workes frō the begynnīg of the worlde. From whiche yf ye kepe youre ſelues, ye ſhall do well. So fare ye well.

F When they therfore were departed, they came to Antioche ⁊ gathered the multitude together, and delyuered the piſtle. Whiche when they had red, they reioyſed of yͤ conſolacyon. And Judas and Sylas beyng Prophetes, exhorted the brethren wt much preachyng, and ſtrengthed them. And after they had taryed there a ſpace, they were let go in peace of yͤ brethren vnto the Apoſtles. G But after a certayne ſpace, Paul ſayde vnto Barnabas: Let vs go agayne, and vyſyte oure brethren in euery cytie where we haue ſhewed the worde of the Lorde and ſe howe they do. And Barnabas gaue councel to take with thē Jhon, whoſe ſyrname was Marke. But Paul wolde not take him vnto theyr company * which departed frō them at Pamphilia, and went not wt them to the worke. Actes.xiii.c And the contencion was ſo ſharpe betwene them: that they departed aſunder one from the other and ſo Barnabas toke Marke, ⁊ ſayled vnto Cypers. A THEN came he to Derba ⁊ to Lyſtra And beholde, a certayne diſcyple was there named Tymotheus, a womās ſonne, whiche was a Jeweſſe and beleued, but his father was a Greke. Of whom reported well the brethren that were at Lyſtra and Iconium. Hym wolde Paul that he ſhulde go forth with hym, ⁊ toke and circumcyſed hym, becauſe of the Jewes whiche were in thoſe quarters: for they knewe all, that hys father was a Greke. As they went thorow the cytyes, they delyuered them the decrees for to kepe, yͤ were * ordayned of the Apoſtles and elders, which were at Jeruſalem. Actes.xv.e. And ſo were the cōgregacions ſtabliſhed in the fayth, and encreaſed in nombre dayly.

B Whē they had gone thorowout Phrigia, and the region of Galacia, ⁊ * were forbydden of the holy gooſt to preach the worde in Aſia, they came to Myſia, ⁊ ſought to go into Bethynia. But the ſpirit ſuffred thē not Roma.i.c.

But whan they had gone thorowe Myſia, Actes.xv.c. they came downe to * Troada. And a viſion appered to Paul in the nyght. There ſtode a mā of Macedonia and prayed hym ſaying: come into Macedonia, ⁊ helpe vs. After he

And it fortuned as we went to prayer a certayne damſel poſſeſſed wᵗ a ſpirit yͭ prophecyed, met vs, which brought her maſter

iiii. thouſande men that were murtherers? But Paul ſayd: I am a mã which am a Iew Actes.ix.b and.xxii.a of * Tharſus a citie in Cicill, a Citiſin of no vyle cytie, I beſeche yͤ ſuffre me to ſpeke vnto the people. And whẽ he had giuen him lycẽce, Actes.xix.d Paul ſtode on the ſteppes, * ⁊ beckned wͭ the hande vnto the people: ⁊ whan there was made a gret ſylence, he ſpake vnto thẽ in the Hebrue tong ſaying.

¶ Paul anſwereth the Iewes, he is ſcourged, and layde in pryſon agayne.

CAPI. XXII.

A MEn, brethren, ⁊ fathers, heare ye myne anſwere which I make now vnto you When they herde that he ſpake in the Ebrue tong to them, they kept the more ſilẽce. And he ſayeth. I am verely a man whiche am a Actes.ix.b and.xxi.g Iewe borne in * Tharſus, a cite in Cicyl: neuertheleſſe yet brought vp in thys cytie, at Actes.v.g. the fete of Gamaliel, and informed diligently in the lawe of the fathers, and was feruent mynded to god ward, as ye al are this ſame Actes.viii.a. and.ix.a. and.xxvi.b 1.Corin.xv.b. Gala.i.b. day, and * I perſecuted this waye vnto the deth byndyng ⁊ delyuering into priſon both men and wemen, as the chefe preſt doth beare me wytnes, and all the eſtate of the elders: of whome alſo I receyued letters vnto the brethren, and went to Damaſco to bringe them (which were there bounde) vnto Ieruſalem for to be punyſhed.

B And it fortuned (that as I made my iorney and was come nye vnto Damaſco aboute none) ſodenly there ſhone from heuen a gret lyghte rounde aboute me, and I fell vn- Actes.ix.a to the earth, and herde a voyce ſaying vnto me: * Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? And I anſwered: what art thou Lorde? And he ſayd vnto me. I am Ieſus of Nazareth, whom thou perſecuteſt. And they that were wyth me: ſawe verely a lyght and were afrayed: but they herde not the voyce of hym that ſpake wyth me. And I ſayde: what ſhal I do Lorde? And the Lorde ſayde vnto me: Aryſe and go into Damaſco, ⁊ there it ſhalbe tolde the of all thynges, which are apointed for the to do. And when I ſawe nothyng for the brightnes of that light, I was led by the hand of them that were with me, ⁊ came into Damaſco.

‡ And one Ananias a perfecte man, (and C as pertaynynge to the lawe hauynge good Actes.ix.b reporte of al the Iewes which there dwelt) came vnto me, and ſtode, and ſayde vnto me: Brother SAVLE, receyue thy ſyght. And the ſame houre I receaued my ſyghte, and ſawe hym. And he ſayde: the God of our Fathers hath ordayned the before, that thou ſhuldeſt knowe hys wyll, and ſe the thynge that is ryghtefull, and ſhuldeſt heare the voyce of hys mouthe: for thou ſhalte be hys wytneſſe vnto all men of thoſe thynges, whyche thou haſte ſene and herde. And nowe: why taryeſt thou? Aryſe, and be Baptyſed, and waſſhe awaye thy Roma. ſynnes * in callynge on the name of the LORDE, And it fortuned, that when I D was come agayne to Ieruſalem and prayed in the Temple, I was in a traunce, and ſawe hym ſaying vnto me: Make haſt and get the quyckely out of Ieruſalem: for they wyl not receyue thy wytnes that thou bereſt of me.

And I ſayde: Lorde, they knowe, that I pryſoned and bet in euery ſynagoge thẽ that beleued on the.

* And when the bloude of thy wytneſſe Steuen was ſhed, I alſo ſtode by, and conſented vnto his death, and kept the raiment of them that ſlewe him. And he ſayde vnto me depart, for * I wyll ſende the farre hence vnto the Gentyls.

They gaue hym audyence vnto thys worde, and then lyfte vp theyre voyces and ſayde: away wyth ſuche a felowe from the earthe: for it is no reaſon that he ſhulde lyue. And as they cryed, and caſte of theyr clothes, and threw duſte into the ayre, the captayne commaunded hym to be broughte into the Caſtle, and bad that he ſhulde be ſcourged, and to be examined, that he might knowe, wherefore they cryed ſo on hym. And whan they bounde hym with thonges, Paule ſayde vnto the Centurion that ſtode by him: Is it lawefull for you to ſcourge a man that is a Romayne and vncondemned? When the Centurion heard that, he wente and told the vpper Captayne ſaying: What intendeſt thou to do? For this man is *(a cytezen) of Rome.

Then the vpper Captayne came, ⁊ ſayd vnto him: tell me, art thou a Romayne? He ſayd: Yee, And the captayne anſwered, with E a great ſome optayned I this fredome: And Paul ſayd: I was fre borne. Then ſtrayght way departed from him they whiche ſhulde haue examined him. And the hye Captayne alſo was afrayed, after he knewe that he was a Romayne and becauſe he had bound hym.

On yͤ morowe (becauſe he wolde haue knowen the certayntie wherfore he was accuſed of the Iewes) he loſed hym frome hys bondes, and commaunded the hye Preeſtes

CAPI. XXIII.

A PAul behelde the cōſel, ⁊ ſayd: men ⁊ brethren * I haue liued in al good cōſcience before god vntyl this day. And the hye preſt Ananias cōmaunded them that ſtode by, to ſmyte him on the mouth.

Then ſayd Paul vnto hī: God ſhal ſmyte the yͧ paynted wal. * Sytteſt yͧ and iudgeſt me after the lawe: ⁊ cōmaūdeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to the lawe? And they ỷ ſtode by ſayde * reuyleſt yͧ Goddes hye preſte? Then ſayd Paul: I wyſt not brethren, that he was the hye preſt. For it is wrytten: thou ſhalt not curſe the ruler of thy people.

B Whē Paul perceyued ỷ the one part were Saduces, ⁊ the other Phariſes, he cried out in the cōſel: Men ⁊ brethren, * I am a Phariſey, the ſōne of a Phariſey. * Of the hope ⁊ reſurreccyon from death, I am iudged.

And when he had ſo ſayde, there aroſe a debate bytwene the Phariſes and the Saduces, and the multitude was deuyded. * For the Saduces ſay, that there is no reſurreccion, neyther angel, nor ſpirit: But the Phariſeys graunt both.

And there aroſe a great cry: ⁊ whā the ſcribes which were of the Phariſyes part aroſe they ſtroue ſayīg: we finde none euyl in this man. Though a ſpirit or an angel hath appered to him, let vs not ſtryue agaynſt God.

C And when there aroſe a great debate, the captayne (fearynge, leaſt Paul ſhulde haue bene pluckt aſonder of them(commaunded the ſouldiers to go downe: and to take him from among them, and to brynge hym into the Caſtel.

* The nyght folowynge, God ſtode by hym, and ſayde: be of good cheare Paule: for as thou haſt teſtified of me in Ieruſalē ⁊ ſo muſt thou beare wytnes alſo at Rome. And whan it was daye, certayne of the Iewes gathered them ſelues togyther, ⁊ made a vowe, ſayinge: that they wolde neyther eate nor drynke, tyll they had kylled Paul. There were mo then fourtye men, whyche had made this conſpiracion. And they came to the cheſe Preſtes and elders, and ſayde: we haue bōde our ſelues with a vowe, that we wyl eate nothyng, vntyl we haue ſlayne Paule.

D Nowe therfore gyue ye knowledge to the vpper Captayne and to the councel, that he brynge hym forth vnto vs to morowe, as though we wolde know ſome thynge more perfectly of hī. But we (or euer he come nere) are redy kyll him.

When Pauls ſyſters ſonne herde of their laying awayt, he went, and entred into the caſtle, and tolde Paul: And Paul called one of the vnder Captaynes vnto him, and ſaid bryng this yonge man vnto the hye Captayne: for he hath a certayne thyng to ſhewe hym. And he toke him and brought hym to the hye captayne, and ſayd: Paul the pryſoner called me vnto hym, and prayed me to bryng thys yong man vnto the, which hath a certayne matter to ſhewe the.

E The hye Captaine toke him by the hand, and went with him out of the way: and aſked hym: what is it that thou haſt to tel me: And he ſayd: the Iewes are determyned to deſyre the, that thou woldeſt brynge forth Paul to morow into the cōſcell, as thoughe they wolde enquyre ſomwhat of him more perfectly. But folowe not thou their myndes: for there lye in wayte for hym of them. mo then fourty men, which haue bounde thē ſelues with a vowe, that they wyll neyther eate nor drynke, tyll they haue kylled hym. And now are they redy, ⁊ loke that thou ſhuldeſt promes.

F The vpper Captayne then let the yonge man departe, and charged hym ſayinge, ſe thou tel it out to no man, that thou haſt ſhewed theſe thinges to me. And he called vnto him two vnder Captaynes, ſaying: make redy .ii. C. ſoudiers to go to Ceſarea, ⁊ horſmē threſcore and ten, and ſpeare men two hundreth, at the thyrde houre of the nyght. And delyuer them beaſtꝭ, that they may ſet Paul on, and bring him ſafe vnto Felix the hye debitie * (For he dyd feare leſt happly the Iewes ſhulde take hym awaye and kyll hym, and he hym ſelf ſhuld be afterward blamed, as though he wolde take money) and he wrote a letter after this maner. *

Claudious Lyſias vnto the moſt mighty ruler Felix, ſendeth greetynge. * Thys man was taken of the Iewes, and ſhuld haue bene kylled of them. Actes.xxi.f. Then came I wyth ſoudiers, and reſkued him, and perceaued that he was a Romayne. And when I wold haue knowen the cauſe, wherfore they accuſed him * I brought hym forth into their Councell. Actes.xxii.g. There perceyued I that he was accuſed of queſtyons of theyr Lawe: * But was not gylty of any thynge worthye of death or of bondes. Actes.xxv. And when it was ſhewed me, howe that the Iewes layde wayte for him, I ſent him ſtrayght way to the and gaue cōmaundemente to hys accuſers yͭ the thiges whiche they haue agaynſt hym they ſhulde tel before yͤ: fare wel. Then the ſoudiers (as it was cōmaūded thē) toke Paule, ⁊ brought hī by nyght to Antipatras. On the morow they left the horſmen to go wyth hī, ⁊ returned vnto the caſtle. Which whē they came to Ceſarea, ⁊ delyuered the Epyſtle to the debite, pſented Paul alſo before hī. whē yͤ debite had red the lettre, he aſked of what cūtre he was. And whē he vnderſtode yͭ he was of Celicia* I wyl here the (ſayd he) whē thine accuſers are come alſo: ⁊ he cōmaūded him to be kept in Herodes iudgement hall. Deut.17.a

¶ Paul is accuſed before Felix, he anſwereth for him ſelfe.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A Actes.xxiii.b AFter fyue dayes, Ananias* yͤ hye preſt deſcended, wͭ the elders ⁊ with a certayne Orator named Tertullus, which enformed yͤ debite agaynſt Paule. And when Paul was called forth, Tertullus begāne to accuſe hī, ſaying: Seing yͭ we liue in grete quietnes by the meanes of the, and that many good thinges are done vnto this nacion thorowe thy prouidence: yͭ allowe we euer ⁊ in all places moſt noble Felix with all thankes. Notwithſtandyng, that I be not tedious vnto the, I pray the, that thou woldeſt here vs of thy curteſy a few wordes.

For we haue founde this mā a peſtilent fe- B low, ⁊ a mouer of debate vnto al the Iewes in yͤ whole world, ⁊ a maynteyner ☞(of ſedycyon) of the ſecte of Nazarites, whyche hath alſo endeuored to pollute the tēple. * Whom Actes.xxi.f we toke, ⁊ wolde haue iudged accordyng to our lawe: but the hye captaine Lyſias came vpon vs, ⁊ with great violence toke him away out of our hādes, cōmaundyng his accuſers to come vnto the. Of whō yͤ mayſt, if thou wilt inquire, know the certayntie of al theſe thinges, whereof we accuſe hī. The Iewes lykewyſe affirmed, ſayinge, that theſe thinges were euen ſo.

Then Paul (after yͭ the debite hī ſelf had C beckened vnto hym yͭ he ſhulde ſpeake) anſwered: With a more quyet mynde do I anſwere for my ſelf, for aſmuch as I vnderſtād yͭ thou haſt bene of many yeres a iudge vnto this people, becauſe yͭ thou mayſt know, yͭ there are yet, but.xii. dayes ſēce I went vp to Ieruſalē for to worſhyp, ⁊* they neyther Actes.xxi.b and.xxii.b founde me in yͤ temple diſputyng wͭ any mā, either reyſyng vp yͤ people, nether in yͤ Sinagoges, nor in yͤ cytie: Nether cā they proue the thinges wherof they accuſe me.

D But this I confeſſe vnto the, that after yͤ way (whiche they cal hereſy) ſo worſhyp I yͤ god of my fathers, beleuyng al thīges whiche are wrytē in the law ⁊ the Prophetes, ⁊ haue hope towardes god, yͭ* the ſame reſurreccion of the dead (whych they them ſelues loke for alſo) ſhall be, both of iuſt ⁊ vniuſt. And therfore ſtudy I to haue alway a clere conſcience towarde God, ⁊ towarde men.

But after many yeres, I came ⁊ brought almes to my people ⁊ offriges ☞(and vowes) in the which they foūde me purified in the temple, nether wͭ multitude, nor yet with vnquietnes ☞(and they toke me, and cryed, ſayinge, away with our enemye) How be it there were certayne Iewes out of Aſia, whiche ought to be here preſēt before yͤ, ⁊ accuſe me, yf they had ought agaynſt me: or els let theſe E ſame here ſay, yf they haue foūde any euyll doyng in me, whyl I ſtāde here in yͤ coūcel: except it be for this one voyce, yͭ I cryed ſtādyng among thē: * of the reſurreccion from death am I iudged of you this day. Actes.ii.a

Whē Felix herd theſe thīges, he deferde thē, for he knewe very well of yͭ way, ⁊ ſayd: when Liſias the captaine is come downe, I wyl know yͤ vtmoſt of your matter. And* he Actes.xxviii.a cōmaūded an vnder captayne to kepe Paul ⁊ to let hī haue reſt, ⁊ that he ſhulde forbyd none of his acquayntaūce to miniſtre vnto him, or to come vnto him.

F And after a certayne dayes, when Felix came with his wyfe Druſilla (which was a Iewesse) he called forth Paul, and herd him of the fayth, which is toward Chriſte. And as he preached of ryghtuouſnes, tēperaūce, and iudgement to come. Felix trembled, and anſwered: Go thy way for thys tyme: when I haue a conuenient ſeaſon, I wyl ſende for the. He hoped alſo, that money ſhulde haue bene gyuen him of Paul, that he myght loſe him: wherfore, he called him the oftener and comened with him. But after two yere, Feſtus Porcious came into Felix roume. And Felix willyng to ſhew the Iewes a pleaſure Actes.xxv.b left Paul in priſon bounde.

CAPI. XXV.

A WHē Feſtus had receyued yͤ office, after thre dayes, he aſcended frō Ceſarea vnto Ieruſalē. Then enformed hī the hie preſt ⁊ the chefe of the Iewes, of Paul. And they beſought him ⁊ deſyred fauour agaynſt hī, yͭ he wolde ſende for hī to Ieruſalem: ⁊ they layde awayt for hī in the way, to kyl him. Feſtus anſwered, yͭ Paul ſhuld be kept at Ceſarea, but yͭ he him ſelf wolde ſhortly depart thyther. Let them therfore (ſayd he) which among you are able, come downe with vs, ⁊

B accuſe hym, yf ther be any faute in the man.
When he had taryed there among them more then ten dayes, he wente downe vnto Ceſarea, ⁊ the nexte daye ſate downe in the iudgement ſeate, ⁊ commaunded Paul to be brought forth. Which when he was come, ye Jewes which were come from Jeruſalem, ſtode aboute hym, ⁊ layde many ⁊ greuous cōplayntes againſt Paul, which they coulde not proue, as long as he anſwered for hym ct.xxviii.c ſelfe+that he had nether againſt the lawe of the Jewes, nether agaynſt the tēple, nor yet agaynſt Ceſar offended any thynge at all.
C Feſtus+wyllyng to do the Jewes a plea-ſure, anſwered Paul and ſayde: wylte thou go vp to Jeruſalem, and there be iudged of theſe thinges before me? Then ſayde Paul:
I ſtande at Ceſars iudgement ſeate, where I ought to be iudged. To the Jewes haue
I no harme done, as thou very wel knoweſt.
If I haue hurte them, or commytted any thynge worthy of deeth, I refuſe not to dye.
If none of theſe thynges are, where of they accuſe me, no man may deliuer me to them.
I appeale vnto Ceſar. Then ſpake Feſtus with delyberacyon, and anſwered. Thou haſt appealed vnto Ceſar: vnto Ceſar ſhalt
D thou go. And after a certayne dayes, kynge Agrippa ⁊ Bernice came vnto Ceſarea to ſalute Feſtus. And when they had bene there a good ceaſō, Feſtus reherſed Pauls cauſe vnto the king, ſayinge: ther is a certaine mā lefte in preſon of Felix, about whom when I came to Jeruſalem, the hye Preſtes and elders of the Jewes enfourmed me and de-E ſyred to haue iudgement agaynſte hym. To whom I anſwered: It is not the maner of ye Romayns, for fauoure to delyuer any man, that he ſhuld peryſſhe, before that he which is accuſed, haue the accuſars before hym, ⁊ haue lycence to anſwere for him ſelf concernynge the cryme layde agaynſt him. Therfore, when they were come hyther, with out any delay, on the morow I ſate to geue iud-gemente, and commaunded the man to be brought forth. Agaynſt whom whē the accu ſers ſtode vp+they brought none accuſaciō of ſuche thinges as I ſuppoſed: but had cer tayne queſtions againſt him of their owne ſuperſticyon, and of one Jeſus whiche was deed, whom Paul affirmed to be aliue. And becauſe I douted of ſuch maner of queſtiōs F I aſked him, whether he wolde go to Jeru-ſalem, and there be iudged of theſe matters
But whē Paul had appealed to be kept vn to the knowledge of Ceſar, I cōmaūded him to be kept, tyll I myght ſend him to Ceſar.
Agrippa ſayde vnto Feſtus: I wolde alſo heare the mā my ſelfe. To morowe (ſayde he) thou ſhalt heare hym. And on the morowe whē Agrippa was come and Bernyce, with greate pompe, and were entred into the coū cel houſe, with the captaynes and chefe men of the cyte, at Feſtus commaundement was Paul brought forth. And Feſtus ſayd: kyng G Agrippa, and all ye men whiche are heare preſent with vs: ye ſe this man, aboute whō all the multytude of the Jewes haue intre-ted me, both at Jeruſalē ⁊ alſo here, crying, that he ought not to lyue any lenger. Yet founde I nothynge worthy of deeth, that he had commytted. Neuertheleſſe, ſeynge that he hath appealed to Ceſar, I haue determy ned to ſend him. Of whome I haue no cer-tayne thyng to wryte vnto my Lord. Wherfore I haue brought him vnto you, and ſpe cyally vnto the: O kynge Agryppa, that after examynacyon had, I myght haue ſumwhat to wryte. For me thinketh it vnreaſonable, for to ſende a preſoner, ⁊ not to ſhewe the cauſes which are layde agaynſt him.

CAPI. XXVI.

AGrippa ſayd vnto Paul: thou art per- A mytted to ſpeake for thy ſelfe. Then Paul ſtretched forth the hande, ⁊ anſwered for him ſelfe: I thinke my ſelfe happy kyng Agrippa becauſe I ſhall anſwere this daye before the, of all the thynges wherof I am accuſed of the Jewes: namely, becauſe thou art experte in all cuſtomes and queſtyons, whiche are among the Jewes. Wherfore I beſeche the, to heare me pacyently. My liuing B that I haue led of a chylde (whiche was at the fyrſt among myne owne nacion at Jeru ſalem) knowe all the Jewes, whiche knewe me from the begynnynge, yf they wolde te-ſtyfye. For + after the moſt ſtrayteſt ſecte of Phil.iii.a our relygion, I lyued a Pharisey. And now I ſtāde ⁊ am iudged for the hope of the pro Actes.23.b
mes made of God vnto oure fathers: vnto xxiiii.c.and which promes oure .xii. trybes (inſtantly xxvi.c
ſeruyng God daye and night hope to come.
For whiche hopes ſake, kynge Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jewes. Why ſhulde it be thought a thyng incredyble vnto you, that C god ſhuld rayſe agayne the deed? I alſo ve-rely thought in my ſelfe, that I ought to do Actes.8.a.
many contrary thynges, clene agaynſte the ix.a.xxii.a.
name of Jeſus of Nazareth:+ which thyng i.Cor.xv.b
I alſo dyd in Jeruſalem. And many of the Gala.i.c.
ſayntes

ſayncted dyd I ſhut vp in preſon, and had receaued auctorytie of the hye Preſtes. And when they were put to death, I gaue the ſentence. And I punyſhed them ofte in euery ſynagoge, & compelled them to blaſpheme: & was yet more mad vpon them, & perſecuted them, euen vnto ſtraunge cities. About which thinges as I went to Damaſco with auctorite & lycence of the hye Preſtes, euen at myddaye (O kyng) I ſawe in the way a lyght from heauen aboue the bryghtnes of the ſonne ſhyne rounde about me, & them which iorneyed with me. When we were al fal- D len to the erthe, I hearde a voyce ſpeakyng vnto me, and ſaying in the Hebrue tonge: Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

Actes. 9. a. and .xxii. b.

It is harde for the to kicke agaynſt the prickes. And I ſayde: Who art thou Lorde? And he ſayde: I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt, but ryſe and ſtand vpon thy fete.

For I haue apered vnto the for thys purpoſe, to make the a mynyſter and a wytnes both of thoſe thinges which thou haſt ſene, and of thoſe thynges in the whyche I wyll appere vnto the, delyuering the frō the people, and from the gentils, vnto whom nowe I ſende the, to open theyr eyes, that they maye turne from the darcknes to lyghte, & from the power of Satan vnto God, that they may receaue forgeuenes of ſynnes, and inheritaunce amonge them which are ſanctifyed by fayth that is towarde me. Wher- E fore (O kynge Agryppa) I was not diſobedient vnto the heauenly viſion: but ſhewed fyrſt vnto them of Damaſco, and at Jeruſalem, and thorowe oute all the coaſtes of Jewry, & then to the gētyls, that they ſhulde repent, and turne to God, and do ſuch workes as become them that repent. For thys cauſe the Jewes caught me in the temple, & went about to kyl me. Seyng therfore that I haue obtayned helpe of God: I contynue vnto this day, witneſſyng both to ſmal and to greate, ſayinge none other thynges, then thoſe which the prophetes and Moſes dyd ſaye ſhuld come: that Chriſte ſhulde ſuffer, and that he ſhuld be the firſt that ſhuld ryſe frō death, & ſhuld ſhewe lyght vnto the peo- F ple, and to the gentyls. As he thus ſpake for hym ſelfe: Feſtus ſayde with a loude voyce: Paul, thou art beſyde thy ſelfe. Much learnyng doth make the mad. And Paul ſayde: I am not mad (moſt deare Feſtus) but ſpeake the wordes of trueth and ſobernes. For the kyng knoweth of theſe thynges, before whom I ſpeake frely: neither thinke I that any of theſe thynges are hydden from hym. For this thyng was not done in a corner. Kynge Agrippa beleueſt thou the Prophetes? I wote wel that thou beleueſt. Agrippa ſayde vnto Paul: Sumwhat thou bryngeſt me in mynde for to become Chriſten. And Paul ſayde: I wolde to God that not onely thou: but alſo all that heare me to day, were not ſomwhat onely, but altogether, ſuch as I am, except theſe bondes. And when he had thus ſpoken, the kynge roſe vp, and the debite, & Bernice, & they that ſate with them. And when they were gone aparte, they talked betwene them ſelues, ſaying: This mā doeth nothyng worthy of deeth, nor of bondes. Then ſayde Agrippa vnto Feſtus: Thys man myght haue bene let looſe, yf he had not appealed vnto Ceſar.

CAPI. XXVII.

WHan it was concluded, that we ſhuld A ſayle into Italy they delyuered bothe Paul and certayne other preſoners, vnto one named Julius, an vnder captayne of Ceſars ſouldiars. And we entred into a ſhip of Adramicium, and looſed from lande, appointed to ſayle by the coaſtes of Aſia, one Ariſtarcus out of Macedonia, of the coūtre of Theſſalonia being with vs. And the next day we came to Sidon. And Julius courteouſly entreated Paule, and gaue hym lybertie, to go vnto hys frendes, & to refreſſhe him ſelfe. And whan we had launched from thence, we ſayled harde by Cypers, becauſe the wyndes were contrarye. And whan we had ſayled ouer the ſee of Cylycya, & Pamphilia, we came to Myra which is i Lycya.

And there the vnder captayne founde a B ſhyppe of Alexādria ready, that ſayled into Italy, and he put vs therin. And when we had ſailed ſlowly many dayes & ſcace were come ouer agaynſte Gnydon (becauſe the wynde withſtode vs) we ſayled harde by the coaſtes of Cādy, ouer agaynſt Salmo, and with muche worke ſayled beyonde it, & came vnto a place which is called the faire hauens. Nye wherunto was the cytye of Laſea. When muche tyme was ſpente, & whan ſaylyng was nowe ieoperdous, becauſe alſo that they had ouerlōge faſted, Paul put thē in remembraunce, & ſayde vnto them: Syrs C I perceaue, that thys vyage wyll be wyth hurte & muche damage, not of the ladinge & ſhip onely, but alſo of oure lyues: Neuertheleſſe the vnder captayne beleued the gouerner and the maſter of the ſhyppe more then thinges which were ſpoken of Paul.

to wynter in, many toke counſell to departe thence, yf by any meanes they might attaine to Phenices ⁊ there to wynter, whiche is an hauen of Candy, ⁊ lyeth towarde the ſouthweſt and noꝛthweſt wynde. When the ſouth wynde blewe, they ſuppoſynge to obtayne their purpoſe, looſed vnto Aſſon, and ſayled paſt all Candy. But not long after, there aroſe

D let her go, ⁊ dꝛaue with the wether. But we were caried in to an yle whyche is named Clauda, and had much woꝛke to come by a bote, whiche they toke vp, ⁊ vſed helpe, and made faſt the ſhip, fearyng, leſt they ſhulde

But after long abſtynence, Paul ſtode

Howbeit they wayted when he ſhulde haue ſwolne, or fallen downe deed ſodenly. But after they had loked a greate whyle, ⁊ ſawe no harme come to hym, they chaunged theyr myndes, and ſayde: that he was a God. Actes.xiiii.b

C In the ſame quarters were londes of the chefe man of the yle (whoſe name was Publius) which receaued vs, ⁊ lodged vs thre dayes curteouſly. And it fortuned that the father of Publius laye ſycke of a feuer, and of a bloudy flyx. To whom Paul entred in and prayde, and layde his hādes on hym and healed hym. So when thys was done, other alſo which had deſeaſes in the yle, came and were healed: which alſo dyd vs greate honour. And when we departed, they laded vs with ſuch thynges as were neceſſary.

After thre monethes we departed in a ſhip of Alexandry, which had wyntred in the yle, ☞ whoſe badge was ☞ Caſtor ⁊ Pollux. And when we came to Cyracuſa, we taryed there thre dayes. And from thēce we ſet a cōpaſſe, and came to Regium. And after one day the ſouth wynde blewe, and we came the nexte day to Puteolus: where we founde brethren, and were deſyred to tary wyth them ſeuen D dayes, and ſo came we to Rome. And from thence, when the brethren hearde of vs, they came to mete vs at Appiphorum, and at the thre tauernes. When Paule ſawe them, he thancked God and wexed bolde. And when we came to Rome, the vnder Captayne delyuered the preſoners to the chefe captayne of the hoſt: but Paule was ſuffred to dwell by hym ſelfe with a ſoudyer that kept hym.

And after thre dayes, Paul called the chefe of the Jewes together. And when they were come, he ſayde vnto them: Men and brethren, though * I haue committed nothing (Actes.23.c. and.25.b.) agaynſt the people or lawes of the Elders * yet was I delyuered preſoner from Jeruſalem into the hādes of the Romains. (Acte.xxiii.c) Which when they had examyned me, wold haue let me go, because ther was no cauſe of death in E me. But when the Jewes ſpake contrary, I was conſtrayned to appeale vnto ceſar: not because I had ought to accuſe my people of. For thys cauſe haue I called for you, euen to ſe you, and to ſpeake with you, * because that for the hope of Iſrael I am bounde w̄ this cheyne. (Acte.xxiii.b xxiiii.c. and.xx.vi.b) And they ſayd vnto him: we neyther receaued letters of Jewry pertaynyng vnto the, neyther came any of the brethren that ſhewed or ſpake any harme of the. But we wyll heare of the what thou thynckeſt.

For as concernynge this ſecte, we knowe that * euery where it is ſpoken agaynſt. And when they had appoynted hym a daye, there came many to hym into hys lodgyng, F To whom he expounded ⁊ teſtified the kingdom of god ⁊ preached vnto them of Jeſus: both out of the lawe of Moſes ⁊ oute of the Prophetes, euen from mornynge to nyght. And * ſome beleued the thynges which were ſpoken, and ſome beleued not.

And when they agreed not amonge them ſelues, they departed, after that Paule had ſpoken one worde: well ſpake the holy gooſt by Eſay the Prophet vnto our fathers, ſayinge: * Go vnto thys people, and ſaye: wyth youre eares ſhall ye heare, and ſhal not vnderſtande: and wyth youre eyes ſhall ye ſe, ⁊ not perceaue.

For the hert of this people is wexed groſe and with theyr eares haue they had no luſte to heare, and theyr eyes haue they cloſed: leſt they ſhuld ſe with their eyes, ⁊ heare w̄ their eares, and vnderſtande with their hertes, and ſhuld be cōuerted, ⁊ I ſhulde heale them. Be it knowen therfore vnto you, that thys ſaluacyon of God is ſente to the gentyls, and they ſhall heare it. G And when he had ſayde theſe wordes, the Jewes departed from him and had great deſpycyons among them ſelues.

lodginge, and receaued all that came in vnto him, preachyng the kīgdome of God ⁊ teachynge thoſe thynges whiche concerne the Lorde Jeſus with all confydence, no man forbyd-

¶ Here endeth the Actes of the Apoſtles.

The Epiſtle of the Apoſtle Saynt Paule to the Romaynes.

CAPI. I. ✠

A PAule the ſeruaunt of Ieſus Chriſte called to the offyce of an apoſtle * put a part for ỹ Goſpell of God * whiche he had promyſed afore by hys Prophetes in the holy ſcriptures of his ſonne, which was borne ☞ (vnto hym) * of the ſeed of Dauid after the fleſh: and hathe bene declared to be the ſonne of God with power, after the ſprete that ſanctyfyeth, ſence the tyme that Ieſus Chryſte oure Lorde roſe agayne from deeth * by whom we haue receaued grace and Apoſtleſhyp, that obedience myght be geuen vnto the fayth in his name amonge all Heathen, of whoſe nombre you be that are called of Ieſu Chryſte. ✠

To all you that be at Rome, beloued of God and called ſayntes. * Grace be with you and peace from God oure father, and from the Lorde Ieſus Chryſte.

Fyrſt verely I thanke my God thorowe Ieſus Chryſte for you all, that youre fayth is ſpoken of in all the worlde. For God is my wytnes (whom I ſerue * with my ſprete B in the Goſpell of hys ſonne) that with out ceaſynge I make mencyon of you alwayes * in my prayers, beſechynge that by ſome meane, at the laſt (one tyme or other) a proſperous iorney (by the wyll of God) myght fortune me, to come vnto you. For I longe to ſe you, that I myght beſtowe amonge you ſome ſpyrytual gyfte, to ſtrength you withall: that is, that I myght haue conſolacyon together with you, through the cōmen fayth whiche bothe ye and I haue.

I wolde that ye ſhulde knowe (brethren) howe that I haue often tymes purpoſed to come vnto you * but haue bene let hytherto to haue ſome frute alſo amonge you, as amonge other of the Gentyls. I am detter both to the Grekes and to the vngrekes, to the learned and to the vnlearned. So that (as much as in me is) I am redy to preache the Goſpell to you that are at Rome alſo. * For I am not aſhamed of the goſpell of Chriſt, becauſe ꝛ it is the power of God vnto ſaluacyon to euery one that beleueth, to the Iewe fyrſt, and alſo to the gentyle. 1 Corin.i.c.

C For by it is the ryghtewesnes of God opened ☞ frō fayth to fayth. As it is wrytten * the iuſt ſhal lyue by fayth. For ỹ wrath of God apeareth from heauen agaynſte all vngodlynes and vnryghtewesnes of men, whiche withholde the trueth in vnryghtewesnes: ſeynge * that it whiche may be knowen of God, is manifeſt amonge them. For God hath ſhewed it vnto thē. * Yee, his inuiſyble thinges (that is to ſaye, his eternall power and godhed) are ſene, for as much as they are vnderſtande * by the workes from the creacyon of the worlde: So that they are without excuſe becauſe that when they knewe God, they glorified him not as God, nether were thankfull but wexed full of vanities in theyr ymagynacyons, * and theyr folyſh herte was blynded. When they counted them ſelues wyſe, they became fooles * and turned the glory of the immortal God, vnto an ymage, made not onely after the ſimilitude of a mortal man, but alſo of byrdes, and foure foted ꝛ beaſtes ꝛ of creppynge beaſtes. Wherfore, God gaue them vp vnto theyr hertes luſtes, to vnclennes, to defyle theyr owne bodies among thē ſelues: which turned his trueth vnto a lye, ꝛ worſhypped and ſerued the thinges that be made, more then hym that made them, which is bleſſed for euer. Where is then thy reioyſynge? It is ex-

fyed by fayth without the dedes of the lawe.
Is he the God of the Iewes onely? Is he not alſo the God of the Gentyles? Yes, euen of the Gentyls alſo. For it is God only whiche iuſtyfyeth the circumcyſyon that is of fayth, & vncircumcyſyon thorowe fayth.
Do we then deſtroye ỹ lawe thorow fayth?

Wherfore, as by one man, ſynne entred into the worlde, and * deeth by the meanes of ſynne. Euen ſo deeth alſo wente ouer all men, in ſo muche as all men ſynned. For euen vnto the lawe was ſynne in the worlde, but ſynne is not imputed, whan there is no lawe: neuertheleſſe deeth raygned from A-
dyd Adam: which ☞ beareth the ſimilitude of hym that was to come. But the gyfte is not lyke as the ſynne. For yf thorowe the ſynne of one, many be deed: much more plen teous vpon many was the grace of God and gyfte by grace: * ☞ which was geuen by one man Jeſus Chriſt.

And the gyfte is not ouer one ſynne: as D deeth came thorowe one ſynne of one that ſynned. For dampnacyon came of one ſynne vnto condemnacyon: but the gyfte came to iuſtify frõ many ſynnes. For yf by the ſynne

ſhal raygne in lyfe by ẏ meanes of one (that

one there ſprange vp euell on all men to con demnacyon: euen ſo by the ryghteouſnes

Neuerthelater where aboundaunce of ſyn-ne was, there was more plenteouſnes of of grace. That as ſynne had raygned vnto
deeth, euen ſo myght grace raygne thorowe

¶ For ſo muche as we be delyuered thorowe Chriſte from ſynne, we muſte faſt on our ſelues to lyue as the ſeruauntes of God, & not after our owne luſtes. The vnlykely rewardes

CAPI. VI.

WHat ſhall we ſaye then? ſhall we A contynue in ſynne, that there maye be aboundaunce of grace?
God forbyd. Howe ſhall we that are deed

deed as touchynge ſynne, lyue any longer therein? ✠ Knowe ye not that * all we whiche are baptyſed into Ieſu Chryſte, are baptyſed to dye with hym? We are buryed then wyth hym by baptime, for to dye: that lykewyſe as Chryſt was rayſed vp from death by the glorye of the father, euen ſo * we alſo ſhuld walke in a newe lyfe. For yf we be graft in death lyke vnto hym: euen ſo ſhal we be partakers of the reſurreccyon: knowynge this, that our olde man is crucyfyed with hym alſo, that the bodye of ſynne myght vtterly be deſtroyed, that hence forth we ſhulde not be ſeruauntes vnto ſynne. For he that is deade, is iuſtyfyed from ſynne.

Wherfore * yf we be deade wͭ Chriſt, we beleue, that we ſhall alſo lyue with hym: knowyng, that Chryſte beynge rayſed from death, * dyeth no more. Death hath no more power ouer hym. For as touchynge that he dyed, he dyed concernynge ſynne, once. And as touchynge that he lyueth, he lyueth vnto God. Lykewyſe conſyder ye alſo, that ye are deade as touchynge ſynne, but are alyue vnto God thorowe Ieſus Chriſte our Lord. ¶ Let not ſynne rayne therfore in youre mortall bodye, that ye ſhulde therunto obey by the luſtes of it. Neyther geue ye your membres as inſtrumẽtes of vnryghtuouſnes vnto ſynne: but gyue ouer your ſelues vnto God as they that of deade, are alyue. And geue ouer your members as inſtrumentes of ryghtuouſnes vnto God. Let not ſynne haue power ouer you. For ☞ ye are not vnder the lawe, but vnder grace.

What then? Shall we ſynne, becauſe we are not vnder the law: but vnder grace? God forbyd. ✠ Knowe ye not, howe that * to whom ſoeuer ye commit youre ſelues as ſeruauntes to obey, his ſeruauñtes ye are to whõ ye obey: whether it be of ſynne vnto death, or of obediẽce vnto rightuouſnes? God be thãked, that though ye were the ſeruauntes of ſynne, ye haue yet obeyed with hert vnto the rule of the doctryne, that ye be brought vnto. * Ye are then made fre from ſynne, and are become the ſeruauntes of ryghtuouſnes. ¶ ✠ I ſpeake groſly, becauſe of the infyrmitie of your fleſhe. As ye haue gyuen your members ſeruauntes to vncleanes and to iniquitye, (from one iniquitye to another) euen ſo nowe gyue ouer your members ſeruauntes vnto ryghtuouſnes, that ye maye be ſanctyfied. For when ye were the ſeruauñtes of ſine, ye were not vnder rightuouſnes. What frute had ye then in thoſe thynges, wherof ye are nowe aſhamed? For the ende of thoſe thinges, is death. But nowe are ye delyuered from ſynne, and made yͤ ſeruauñtes of God, & haue youre frute to be ſanctifyed, and the ende euerlaſtynge lyfe. For the rewarde of ſynne is death, but eternal lyfe is the gyft of God, thorowe Ieſus Chriſte our Lorde.

KNowe ye not brethrẽ (I ſpeake to them yͭ know the lawe) howe that the law hath power ouer a man, as longe as it endureth. For * the woman whiche is in ſubieccyon to a man, is bounde by the lawe to the man, as longe as he lyueth. But yf the man be dead, ſhe is looſed from the lawe of the man. Euen ſo ye alſo (my brethren) are dead cõcernyng the lawe by the body of Chryſt, that ye ſhulde be coupled to another (I meane to him that is ryſen agayne from death) that we ſhulde bryng forth frute vnto God. For when we were in the fleſhe, the luſtes of ſynne whiche were ſteryd vp by the lawe, rayned in our mẽbers, to bryng forth frute vnto death. But nowe are we delyuered from the lawe, and deade vnto it wherunto we were in bondage, that we ſhulde ſerue in a new conuerſacion of the ſpyryte, and not in the olde conuerſacyon of the letter.

What ſhal we ſay then? is the law ſinne? God forbyd: neuertheles * I knewe not ſine, but by the law. For I had not knowen what luſt had mente, excepte the lawe had ſayde, * thou ſhalte not luſt. But ſynne toke an occaſyon by the meanes of the commaundement and wrought in me all maner of concupyſcence. For verely without the law, ſinne was deade. I once lyued without lawe. But whẽ the commaundement came, ſynne reuyued, and I was deade. And the very ſame commaundemente whyche was ordayned vnto lyfe, was founde to be vnto me an occaſyon of death. For ſynne toke occaſyon by the meanes of the commaundemente, and ſo dyſceaued me, and by the ſame ſlewe me. Wherfore * the lawe is holy, and the commaundement holy, iuſt and good.

For I know, that in me (that is to ſaye in my fleſſhe) dwelleth no good thynge. For to wyll is preſente with me: but I fynde no meanes to perfourme that whiche is good. For the good that I wolde, do I not: but the euyl whiche I wold not, that do I. Yf I do that I wolde not, then is it not I that do it, but ſynne that dwelleth in me. I fynde then by the Lawe, that when I wolde do good, euyl is preſente wyth me. For I delyte in the lawe of God, after the inwarde man. But I ſe another lawe in my members, rebellynge agaynſte the lawe of my mynde, and ſubduyng me vnto the lawe of ſynne, whyche is in my members. O wretched man that I am: who ſhall delyuer me from thys bodye ſubdued vnto death? I thanke God thorowe Jeſus Chriſt our Lorde. I Say then: hath God caſt away hys people? A God forbyd. For euen I alſo am an Iſraelite, of the ſede of Abraham, of the trybe of Beniamin, god hath not caſt away his people, which he knew before. Wote ye not, what the ſcripture ſayth of Helias, howe he maketh interceſſion to god agaynſt Iſrael, 3.Reg.19.b
ſayinge: * Lorde, they haue kylled thy Prophetes, & dygged downe thyne aulters, and I am lefte alone, and they ſeke my lyfe. But what ſayth the anſwere of God vnto hym? 3.Reg.19.d
* I haue reſerued vnto my ſelfe ſeuen thouſande men, whiche haue not bowed the knee to the ymage of Baal. Euen ſo alſo at thys tyme is there a remnaunt lefte accordyng to the eleccyon of grace. If it be of grace, then is it not nowe of workes. For then grace is no more grace. But yf it be of workes, then is it now no grace. For then were deſeruing no more deſeruyng. What then? Iſrael hath B not obtayned that whiche he ſeketh: but the electyon hath optayned it. The remnaunte are blynded accordyng as it is wryttẽ. * God hath geuen them the ſpyrite of vnquyetnes: eyes that they ſhuld not ſe, & eares that they ſhulde not heare, euen vnto this day. * And Dauid ſayth: Let their table be made a ſnare to take them withal, and an occaſyon to fal, & a rewarde vnto thẽ. Let their eyes be blynded that they ſe not: and bowe thou downe their backe alwaye.

D I ſaye then: haue they therfore ſtombled, that they ſhulde vtterly fal away together. God forbyd: but thorowe their fall is ſaluacyon happened vnto the Gentyls, for to prouoke them withall. Wherfore yf the fall of them be the ryches of the worlde, & the mynyſhynge of them the ryches of the gẽtyls, How much more their perfectnes? I ſpeake to you gẽtyls, in as much as * I am the Apoſtle of the gentyls, I wyll magnifye mine office, if by any meane I may prouoke them whiche are my fleſhe, and myght ſaue ſome of them. For yf the caſtynge away of them, be the reconcylyng of the worlde, what ſhall the receyuynge of them be, but lyfe agayne from deth? For yf one pece be holy, the whole heape is holy. And yf the rote be holye, the braunches ſhalbe holy alſo.

C Though ſome of the braunches be brokẽ of, and thou beyng a wylde olyue tree, waſt graft in among them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnes of the * olyue tree, boaſt not thy ſelfe agaynſt the braunches. For yf thou boſt thy ſelfe, thou beareſt not the rote, but the rote the. Thou wylte ſaye then: the braunches are broken of, that I myght be graft in. Thou ſayeſt well: bycauſe of vnbeleue they were broken of, & thou ſtodeſt ſtedfaſt in fayth. Be not hye mynded, but feare: for ſeyng that God ſpared not the naturall braũches, take hede, leſt it come to paſſe that he ſpare not the alſo.

D Beholde therfore the kyndnes and rygorouſnes of God: on them whiche fell, rygorouſnes: but towardes the, kyndnes: yf thou contynue in his kyndnes. Or els thou ſhalt be hewen of, and they agayne? yf they byde not ſtil in vnbelefe, ſhalbe grafted in agayne For God is of power to graffe thẽ in agayne For yf thou waſt cut out of a natural wylde olyue tree, and waſt grafted contrary to nature in a true olyue tree: how much more ſhal the naturall braunches be grafted in theyr owne olyue tree agayne.

I wold not that this ſecrete ſhulde be hyd from you my brethren (leſt ye ſhulde be wyſe in your owne cõſaytes) that partely blyndnes is happened in Iſraell, vntyll the fulnes of the gentyls be come in: & ſo al Iſrael ſhalbe ſaued. As it is wrytten: * There ſhall come out of Syon he that doth delyuer, and ſhall turne away vngodlynes from Jacob. And this is my couenaunte vnto them, when I ſhal take awaye theyr ſynnes. As concernyng the Goſpel they are enemyes for your ſakes, but as touching the election, they are loued for the fathers ſakes.

It is not eloquence and glorious paynted wordes of worldly wyſdome, that can edifye, and conuerte ſoules vnto Chriſt, but the playne wordes of the ſcrypture, for they make mencyon of him and hys croſſe.

CAPI. II.

A AND I brethren (when I came to you) came not in gloriouſnes of wordes, or wiſdome, ſhewyng vnto you the teſtimony of god. Neyther ſhewed I my ſelfe that I knewe any thynge among you, ſaue Ieſus Chriſt, euen the ſame that was crucyfyed. And I was amonge you in weaknes, and in feare, and in muche tremblyng. And my wordes and my preachyng was not wyth entyſyng wordes of mannes wyſdome: but in ſhewynge of the ſpryte & of power that your faythe ſhuld not ſtande in the wiſdome of men, but in the power of God.

We

B We ſpeake of wyſdome among them that are perfect: not the wyſdom of this worlde, nether of the rulars of thys worlde (which go to naught) but we ſpeake the wyſdome of God, which is in ſecrete and lyeth hyd, which God ordeyned before the worlde, vnto oure glory: which wyſdome * none of the rulers of thys worlde knewe. For ☞ had they had knowlege, they wold not haue crucified the lord of glory. But as it is wrytē. * The eys hath not ſene, and the eare hathe not hearde, nether haue entred into the hert of mā, the thīges which god hath prepared for them that loue him. C But God hath opened thē vnto vs by hys ſpirite. For the ſpyryte ſearcheth al thynges, ye the botome of Goddes ſecretes. For what man knoweth the thinges of a mā: ſaue the ſpirite of man which is wt in hī? Euē ſo the thinges of god knoweth no mā, but the ſpirite of god. And we haue not receaued the ſpyrete of ẏ worlde: but the ſpyrete which cōmeth of God, for to knowe the thinges that are geuen to vs of God: D which thynges alſo we ſpeake (not wt wordes ẏ mānes wyſdome teacheth, but wt wordes which ẏ holy gooſt doth teach) makyng ſpirituall cōpariſōs of ſpyrytual thynges. ☞ The natural mā perceaueth nat the thīges that belong to the ſpyrete of god. For they are but folyſhnes vnto him. Nether cā he perceaue thē, becauſe they are ſpyrytually examined. But he ẏ is ſpyrtual, diſcuſſeth al thinges: yet he him ſelf is iudged of no mā. * For who hath knowen the mynde of the Lorde, ether who ſhall informe hym? But we vnderſtande the mynde of Chriſt.

A And I could not ſpeake vnto you brethren as vnto ſpiritual: but as vnto carnal, euen as vnto babes in Chriſt. * I gaue you mylke to drinke, & not meate. For ye thē were not ſtrōge, nether are ye as yet. For ye are yet carnall. As longe verely as there is amōge you enuying, & ſtryfe & ſectes: are ye not carnal, & walke after the maner of men? For whyle one ſayth: I holte of Paul, & another: I am of * Apollo, are ye not carnall? B What is Paul? what thing is Apollo? Onely miniſters are they by whom ye beleued, euen as the lord gaue euery mā grace. I haue planted, Apollo watred: but god gaue the encreace. So thē, nether is he that planteth any thing, nether he that watreth, but God that geueth the encreace. He that planteth and he that watreth, are one. Euery man yet ſhall receaue hys rewarde, accordyng to his labour. For we are Goddes labourers, ye are Goddes huſbandrye, ye are goddes buylding. C According to the grace of God geuē vnto me, as a wyſe buylder haue I layde the foundacion. And another buylte theron. But let euery man take hede, how he bildeth vpō. For another foūdacyon can no mā lay, then it that is layde, * which is Jeſus Chriſt. If any mā buylde on this foundacion, golde, ſyluer, precyous ſtones, timber, hay or ſtoble: euery mannes worcke ſhall appeare. For the day ſhall declare, which ſhalbe ſhewed in fyre. And the fyre ſhall trye euery mannes worcke, what it is. If any mannes worcke that he hathe bylt vpon, byde, he ſhal receaue a rewarde. If any mannes worke burne, he ſhal ſuffre loſſe but he ſhalbe ſafe hī ſelfe: neuertheles, yet as it were thorowe fyre.

✠ * Knowe ye not, that ye are the temple of God, and how that the ſpirite of god dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, hym ſhall God deſtroy. For ẏ wyſdom of thys worlde is folyſhnes wyth God. For it is wrytten: * he compaſſeth the wyſe ī their craftines. And agayne: god knoweth the thoughtes of the wyſe, that they be vaine. Therfore, let no man reioyce in men. For all thynges are youres, whether it be Paul, ether Apollo, ether Cephas: whether it be the worlde, ether lyfe, ether deth, whether they be preſent thynges, or thynges to come: all are youres: and ye are Chriſtes, and Chriſt is Goddes. ✠

A Let * a man this wyſe eſteme vs, euen as the miniſters of Chriſt, and ſtewardes of the ſecretes of God. Furthermore, it is requyred of the ſtewardes, that a man be founde faythfull. And then ſhal euery mã haue prayſe of God.

B These thynges (brethrẽ) I haue for an enſample deſcribed in mine owne perſon, & in Apollos, for youre ſakes, that ye myghte learne by vs that no man counte of him ſelf beyonde that which is aboue wrytten: that one ſwel not againſt another for any mans cauſe. For who preferreth thee? *What haſt thou, that thou haſt not receaued? If thou haue receaued it, why reioyſeſt thou, as though thou haddeſt not receaued it? Now ye are ful: now ye are made ryche: ye raygne as kynges without vs: & I wold to god ye dyd raygne, that we might raygne w you. For me thinketh, that god hath ſet forth vs (whiche are Apoſtles) for the loweſt of all *as it were men apoynted to deeth. For we C are a gaſing ſtocke vnto the worlde, and to the Angels, and to men. We are foles for Chryſtes ſake, but ye are wyſe thorowe Chryſt. We are weake, but ye are ſtrong. Ye are honorable, but we are deſpyſed. AS concerning the thynges wherof ye wrote vnto me: ✠ It is good for a mā, not to touche a woman. Neuertheles, to auoyde whoredome let euery man haue hys wyfe: and let euery woman haue her huſbande. Let the huſbāde geue vnto the wyfe due beneuolence. Lykewyſe alſo the wyfe vnto the huſbande. The wyfe hathe not power of her owne body: but the huſbande. And lykewyſe the huſbāde hath not power of his owne body: but the wyfe. * Wythdrawe not youre ſelues one from another, except it be with conſente for a tyme, for to geue youre ſelues to faſtynge and prayer.

Thys I ſaye of fauoure, and not of commaundement. For I wolde that all men were as I my ſelfe am: but euery man hath his proper gyfte of God, one after this maner, another after that. I ſaye vnto them that be vnmaryed and wyddowes: it is good for them, yf they abyde euen as I do. But and * yf they cannot abſtayne, let them mary. For it is better to mary then to burne.

Unto the maryed cōmaūde, not I, but the Lord: * Let not the wyfe be ſeparated from the huſband. If ſhe ſeperate her ſelf, let her remaine vnmaried, or be recōciled vnto her huſbande agayne. And let not the huſband put awaye his wyfe from him.

To the remnaunt ſpeake I, not the Lord: If any brother haue a wyfe that beleueth not, yf ſhe be content to dwell with hym, let hym not put her awaye. And the woman whyche hathe to her huſbande an infydell, and conſent to dwell wyth her, let her not put hym awaye. Or els were your chyldren vnclene: but ☞ nowe are they holye. ☜ But and yf the vnbeleuyng departe, let him departe. A brother or a ſyſter is not in ſubieccyon to ſuch. But god hath called vs in peace. For howe knoweſte thou (O woman) whether thou ſhalt ſaue thy huſbande or no? If any man thynke that it is vncumly foꝛ hys virgin, yf ſhe paſſe the tyme of marryage, and yf ſo nede requyꝛe, let hym do what he lyſteth, he ſynneth not: let them be coupled in mariage. Neuertheleſſe, he that purpoſeth ſurely in hys herte, hauynge no nede: but hathe power ouer his owne wyll: and hathe ſo decreed in hys herte, that he wyll kepe hys virgin, doeth well. CAPI. XI.

A BE ye the folowers of me, as I am the folower of Chryſt. I commende you brethren, that ye remēber me in al thinges, and kepe the ordinaunces, euen as I delyuered them to you. But I wold haue you to knowe, that Chryſt is the heed of euery mā. And the man is the * womans heed. And God is Gene. ii. d. Ephe. v. d. Chriſtes heed. Euery man prayenge or propheſyinge hauinge any thynge on his heed, ſhameth his heed. Euery woman yͭ prayeth or propheſieth bare headed, diſhoneſteth her heade. For yͭ is euen all one, as yf ſhe were ſhauen. If the womā be not couered, let her Deut. 22. f. alſo be ſhorne. * If it be ſhame for a woman to be ſhorne or ſhauē, let her couer her heed.

A man ought not to couer his heed, for as much as he is the ymage and glory of God. But the woman is the glorye of the man. Gene. i. d. For * the man is not of the woman: but the woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans ſake; but the woman for the mannes ſake. For this cauſe ought the woman ☞ to haue power on her B heed, for the angels ſakes: Neuertheleſſe, nether is the man wᵗ out the woman, nether the womā without the mā in the Lorde. For as the woman is of the man, euen ſo is the man by the woman: but all of God.

Iudge in your ſelues, whether it be comly yͭ a woman praye vnto God bareheeded. Doth not nature it ſelfe teach you, that it is a ſhame for a man, yf he haue longe heere: & a prayſe to a woman: yf ſhe haue longe heer? For her heer is geuen her to couer her wᵗ all. If any mā luſt to ſtryue, we haue no ſuche cuſtome, nether the congregacyons of God.

This I warne you of, and commende not, that ye come not together after a better maner, but after a worſſe. C For fyrſt of all when ye come together in the cōgregacyon, I heare that there is diſſenciō amonge you: and I partely beleue it. For * there muſt be Math. 18. a ſectes a monge you, that they which are perfect amōge you, myght be knowē. ✠ When ye come together therfore in one place, the Lordes ſupper can not be eaten. For euery man begynneth afore to eate his owne ſupper. And one is hongry, & another is dronken. Haue ye not houſes to eate & to drynke in? Deſpyce ye the congregacyon of God and ſhame them that haue not? What ſhall I ſaye vnto you? ſhal I prayſe you? In this prayſe I you not. ✠

D ✠ That which I delyuered vnto you, I receaued of the Lorde. For the Lorde Ieſus the ſame nyght, in whiche he was betrayed, Math. 26. c Mark 14. c Luke 22. b toke bred: and whan he had geuē thankes, he brake it and ſayde: ☞ Take ye, and eate: this is my bodye, whiche is broken for you.

CAPI. XIII.

THough I ſpeake with the tonges of men and of angels: and haue no loue, A I am as ſoundynge braſſe: or as a tyncklynge cymball. And * though I coulde Math.vii. Luke.xiii.
propheſy, and vnderſtande all ſecretes, and

Luke.17.a. *ſo yͭ I could moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet haue no loue, I am nothyng. And though I beſtowe al my goodes to fede the poore, and though I giue my body euen that I burne, and yet haue no loue, it profyteth me nothynge.

B Loue ſuffreth long, and is curteous. Loue enuyeth not. Loue doth not frowardly, ſwelleth not, dealeth not diſhoneſtly, *ſeketh not her owne, is not prouoked to anger, thyketh no euyl, reioyſeth not in iniquitie: but reioyſeth in the trueth, ſuffreth all thynges: beleueth all thynges, hopeth all thynges, endureth al thynges. Though that propheſyinges fayle, other tonges ceaſe, or knowledge vanyſhe awaye, yet loue falleth neuer awaye.

1.Corin.x.f. Philip.ii.a.

C ☞ For ☞ our knowledge is vnperfect, and our propheſyinge is vnperfecte. But when that which is p̄fect is come, then that which is vnperfecte, ſhalbe done awaye. When I was a chylde, I ſpake as a chylde, I vnderſtode as a chylde, I ymagyned as a chylde. But aſſone as I was a man, I put awaye chyldiſhnes. Nowe we ſe in a glaſſe, euen in a darcke ſpeakyng: but then ſhall we ſe face to face. Nowe I know vnperfectly: but then ſhal I knowe euen as I am knowen. Now abydeth fayth, hope, and loue, euē theſe thre: ☞ but the ☞ chefe of theſe is loue. F ¶ Paule ſheweth that the gyft of prophecye, interpretyng or preachyng, excelleth the gyfte of tonges and howe they both ought to be vſed.

CAPI. XIIII.

A LAboure for loue, and couet ſpiritual giftes: but moſt chefely that ye maye propheſy. ☞ For he that ☞ ſpeketh with the tonge ſpeaketh not vnto men, but vnto God. For no man heareth him. Howbeit in the ſpyrite he ſpeaketh myſteries. But he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh vnto men for their edyfying, for their exhortacion and for their comforte. He that ſpeaketh with the tonge, profyteth hym ſelfe: *he that propheſyeth, edifyeth the congregacion. *I wolde that ye all ſpake wͭ tonges: but rather that ye propheſyed. For greater is he that propheſyeth, then he that ſpeaketh with tonges, excepte he expounde it: that the congregacion may haue edifying.

Rom.xv.b. Num.11.g.

B Nowe brethren, yf I come vnto you ſpeakyng with tonges: what ſhal I profyte you, excepte I ſpeake to you, eyther by reuelacyon or by knowledge, or by propheſyinge, or by doctryne?

Moreouer, when thynges without lyfe gyue ſounde (whether it be a pipe or an harpe) except they make a diſtinccion in the ſoundes, howe ſhall it be knowen what is pyped or harped? For yf the trōpe giue an vncertayne voyce, who ſhall prepare hym ſelfe to the warre? Euen ſo lykewyſe when ye ſpeake wͭ tonges, excepte ye ſpeake wordes that haue ſignyficacion, howe ſhall it be vnderſtande what is ſpoken? For ye ſhal but ſpeake in the ayre. C

Many kyndes of voices are in the world, & none of them are without ſignificaciō. If I knowe not what the voyce meaneth, I ſhalbe vnto him that ſpeaketh an aleaunt: & he that ſpeaketh ſhalbe an aleaunt vnto me. Euen ſo ye (for aſmuche as ye couet ſpirituall gyftes) ſeke, that ye may excell, vnto the edyfyinge of the congregacyon.

Wherfore, let him that ſpeaketh wͭ tonge praye, that he may interprete alſo. For yf I pray with tonge, my ſpiryte prayeth, but my ☞ vnderſtandyng doth no good. ☞ What is it then? I wyl pray with the ſpyrite, and wyl pray with the vnderſtandyng. I wyll ſynge with the ſpiryte, and wyll ſynge ☞ with the vnderſtandyng. ☞ For els, when thou bleſſeſt with the ſpiryt, howe ſhal he that occupyeth the rowme of the vnlearned, ſaye, Amen, at the giuynge of thankes, ſeyng he vnderſtandeth not, what thou ſayeſt? Thou verely gyueſt thankes well, but the other is not edyfied. D I thanke my God that I ſpeake wyth tonges more then ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregacyon, to ſpeake fyue wordes wͭ my vnderſtandynge to the informacion of other rather then ten thouſāde wordes with the tonge.

Brethren, be not ye chyldren in wytte. Howbeit, as concernynge maliciouſnes, be chyldren: but in wyt be perfecte. In the lawe it is wrytten: *with ſondrye tonges, & with ſondry lyppes wyll I ſpeake vnto this people, and yet for all that, wyll they not heare me, ſayeth the Lorde. Esay.28.c. Wherfore ☞ tonges are for a ſygne, not to them that beleue: but to them that beleue not. ☞ Contrary wyſe, propheſyinge ſerueth not for them that beleue not: but for them which beleue.

If therfore, when all the congregation is come togyther, and all ſpeake with tonges, there come in they that are vnlerned, or they which beleue not: wyll they not ſaye, that ye are out of your wyttes? E But and yf all propheſye, and there come in one that beleueth not or one vnlerned, he is rebuked of al men & is iudged of euery man, & ſo are the ſecretes of his hert opened, & ſo falleth he downe on his face, and worſhyppeth God, & ſayeth, that God is in you of a treuth.

Howe is it then brethren? As ofte as ye come togyther, every one of you hath a ſõg, hath a doctrine, hath a tonge, hath a revelacion, hath an interpretacion. Let al thinges be done vnto edifyinge: If any man ſpeake wyth tonge, let it be by two or at the moſte by thre, and that by courſe, and let another
F interprete it. But if there be no interpreter, let him kepe ſylence in the cõgregacion, and let him ſpeake to him ſelfe and to God.

i.Thes.v.a Let the Prophetes ſpeake two, or thre, & * let the other iudge. If any revelacyon be made to another that ſytteth by, let the fyrſt ☞ holde his peace. For ☞ ye maye all propheſy one by one, that all may learne, and that all maye haue comforte. And the ſpirites of the Prophetes are in the power of the Pro-Rom.xv.g. phetes. For God is not cauſer of ſtrife: * but of peace, as ⸂(I teache(in al congregaciõs of the Saynctes.

i.Tim.2.b Gene.iii.c. i.Pet.iii.a * Let your women kepe ſylence in the congregacions. For it is not permitted vnto thẽ to ſpeake but to be vnder obedyẽce, as ſayth the lawe: If they wyll learne any thynge, let thẽ aſke their huſbandes at home. For it is a ſhame for women, to ſpeake in the congregacion. Spronge the worde of God from you? Either came it vnto you onely? If any man thinke him ſelfe to be a prophete, other ſpiritual: let him knowe, what thynges I wryte vnto you. For they are the cõmaundementes of the Lorde. But and if any man be ignorant, let him be ignoraunt. Wherfore brethre, covet to propheſy, & forbyd not to ſpeake with tonges, let al thinges be done honeſtly and in order ⸃(amonge you).

CAPI. XV.

A Brethren, as pertaynynge to the Goſpel whiche I preached vnto you, which ye haue alſo accepted, and in the whiche ye cõtynue, by the whiche alſo ye are ſauyd: I do you to wytte, after what maner I preached vnto you, yf ye kepe it, excepte ye haue beleued in vayne.

Esay.liii.b Math.28.b John.20.a For fyrſt of al I delivered vnto you, that whiche I receyved: howe that * Chriſt dyed for our ſinnes, agreinge to the ſcriptures: * And that he was buryed, and that he aroſe agayne the thyrd day accordyng to the ſcriptures: & that he was ſene * of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that he was ſene of moo then fyue hundreth brethren atonce: of whiche many remayne vnto this day, and many are falle a ſlepe. After that appered he to Iames, then to all the Apoſtles. Luke.24.

And laſt of al he was ſene of me, as of one that was borne out of due tyme. For I am the leaſt of the Apoſtles, which am not worthy to be called an Apoſtle, becauſe * I perſecuted the congregacyon of God. But by the grace of god, I am that I am. And his grace which is in me, was not i vayne: ⸂but I labored more aboundauntly then they all, yet not I, but the grace of God whiche is with me. Therfore whether it were I or they, ſo we preache, and ſo haue ye beleued. B Actes.viii. ix.a.xxii.a and xxvi.b. Gala.i.c.

⸂If Chriſt be preached how that he roſe from the dead: howe ſay ſome amonge you, that there is no reſurreccyon of the deade? If there be no ryſynge agayne of the dead: then is Chriſte not ryſen agayne. If Chriſte be not ryſen agayne, then is our preachyng in vayne, and your fayth is alſo in vayne. Ye & we are founde falſe wytneſſes of God, for we haue teſtyfied of God, howe that he rayſed vp Chriſte: whom he rayſed not vp, yf it be ſo that the deade ryſe not agayne. For yf the deade ryſe not agayne, then is Chryſte not riſen agayne. If it be ſo that Chriſt roſe not agayne, then is our fayth in vayne, and ye are yet in your ſynnes. Therfore they whiche are fallen a ſlepe in Chriſt, are peryſhed. If in this lyfe onely we beleue on Chriſt, then are we of all men moſt miſerable. C

But now is Chriſt ryſen from the dead, & become * the fyrſt frutes of them that ſlepte. Collo.i.c. For by a man came death, & by a man came the reſurreccyon of the deade. For as by Adam all dye: euen ſo by Chriſte, ſhall all be made alyue, but every man in his owne order. ⸂The fyrſt is Chriſte, then they that are Chriſtes at his cõmynge. ☞ Then cõmeth the ende ☞ when he hath delyuered vp the D kyngdome to God the father, when he hath put downe all rule & all auctoritye & power. For he muſt raygne * tyl he haue put all his enemies vnder his fete. Psal.cx.a Ephe.i.d. Hebr.i.b x.b. Hebre.ii.b. The laſt enemy that ſhalbe deſtroyed, is death. * For he hath put al thinges vnder his fete. But when he ſayth al thynges are put vnder him, it is manifeſt that he is excepted, which dyd put all thynges vnder him. When all thynges are ſubdued vnto hym, then ſhall the Sonne alſo him ſelfe be ſubiecte vnto hym, that put all thynges vnder hym, that God may be all in all. ☞ Els what do they, whiche are ☞ baptyſed over the deade, if the dead ryſe not at al? Why are they then baptyſed over them? Ye and why ſtande we alway then in ieopardye? By our reioyſyng whiche I haue in Chriſt Ieſu our Lord, I dye dayly. E That I haue foughte with beaſtes at Epheſus after the maner of men, what auauntageth it me, yf

CAPI. I.

A PAul an Apoſtle of Jeſu Chriſte by the wyl of God, and brother Tymotheus.

Unto the cõgregacyon of God, whiche is at Corynthum, wͭ all the Saynctes which are in al Achaia. ✱ Grace be wyth you and peace from God our father, ⁊ from the Lorde Jeſus Chriſt. Roma.1.a. 1 Cor.1.a Gala.1.a. Ephe.1.a 1.Petri.1.a 2.Petri.1.a.

✱ Bleſſed be God (the father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt) which is the father of mercy, and the God of al comforte, whiche comforteth vs in al our tribulaciõ, in ſo much that we are able to comforte them whyche are in any maner of trouble, with the ſame cõfort, wherwith we oure ſelues are comforted of God. For as the ✱ afflictions of Chriſte are Collo.1.c.

Whether we be troubled for your conſolacyon and health, ☞ (Or whether we be comforted, it is for your comforte and ſaluacyon) whiche ſaluacion ſheweth her power in that ye ſuffre the ſame afflyctions, whiche we alſo ſuffre: or whether we be cõforted for your conſolacion and ſaluacion: our hope alſo is ſtedfaſt for you: in as muche as we knowe, howe that as ye are parttakers of the afflictyons, ſo ſhall ye be parttakers alſo of the conſolacyon.

Brethren, I wolde not haue you ignorãt of our trouble, whych happened vnto vs in ✱ Aſia. For we were greued out of meaſure Acte.19.c paſſyng ſtrength, ſo greatly that we deſpayred euen of life. Alſo we receiued an anſwere of death in our ſelues that we ſhulde not put our truſt in our ſelues: ✱ but in God, whiche 1.Reg.2.a Deute.32.a rayſeth the dead to lyfe agayne, and whiche delyuered vs from ſo great a deth: and doth delyuer. On whom we truſt, that yet hereafter he wyl delyuer, by the helpe of your praier for vs, that by the meanes of many occaſiõs thankes may be gyuen of many ✱ on our behalfe, for the grace gyuen vnto vs. 2.Cor.4.c

C For our reioyſynge is thys, euen the teſtymony of oure conſcyence, that in ſynglenes ☞ (of hert) and godly purenes, ⁊ not in fleſhly wyſdome, but by the grace of God, we haue had our cõuerſacyon in the world, and moſt of all to you wardes. We wryte none other thynges vnto you, then that ye reade ⁊ alſo knowe. Yee and I truſt ye ſhall fynde vs vnto the ende, euen as ye haue founde vs partly: for we are your reioyſing, euen ✱ as ye are 1.Cor.1.a ours in the day of the Lorde Jeſus.

✱ And in this confydence was I mynded 1.Cor.16.a fyrſte to haue come vnto you, that I myght haue had one pleſure more with you, and to paſſe by you into Macedonia, and to haue come agayne out of Macedonia vnto you, ⁊

D to be led forth of you towarde Jewry. Whã I thus wyſe was mynded: dyd I vſe lyghtnes? Or thynke I carnally thoſe thynges whiche I thynke, that with me ſhulde be ✱ Math.5.f Iacobi.5.d yee, yee, and naye naye. God is faythful: For our preachyng to you, was not yee and nay For Goddes ſonne Jeſus Chriſt which was preached among you by vs (euen by me and Syluanus and Timotheus) was not yee ⁊ naye: but by hym it was yee: For all the promiſes of God, by him are yee: and are in him Amen, vnto the lawde of God thorowe vs.

E For it is God, whiche ſtablyſſheth vs wyth you in Chryſt and ſtandeth by vs, and hath annoynted vs, whyche hath alſo ſealed vs, and ✱ hath gyuen the erneſt of the ſpirite in Roma.8.c Ephe.4.d our hertes.

✱ I call God for a recorde vnto my ſoule, that for to fauer you wyth all I came not any more vnto Corynthium. ✱ Not that 1.Pet.5.a we be Lordes ouer youre FAYTH: but are helpers of youre ioye. For by fayth ye ſtande.

¶ He ſheweth the cauſe of hys abſence and exhorteth them to forgyue the man that was fallen, and to receyue hym agayne with loue.

CAPI. II.

A But I determyned this in my ſelfe, that I wolde not come agayne to you in heuyneſſe. For yf I make you ſorye, who is it that ſhulde make me glad, but the ſame whiche is made ſory by me? And I wrot thys ſame vnto you, leaſt yf I came vnto you, I ſhuld take heuynes *(vpon heuines) or of them, of whom I ought to reioyce. This confidence haue I toward you al, that my ioy is the ioy of you all. For out of great afflyccyon and anguyſhe of hert. I wrote vnto you with many teares: not that ye ſhulde be made ſory, but that ye might perceyue the loue, which I haue, moſt ſpecially vnto you.

B If any man hath cauſed ſorow, the ſame hath not made me ſory, but partely: leaſt I ſhulde greue you all. i.Cor.v.b. * It is ſuffycyent vnto the ſame man, that he was rebuked of many. So that now cõtrary wyſe, ye ought rather to forgyue hym, and comforte hym: leaſt that ſame perſon ſhulde be ſwalowed vp wyth ouer muche heuynes. Wherfore, I exhorte you, that loue maye haue ſtrength ouer hym. For thys cauſe verely dyd I wryt that I myght knowe the profe of you, whether ye ſhulde be obedyent in all thynges. To whom ye forgyue any thyng, I forgyue alſo. For yf I forgaue any thynge, to whom I forgaue it, for your ſakes forgaue I it, in the ſyght of Chriſte, leſt Satan ſhulde preuent vs. For his thoughtes are not vnknowen vnto vs. ⊢

Thanckes be vnto God, whiche alwayes gyueth vs the vyctorye in D Chriſt, & openeth the ſauer of hꝭ knowledge by vs in euery place. For we are vnto God the ſwete ſauoure of Chryſte, amonge them that are ſauyd, and among them whiche peryſhe. Luke.ii.f * To the one parte are we the ſauoure of death vnto deth. And vnto the other part are we the ſauour of life vnto lyfe. And who is mete vnto theſe thynges? For we are not as the moſt part are, whiche choppe & chaunge with the worde of god, but euen out of purenes, & by the power of God, in the ſyght of God, ſo ſpeake we in Chriſt.

CAPI. III.

A We begyn to prayſe oure ſelues agayne. Nede we as ſome other, of Epyſtles of recommendacion vnto you? or letters of recommendacyon from you? Ye are oure Epyſtle wrytten in our hertes, whyche is vnderſtande & red of al men, for aſmuch as ye declare that ye are the epyſtle of Chriſt, miniſtred by vs & wrytten, not with ynke: but with the ſpirite of the lyuyng God * not in tables of ſtone, but in * fleſhly tables of the herte. Exod.xxxiiii. Deute.v.d Iere.xxxi.f.

B ✠ Suche truſt haue we thorowe Chriſte to god warde, not that we are ſuffycyent of oure ſelues to thynke any thynge, as of oure ſelues: but yf we be able vnto any thynge * the ſame cometh of god, Phili.ii.b. whiche hath made vs able to * miniſtre the newe teſtament, i.Cor.i.a. not of the letter, but of the ſpirite. For ☞ the letter kylleth, but the ſpirite gyueth lyfe.

If the miniſtracyon of death thorow the letters fygured in ſtones, was gloryous, ſo that the chyldren of Iſraell coulde not beholde the face of Moſes, for the glory of his C countenaunce (whiche glory is done away) why ſhal not the miniſtracyon of the ſpirite be much more glorious? For if the miniſtracyon of condẽnacion be glorious much more doth the miniſtracyon of ryghtuouſnes exceade in glory. ⊢ For no dout that which was there glorified, is not once gloryfied in reſpecte of this excedynge glory. For yf that whiche is deſtroyed was glorious, muche more that whiche remayneth, is glorious.

Seyng then that we haue ſuche truſt, we vſe great boldnes, & do not as Moſes, which Exod.xxxiiii.d * put a vayle ouer his face, that the chyldren of Iſrael ſhuld not ſe for what purpoſe that ſerued whiche is put away. Mat.xiii.b. Mar.iiii.b Luke.viii.b Actes.xx.f Iohn.xii.f Roma.xi.b * But their myndes were blynded. For vntyl this day remayneth the ſame coueryng vntaken away in the lecture of the old teſtament, which vayle ſhalbe put awaye in Chriſte. But we al beholde in a myrroure the glory of the Lord with his face open, and are chaunged vnto the ſame ſimilitude, from glory to glory, euen as of the ſpirite of the Lorde.

CAPI. IIII.

A Therfore,ſeynge that we haue ſuche an office,euen as God hath had mercy on vs, we go not out of kynde: but haue caſte from vs the clokes of vnhoneſtye,⁊ walcke not in craftines,nether handle we the worde of God diſceitfully,but open the trueth,and reporte our ſelues to euery mānes conſciēce in the ſyght of God. ✚ If our Goſpel be yet hyd,it is hyd amonge them that are loſt, in Iohn.xii.f. For al thin i.Corin.i.a ges do I for your ſakes: that the plentuous grace by thanckes gyuen of many,maye redoūde to the prayſe of God.

Wherfore,we are not weryed. CAPI. I.

A PAule and Timothe the ſeruauntꝭ of Jeſu Chriſt. To al the ſaynctes in Chriſt Jeſu, whiche are at Philippos with the Byſhops and Deacons.

Grace be vnto you and peace from God our father, & from the Lorde Jeſus Chriſt.

✠ I thancke my God wyth all remembraunce of you ✶ all wayes in al my prayers Roma.i.b. Collo.i.a. for all you, and pray with gladnes: becauſe ye are come into the fellowſhyppe of the Goſpel from the fyrſt daye vnto nowe: ✠ and am ſurely certyfyed of this, that he whiche hath begõne a good worke in you, ſhall performe it vntyll the day of Jeſus Chriſt, as it becommeth me ſo iudge I of you all, becauſe I haue you in my herte: foraſmuch as ye all are cõpanyons of grace with me, euen in my bondes, and in the defendyng and ſtablyſhynge of the Goſpell.

B For God is my recorde, howe greatelv I longe after you all, from the very herte rote in Jeſus Chriſte. ✶ And thys I praye, that Ephe.i.d. your loue maye increace yet more and more in knowledge, and in all vnderſtandynge, that ye may accept the thinges that are moſt excellent, that ye may be pure, and ſuche, as hurte no mãnes conſcyence vntyl the day of Chriſt: beyng filled with the frute of ryghteouſnes, which frute cõmeth by Jeſus Chriſt vnto the glory and prayſe of God. ✠

I wolde ye ſhulde vnderſtand (brethren) that the thynges which happened vnto me, chaũced vnto the great furtheraunce of the Goſpell: So that my bandes in Chriſt, are manifeſt thorowe out all the iudgement hal and in al other places: In ſo muche that many of the brethren in the Lorde beynge encoraged thorowe my bãdes, dare more boldly ſpeake the worde without fere. Some preache Chriſte of enuye and ſtryfe, and ſome of good wyl. The one parte preacheth Chryſte of ſtryfe & not ſincerely, ſuppoſyng to adde more aduerſyte to my bandes: Agayne the other ye preache of loue, becauſe they know that I am ſet to defende the Goſpel.

What then? So that Chriſt be preached any maner of waye, whether it be by occaſion, or of true meanyng, I am glad therof, C ye and wyl be glad. For I knowe, that thys ii.Corin.i. ſhall chaunce to my ſaluacyon, ✶ thorowe your prayer and mynyſtrynge of the ſpirite of Jeſu Chriſt, accordyng to my expectacion & hope, that in nothynge I ſhalbe aſhamed: but that wyth all boldeneſſe, (as all wayes euen ſo nowe alſo) Chriſt ſhalbe magnyfyed in my body, whether it be thorow lyfe, or thorowe death. For Chriſt is to me lyfe, & death is to me auauntage.

If it chaunce me to lyue in the fleſhe, that thyng is to me frutefull for the worcke, and what I ſhal choſe I wote not. For I am cõſtrayned of theſe two thynges, ✶ I deſyre to ii.Cori.v.a be looſed: and to be with Chriſt is much better. Neuertheleſſe, to abyde in the fleſſhe is more nedefull for you. And this am I ſure of, that I ſhall abyde, and cõtinue with you all, for your furtheraunce and ioye of youre fayth, that your reioyſyng may be the more aboundant thorowe Jeſus Chriſt in me, by my commyng to you agayne.

Ephe.iiii.a Onely let your conuerſacyon be, ✶ as it D becommeth the Goſpell of Chriſt: that whether I come and ſe you, or els be abſente, I maye yet here of your condycyon, that ye cõtynue in one ſpirite, and in one ſoule, labourynge as we do, to mayntayne the fayth of the Goſpell, and in nothynge fearyng your aduerſaries, which is to them a cauſe of perdycion, but to you of ſaluacyon, and that of god. For vnto you it is gyuen of Chriſt that not onely ye ſhulde beleue on hym: but alſo ſuffre for his ſake, hauyng euen ſuch a fight as ye ſawe in me, and nowe heare of me.

¶ He exhorteth them to vnyte and brotherly loue, and to beware of ſtryfe and vayne glory: And for a ſure enſample, he layeth Chriſt before them.

CAPI. II.

IF there be therfore any conſolacyon in A Chriſt, yf there be any comforte of loue, yf there be any felyſhyp of the ſpirite, yf there be any compaſſyon and mercy: fulfyll ye my ioye, that ye be lyke mynded, hauynge one loue, beyng of one accord, and of one mynde that nothynge be done thorowe ſtryfe or of vayne glory, but in mekenes of mynde, let euery man eſteme another better then hym ſelfe. ✶ Loke not ye euery man on his owne i.Corin.x.f and.xiii.b thynges, but euery man on the thinges that are other mens: ✠ Let the ſame mynde be in you, that was alſo in Chriſte Jeſu: whyche whã he was in the ſhape of God, thought it no robbery to be equal wt god: Neuertheles he made him ſelfe of no reputacion, takyng whych is done without handes, for aſmuch as ye haue put of the ſynful body of the fleſſhe thorow the circumciſion that is in Chryſt, in that *ye are buried with him thorow baptyme, in whom ye are alſo ryſen agayne thorowe fayth, that is wrought by the operacyon of God whiche rayſed him from death.

*And ye whā ye were dead thorow ſynne and thorowe the vncircumcyſion of youre fleſſhe, hath he quyckened with hym, ⁊ hath forgyuen vs all our treſpaces ⊢ and hathe put out the hāde wrytyng that was againſt vs, contayned in the law wrytten: and that hath he taken out of the way, and hath faſtened it to his croſſe, and hath *ſpoyled rule and power, and hath made a ſhewe of them openly, and hath tryumphed ouer them in his owne perſon.

Let no man therfore trouble your cōſcyence aboute meate and drynke or for a pece of an holy daye, or of the newe Mone, or of the Saboth dayes, *whiche are ſhaddowes of thiges to come: but the body is in Chriſt. Let no man make you ſhot at a wronge marcke by the hūblenes ⁊ holynes of angels, in the thynges which he neuer ſawe, beyng cauſeleſſe puft vp with his fleſhly mynde, and holdeth not the head, wherof al the body by ioyntes and couples receyueth norysſhment and is knet together, and increaſeth with the increaſyng that commeth of God.

Wherfore, yf ye be dead with Chriſt from the ordinaūces of the world, why as though ye yet lyued in the world, are ye led with tradicions? Touche not, taſt not, handle not: whiche al peryſhe thorowe the very abuſe: after the commaundementes and doctrynes of men: which thynges outwardly haue the ſymilitude of wyſdome by ſuperſtycion and humblenes, and by hurting of the body, and in that they do the fleſſhe no worſhyppe vnto the nede therof.

¶ He putteth them in remembraunce of the ſpyrytuall reſurreccyon, to laye aſyde all maner of corrupte lyuyng, to be fruitfull in al godlyneſſe and vertue, and ſheweth all degrees their dutye.

If ye be then ryſen agayne with Chryſte, ſeke thoſe thiges which are aboue, where Chryſte ſytteth *on the ryght hande of God. Set youre affeccyon on thinges that are aboue, and not on thynges whiche are on the earth. For ye are dead, and your lyfe is hyd with Chriſt in God. ☞ Mortyfie therfore your earthy membres: fornycacion, vnclennes, vnnaturall luſt, euyll concupyſcence, and couetouſnes, which is worſhyppyng of ydoles: for which thynges ſake the wrathe of God vſeth to come on the chyldren of vnbelefe ⁊ amonge whom ye walcked ſomtyme, when ye lyued in them.

But nowe put ye alſo awaye from you all ſuch thinges: wrath, fearſnes, maliciouſnes curſed ſpeaking, filthy cōmunicacion out of your mouth. Lye not one to another, ſeynge that ye haue put of the olde man wyth hys workes, ⁊ haue put on the newe mā whiche is renued into the knowledge and ymage of him that made him, ⁊ where is nether Gentyle nor Iewe, circumciſion nor vncircumcyſyon, Barbarus or Sythian, bōde or fre: but Chriſt is all in all.

✠ Therfore as electe of God, holy ⁊ beloued, put on tender mercy, kyndnes, humblenes of mynde, mekenes, longeſufferyng, forbearynge one another, ⁊ forgeuynge one another, yf any man haue a quarel agaynſt another: as Chriſt forgaue you, euē ſo do ye. Aboue al theſe thinges put on ⁊ loue, which is the bonde of perfetnes. And the peace of God rule in your hertes: to the which peace ye are called in one bodye. And ſe that ye be thankfull. ⁊ Ye wyues, ſubmytte your ſelues vnto your owne huſbandes, as it is comly in the Lorde: Ye huſbandes, loue your wyues and be not bytter vnto them. ⁊ Ye chyldren, obey your fathers and mothers in al thinges, for that is well pleaſynge vnto the Lord. Ye fathers, prouoke not your chyldrē *(to anger) leſt they be of a deſperate minde. ⁊ Ye ſeruauntes be obediēt vnto thē that are your bodyly maſters in all thynges: not with eye ſeruice as mē pleaſers, but ī ſinglenes of herte, fearyng God. C For it became him, for whom are all thinges and by whom are al thynges (after that he had brought many ſonnes vnto glory) ẏ he ſhulde make the Lorde of their ſaluacion perfecte thorowe afflictions. For both he that ſanctifieth and they whyche are ſanctifyed, are all of one. For whych cauſes ſake he is not aſhamed to call them brethren, ſayinge: I wyll declare thy name vnto my Psal.xxii.c Esai.viii.d * brethren, in the myddes of the Congregacyon wyll I prayſe the. And agayne: I wyll put my truſt in him. And agayne: beholde, here am I & the chyldren whom God hath gyuen me.

For as much then as the chyldrẽ are partetakers of fleſhe & bloude, he alſo him ſelfe D lykewyſe toke parte wyth them that (thorowe death) he myght expell hym that had lordſhyppe ouer death, that is to ſay the deuyl, and that he myght delyuer them, which thorow feare of death were all there lyfe tyme ſubdued vnto bondage. For he in no place taketh on him the Angels: but the ſede of Abraham taketh he on him. Wherfore, in al thinges it became him to be made like vnto his brethrē, that he myght be mercyfull, and a faythfull hye preſte in all thynges concernynge God, for to pourge the peoples ſynnes. For in that it fortuned him ſelfe to be tempted, he is able to ſucker them alſo that are tempted.

¶ He exhorteth vs to be obedient vnto the word of Chriſt, which is more worth then the ceremoniall lawe of Moſes. The puniſhment of ſuche as wyl nedes harden their hertes.

CAPI. III.

A Therfore holy brethren: partakers of the celeſtyall callyng conſyder the embaſſadour and hye preſte of oure profeſſyon Chryſt Jeſus/ howe that he is faythful vnto hym that put hym in the offyce/ euen as was Moſes in all his houſe. For loke howe moch honour he (that hath buylded a houſe) hath more then the houſe it ſelfe, So moche honoure is he counted worthie of more then Moſes. For euery houſe is buylded of ſome man. But he that ordayned all thynges, is God. And Moyſes verely was faythfull in all his houſe, as a miniſter to beare wytnes of thoſe thynges whiche were to be ſpoken afterwarde. But Chriſt as a ſōne, hath rule ouer the houſe, whoſe houſe are we, if we holde faſt the confydence & ȳ reioyſynge of that hope, vnto the ende. Roma.v.a

Wherfore (as the holy ghoſt ſayth:) to day yf ye wyll heare his voyce, harden not your hertes, ☞ as in the prouokynge, in the daye of temptacion in the wildernes, where your fathers tēpted me, prouoked me, & ſawe my workes .xl. yeare. Wherfore I was greued with that generacyon, and ſayde: They do alway erre in their hertes: they verely haue not knowen my wayes, ſo that I ſware in my wrath: they ſhall not entre into my reſt. B Take hede brethren, leaſt at any tyme there be in any of you a froward hert ſubiecte vnto vnbelefe, that he ſhulde departe from the lyuynge God: but exhorte ye one another dayly, whyle it is called to daye: leſt any of you were hard harted thorow the diſceytfulneſſe of ſynne.

C We are made partakers of Chriſt, yf we kepe ſure (vnto the ende) the ☞ begining of the ſubſtaunce, ſo long as it is ſaid: to day if ye wyl here his voice, hardē not your hertes as in the prouoking, for ſome whē they herd dyd prouoke: how be it not al that come out of Egypt by Moſes. But wt whom was he diſpleaſed .xl. yeres? was he not diſpleaſed wt thē ȳ had ſynned, whoſe carkaſes were ouerthrowē ī the deſerte? To whō ſware he ȳ they ſhulde not entre into his reſt, but vnto thē that were not obediēte? And we ſe ȳ they coulde not entre in, becauſe of vnbelefe.

¶ The Sabboth or reſt of the Chriſten: puniſhementes of vnbeleuers: the nature of the worde of God.

CAPI. IIII.

A Let vs feare therfore, leſt any of you (forſakyng the promes of entryng into his reſt) ſhuld ſeme at any tyme to haue bene diſapoynted. For vnto vs is it declared, aſwel as vnto thē. But it profyteth not them, that they herd the word: becauſe they which herd it, coupled it not with fayth (For we whyche haue beleued, do entre ī to his reſt) as he ſaid Euen as I haue ſworne in my wrathe: they ſhall not entre into my reſt. And that ſpake he verely longe after that the workes were made and the fūdaciō of the worlde layde. For he ſpake in a certayne place of the ſeuenth day, on this wyſe. * And God dyd reſt the ſeuenth daye from all his worckes. Gene.2.a And in this place agayne: They ſhall not entre into my reſt.

B Seynge therfore it foloweth, that ſome muſte entre therinto, and they (to whom it was fyrſt preached) entre not therin for vnbelefes ſake, he appoynteth a certayne daye after ſo long a tyme ſaying in Dauid (as it is rehearſed) this daye yf ye wyll heare hys voyce, harden not your hertes. For if Joſue had giuen them reſt, then wolde he not afterward haue ſpoken of another day. There remayneth therfore yet a reſt to the people of God. For he that is entred into his reſt hath ☞ ceaſed alſo from hys owne worckes, as God dyd from hys.

C Let vs ſtudy therfore to entre into the reſt leſt any mā faule after the ſame enſample of vnbelefe. For the worde of God is quycke & myghty in operacion, and ſharper then any two edged ſwearde: & entreth through, euen vnto the dyuidyng a ſonder of the ſoule and the ſpirite, & of the ioyntes and the mary: & is a dyſcerner of the thoughtes & of the intentes of the herte: nether is there any creature that is not manifeſt in the ſyght of him: But all thynges are naked & open vnto the eyes of him, of whom we ſpeake.

D Seynge then, that we haue a great hye preſt which is entred into heauen (euen Jeſus the ſonne of God) let vs holde the profeſſion* (of our hope) For we haue not an hye preſt, which cannot haue compaſſion on our

Philip.ii.a infirmyties: but * was in al poyntes tempted, lyke as we are: but yet with out ſynne. Exodi.25.b Let vs therfore go boldely vnto the * ſeate of grace, that we may obtayne mercy, ⁊ fynd grace to helpe in tyme of nede.

¶ Chriſt is our hye prieſte, and ſeate of grace, and more excellent then the hye prieſtes of the olde lawe.

CAPI. V.

A Leuit.ix.b For * euery hye preſt that is taken from amonge men, is ordayned for men, in thynges pertaynynge to God * to offre gyftes and ſacryfyces for ſynne: whyche can haue compaſſion on the ignoraunte, and on them that are out of the way, for as muche as he hym ſelfe alſo is compaſed with infirmitie: And for the ſame infirmities ſake he is bounde to offre for ſynnes, as wel for him ſelfe, as for the people. And no man taketh honour vnto him ſelfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

B Euen ſo Chriſt alſo glorified not hĩ ſelf, Psal.ii.b Acte.13.e Hebre.i.b. to be made the hye preſt: but he that ſayd vnto him, * thou art my ſonne, this daye haue I begottẽ the, glorified him. As he ſayth alſo in another place: Psal.109.b. * thou arte a Preſt for euer after the ordre of Melchiſedech ☞ whiche in the daies of his fleſh, whan he had offred vp prayers ⁊ ſupplications, wt ſtrong crying and teares (vnto him that was able to ſaue him from death) and was heard becauſe of hĩ reuerẽce, though he were the ſõne ✗ ✗ (of God) yet lerned he obedience, by thoſe thinges which he ſuffered: ⁊ he beynge parfecte, was the cauſe of eternal ſaluacyon vnto all them that obeyed him: and is called of God an hye Preſt, after the order of Melchiſedech.

C Wherfore we wold ſpeake many thinges but they are harde to be vttered: ſeynge ye are dull of hearyng. For when as cõcerning the time, ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne, that we teache you the fyrſte pryncyples of the worde of God: and are be- ☞ 1.Cor.iii.a come ſuch as ☞ haue nede of * mylcke: and not of ſtronge meate: for euery man that is fed with mylke, is inexperte in the worde of ryghtuouſnes. For he is but a babe. But ſtronge meate belongeth to thẽ that are parfecte euẽ thoſe, which (by reaſon of vſe) haue their wittes exerciſed to diſcerne both good and euyl.

¶ He goeth forthe with the thynge that he beganne in the latter ende of the fyfte Chapyter, and exhorteth them not to faynte, but to be ſtedfaſt, and pacyent: for ſo muche as God is ſure in his promeſſe.

CAPI. VI.

A Therfore leuynge the doctryne that pertayneth to the begynnyng of Chriſten men, let vs go forth vnto perfeccyon, not layinge agayne the foundacion of repentaũce from deade workes and of fayth toward God, baptyſynges, of doctryne, and of layinge on of handes, and of reſurreccion from death and of eternall iudgement. And ſo wyl we do * If God permitte. ☞ Actes.xiii.b and.xviii For it can not be that they whiche were once lyghted, and haue taſted of the heauenly gyfte, and were become partakers of the holy Ghoſt, ⁊ haue taſted of the good worde of God, and Math.12.d ii.Petri.ii Hebre.x.d. of the power of the world to come: * yf they fall awaye (and as concernyng them ſelues crucyfie the ſonne of God a freſſh, ⁊ make a mocke of hym) that they ſhulde be renued agayne by repentaunce.

B For the earth whiche drincketh in the rayne that commeth oft vpon it, and bryngeth forth herbes mete for them that dreſſe it, receyueth bleſſynge of God. But that grounde whiche beareth Thornes and breares, is reproued, and is nye vnto curſynge: whoſe ende is to be burned. C Neuertheleſſe (deare frendes) we truſt to ſe bettter of you, and thynges whych accompany ſaluacion, thoughe we thus ſpeake. For God is not Math.25.d vnryghtuous * that he ſhulde forget youre worke and laboure that procedeth of loue, whyche loue ye ſhewe in hys name, whyche haue miniſtred vnto the ſaintes, and yet miniſtre. Yee, and we deſyre, that euery one of you ſhew the ſame diligence, to the ful ſtabliſhynge of hope, euen vnto the ende: that ye faynt not, but be folowers of thẽ, which thorow fayth ⁊ pacience receyue the enherytaũce of the promyſſe.

For when God made promes to Abrahã Gene.xii.c bycauſe he had none greater to ſweare by * he ſware by hym ſelf, ſaying: Surely I wyl bleſſe the, and multyply the in dede. D And ſo after that he had taried pacietly, he enioyed the promes. For men verely ſweare by hym Exodi.22.a that is greater then them ſelues, and * an othe to confyrme the thynge, is to them an ende of all ſtryfe. So God wyllynge very aboundauntly to ſhewe vnto the heyres of promes, the ſtablenes of hys counſayle, added an othe: that by two immutable thynges (in whyche it was vnpoſſible that God ſhulde lye) we myght haue a ſtrong conſolaciõ, which hitherto haue fled, for to hold faſt ẏ hope that is ſet before vs, whych hope we holde as an ancre of the ſoule both ſure and ſtedfaſt, which hope alſo entreth in, ito thoſe thynges whiche are within the vayle, where diator of a better teſtamente, whyche was confyrmed in better promyſes. For yf that fyrſt teſtament had bene ſuch, that no faute coulde haue bene founde in it, then ſhulde no place haue bene ſought for the ſeconde.

Iere.xxxi.f For in rebukyng them, he ſayth vnto them. *Beholde the dayes come (ſayth the Lorde) and I wyll fynyſhe vpon the houſe of Iſraell, and vpon the houſe of Iuda, a newe teſtamente: not lyke the teſtamente that I made with their fathers in that day, when I toke them by the handes, to leade them out of the lande of Egypte. For they contynued not in my teſtamente, and I regarded them not ſayeth the Lorde.

For this is the teſtamente, that I wyll make wyth the houſe of Iſrael: After thoſe dayes (ſayth the Lord) I wyl put my lawes in theyr myndes, and in theyr hertes I wyl wryte them, and I wilbe theyr god, and they ſhalbe my people. And they ſhall not teach, euery man hys neyghboure and euery man hys brother, ſayinge: knowe the Lorde: for they ſhall knowe me, from the leaſte to the moſte of them: For I wylbe mercyfull ouer their vnrighteweſnes, and theyr ſinnes and theyr iniquytyes wyll I thyncke vpon nomore. In that he ſayth a newe teſtament, he hath worne out the olde. For that which is worne out and wexed old, is redy to vaniſhe awaye.

CAPI. IX.

A THE olde Teſtament then had verely ordynaunces, and ſeruynges of God, Exo.xxv.b and wordly holynes. ✠ For *there was a fore tabernacle made, wherin was the light and the table, and the ſhewe breed, which is called holy. But within the ſeconde vayle was there a tabernacle, whiche is called holyeſt of all, which had the golden ſenſer, and the arche of the teſtament ouerlayde rounde about wyth golde, wherin was the golden
B pot with *Manna, and †Aarons rodde that Exo.xvi.g ſprong and ‡the tables of the teſtament. O-
Nu.xvii.a uer the arche were the Cherubyns of glory, Exodi.xl.c ſhadowynge the ſeate of grace. Of whyche thinges we cānot now ſpeake particularly.

When theſe thinges were thus ordeined, the Preſtes went all wayes into the fyrſt tabernacle, whiche executed the ſeruyce of the holy thinges. But into the ſeconde went the Exo.xxx.b hye preſt alone *once euery yeare: not wyth
C and for the ignoraunces of the people.

Wherwith the holy gooſt thys ſygnyfyed, that the waye of holy thynges was not yet opened, whyle as yet the fyrſte tabernacle was ſtandynge. Whiche was a ſymilytude for the tyme then preſent, in whiche were offered gyftes and ſacrifyces, that coulde not make the mynyſter parfecte, as pertaynyng to the conſcyence, wyth onely meates and drinckes, and diuers waſſhinges and iuſtifyinges of the fleſſhe, whiche were ordeyned vntyll the tyme of reformacyon. Hebre.vi.d and.vii.d

✠ But *Chriſt beynge an hye Preſt of good thynges to come, came by a greater & a more parfecte tabernacle, not made with handes: that is to ſaye, not of thys buyl- D dynge, neyther by the bloude of goates and calues: but * by hys owne bloude he entred i.Petri.i. in once into the holy place, and founde eternall redemcion. ⊢

For yf the *bloud of oxen and of gotes & Leui.xvi.c the aſſhes of a yonge cowe, when it was ſprynckled, puryfyeth the vnclene, as touchynge the puryfyinge of the fleſſhe: howe much more ſhal the bloude of Chriſt) which thorowe the eternal ſpryte, offered him ſelfe without ſpot to God) pourge youre conſcience from deed workes, for to ſerue the lyuinge God?

And for thys cauſe is he the *mediator of i.Tim.ii.b the newe teſtamēt, that thorow death which chaunſed, for the redempcyon of thoſe tranſgreſſions that were vnder the firſt teſtamēt they whyche are called, myght receaue the promes of eternall inherytaunce. ⊢ For E wher as is a teſtamente, there muſt alſo (of neceſſyte) be the death of hym that maketh the teſtament. For the teſtament taketh auctoryte when men are deed: for it is yet of no value, as long as he that maketh the teſtament is alyue, for which cauſe alſo, neyther the fyrſt teſtament was ordeyned without bloude. For when Moſes had declared all the commaundement to all the people accordynge to the lawe, he toke the bloude of calues and of goates, with water & purple wolle, and yſope, and ſprynckled bothe the boke, & all the people, ſayinge: *this is the Exod.24.b bloud of the teſtamēt, which God hathe appointed vnto you. Moreouer, he ſprinckled the tabernacle with bloud alſo, and all the miniſtringe veſſels. And almoſt al thynges are by the lawe purged with bloud, & wyth out ſheadynge of bloude is no remyſſyon.

It is nede then, that the ſimilytude of heauenly thynges be puryfyed with ſuch thinges: but that the heauenly thinges them ſelues be puryfyed with better ſacrifyces then Actes.vii.f and.xvii. are thoſe. *For Chriſte is not entred into

A Symon Peter a ſeruaunt, and an Apoſtle of Ieſus Chriſte, to the whyche haue optayned lyke precyous fayth wyth vs thorowe the ryghtuouſneſſe of our God, & ſauiour Ieſus Chriſt.

1.Petri.1.a * Grace be vnto you, and peace be multiplyed thorow the knowledge of God and of Ieſus our Lorde. Accordynge as his godly power hath geuen vnto vs al thynges that pertayne vnto lyfe and godlynes, thorowe the knowledge of hĩ that hath called vs by glory, and vertue, by the whyche are gyuen vnto vs excellent and moſte greate promyſes, that by the meanes therof ye myght be * partakers of the godly nature, yf ye flye ỹ corrupcyon of worldly luſt. Iohn.1.c Colo.ii.

B And herevnto giue all diligence: in your fayth mynyſter vertu: in vertu knowledge: * in knowledge temperaunce, in temperaũce pacience: in pacience godlynes, in godlynes brotherly kyndnes, in brotherly kidnes loue. For yf theſe thynges be amonge you, and be plentuous, they wyl make you that ye neyther ſhalbe ydle nor vnfrutefull in the knowledge of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt. But he that lacketh theſe thynges, is blynde and gropeth for the way with his hãde, and hath forgotten, that he was pourged from hys olde ſynnes. 1.Corin.8.a

C Wherfore brethren, gyue the more dylygẽce for to make your callyng & eleccyõ ſure (by good worckes) For yf ye do ſuch thinges, ye ſhal neuer fal. Yee and by this meanes an entryng in ſhal be miniſtred vnto you aboũdantly into ỹ euerlaſtyng kingdome of our Lord and ſauiour Ieſus Chriſt.

Wherfore I wyll not be neglygent to put you alwayes in remẽbraunce of ſuche thynges though ye know them your ſelues, and be ſtablyſhed in the preſent trueth. Notwithſtandynge I thynke it mete (as longe as I am in this tabernacle) to ſtere you vp by puttyng you in remembraunce, for as much as I am ſure, that ſhortly I muſte put of thys my tabernacle, * euen as oure Lorde Ieſus Chriſt ſhewed me. I wyll euer alſo gyue my dylygence, that ye maye haue wherwyth to ſtere vp the remembraunce of theſe thynges after my departynge. ✠ For we haue not folowed dyſceytfull fables, when we opened vnto you the power and commynge of oure Lorde Ieſus Chryſt, but * with our eyes we ſawe his maieſtye: euen then verely when he receyued of God the father honour and glory, & when there came ſuche a voyce to hym from the excellent glorye, * Thys is my dere beloued ſonne, in whom I haue delyte. This voyce we hearde come from heauen, whan we were wyth hym, in the holy Mounte. 2.Cor.v.a Iohn.xxi.d 1.Iohn.1.a D Mat.17.a Mar.ix.a Marke.i.b Luke.iii.d

We haue alſo a ryght ſure worde of prophecye, wherunto yf ye take hede, as vnto a * lyght, that ſhineth in a darcke place, ye do well, vntyll the day dawne, & the day ſtarre aryſe in your hertes. ✠ So that ye fyrſte knowe thys: that no prophecye in the ſcripture hath any pryuate interpretacyon: For the ſcripture came neuer by the wyll of mã: but holy men of god ſpake, as they were moued by the holy ghoſt. 2.Cor.4.a

CAPI. II.

A There were falſe prophetes alſo amonge the people, euen as * there ſhalbe falſe techers amõg you: which preuely ſhal bring in damnable ſectes (euen denyeng the Lord that hath bought thẽ, & bryng vpon thẽſelues ſwyft dãnacion, and many ſhall folowe their damnable wayes, by whom the waye of trueth ſhal be euyl ſpoken of, and thorow couetouſnes ſhall they wyth fayned wordes make marchaũdiſe of you, whoſe iudgemẽt is nowe not farre of, & their damnacyon ſlepeth not. Actes.20.f 1.Tim.4.a 2.Tim.3.a 2.Petri.3.a Iude.16.

B For yf God ſpared not the angels that ſinned, but caſt them downe into hell, and delyuered them into chaynes of darckenes (to be punyſhed) to be kept vnto iudgemẽt: neither ſpared the olde worlde, but ſaued * Noe the eyght preacher of ryghtuouſnes, & brought in the floud vpon the world of the vngodly, & turned the cities of Zodom & Gomor into aſſhes: ouerthrewe them, damned them, and made on them an enſample vnto thoſe that after ſhulde lyue vngodly. And iuſt * Lot vexed wyth the vncleanly cõuerſacyon of the wycked, delyuered he. For he beyng ryghteous, and dwellynge among them in ſeynge and hearyng, vexed his righteous ſoule frõ daye to day wyth theyr vnlawfull dedes. * The Lorde knoweth how to delyuer the vngodly out of temptacyon, and to reſerue the vniuſt Gen.7.a Gene.19.d Iob.5.d 1.Corin.10.d vniuſt vnto to the day of iudgement for to be punyſhed: but cheifely them that walke after the fleſhe in the luſt of vnclennes, & deſpyſe auctorite. C Preſūptuous are they, and ſtubborne, which feare not to ſpeake euyl of them that excell in worſhyp. When the Angels whiche are greater both in power and might, receyue not of ŷ Lord raylyng iudgement againſt thē ſelues. But theſe as brute beaſtes, naturally brought forth to be takē & deſtroyed, ſpeake euyl of the thynges that they vnderſtande not, & ſhal peryſh in their owne deſtruccion, & receyue the rewarde of vnryghtuouſnes.

They count it pleaſure to lyue delycyouſly for a ſeaſon. Spottes they are & fylthynes: which lyue at pleaſure in their owne diſceyuable wayes, feaſtynge with you: hauynge eyes ful of aduoutry, and that cannot ceaſe from ſynne, begylyng vnſtable ſoules. Hertes they haue exercyſed wyth couetouſnes. They are curſed chyldren whyche haue forſaken the ryght waye, D and are gone aſtraye folowyng the * way of Balā the ſōne of Boſor, whiche loued the rewarde of vnryghtuouſnes: but was rebuked of his iniquytie. The tame and dome beaſt, ſpeakynge wyth mannes voyce, forbade the madneſſe of the Prophete.

These are welles wythout water: cloudes that are caried with a tēpeſt, to whō the myſt of darckenes is reſerued for euer. For when they haue ſpoken the great ſwellynge wordes of vanitie, they entiſe thorow luſtes in the voluptuouſnes of the fleſhe, thē that were cleane eſcaped: euen thē that now lyue in errour, whyle they promes them lybertye, where as they thē ſelues are the bōd ſeruauntes of corrupcyon. * For of whom a man is ouercome, vnto ŷ ſame is he brought in bondage. ‡ For yf they (after they haue eſcaped from the fylthynes of the world thorow the knowledge of the Lord and the ſauyour Jeſus Chriſt) are yet tāgled againe therin, and ouercome * then is the latter ende worſe wt them then the begynnyng. For it had bene better for them, not to haue knowē the way of ryghtuouſnes, then after they haue knowen it, to turne from the holy cōmaundemēt that was gyuen vnto thē: But the ſame is happened vnto thē that is vſed to be ſpokē by the true prouerbe. * The dogge is turned to his vomet agayne, and the ſow that was waſhed is turned agayne to her walowyng in the myer.

CAPI. II. ✠

A MY lytel chyldren, theſe thinges write I vnto you, that ye ſinne not. And yf any mā ſine we haue an aduocate wt the father, Jeſ' Chriſt the righteous: & he it is that optayneth grace for our ſynnes not for our ſinnes onely: but alſo for the ſinnes of al ye world ✠ And hereby we are ſure yt we know hī, yf we kepe his cōmaūdementes. He that ſayth I know him, & kepeth not his cōmaundemētes is a lyer, & the verite is not in him. But whoſo kepeth his worde, in hī is the loue of God perfect in dede: hereby know we that we are in him. He yt ſayth he bydeth in hym, ought to walke euen as he walcked. ✠ Jhon.13.d

B Brethren, I wryte no newe commaundement vnto you: but that olde commaundemēt, which ye haue had frō the begynnynge. The olde commaundement is the worde, which ye haue hearde from the begynnyng Agayne, a new commaundemēt I wryte vnto you, that is true in him, & the ſame is true alſo in you: for the derkenes is paſt, and the true lyght now ſhyneth. ✠ He that ſayeth how that he is in the lyght, & yet hateth hys brother, is in darcknes euen vntyl this time He that loueth hys brother, abydeth in the lyght, and there is none occaſyon of euyll in hym. He that * hateth his brother, is in darkenes, & walketh in darcknes: and cānot tel whither he goeth, becauſe ye darckenes hath blynded hys eyes. Leuit.19.d

Babes I wryte vnto you, how yt your ſynnes are forgyuē you for his names ſake. I wryte vnto you fathers, howe that ye haue knowen him that is from the begīnıng. I wryte vnto you yonge men, howe that ye haue ouercome ye wycked: I wryte vnto you lytel chyldren, how yt ye haue knowen the father. I haue wryttē vnto you fathers, howe that ye haue knowen hym that is from the begynnyng. I haue wryttē vnto you yonge men, howe that ye are ſtrong, and the worde of god abiteth in you, and ye haue ouercome that wycked.

Se that ye loue nott the worlde, neyther the thynges that are in the worlde. If any man loue the world, the loue of the father is not in hym. For all that is in the worlde (as the luſt of the fleſhe, and the luſt of the eyes, & the pryde of lyfe) is not of the father, but of the worlde. And the worlde paſſeth awaye and the luſt therof, but he that fulfylleth the wyll of God, abideth for euer. Job.xvii.b

C Lytel chyldren, it is the laſt tyme, and as ye haue heard how that Antichriſt ſhall come, euen now are there many begonne to be Antichriſtes all redy, wherby we knowe, yt it is the laſt tyme. * They went out frō vs, but they were not of vs. For yf they had bene of vs [illegible] of vs, they wolde no dout haue cõtynued wͭ vs. But that it myght appeare, that they were not of vs.

Neuertheles, ye haue an oyntmẽt of hi yͭ is holy, ⁊ ye know all thynges. ✠ I haue not wrytẽ vnto you, as though ye knew not the truth: but as though ye knew it, ⁊ know also, yͭ no lye cõmeth of truth. Who is a lier, but he that denieth that Jesus is Chriſt? the ſame is Antechriſte, that denyeth the father ⁊ the ſonne. Whoſoeuer denieth the ſõne, the ſame hath not the father. ☞ (he that knowleſgeth the ſonne hath the father alſo.) Let therfoꝛe abyde in you that ſame whyche ye hearde from the begynnyng. If that whych ye heard from the begynnyng ſhal remayne in you, ye alſo ſhal contynue in the Sonne, and in the Father. And this is the pꝛomes that he hath pꝛomyſed vs euen eternall lyfe. ☜

These thinges haue I wrytten vnto you, concernyng them that diſceiue you. And the anoyntyng whych ye haue receyued of hym dwelleth in you. And ye nede not, that any man teache you: but ‡ as the anoyntyng teacheth you of al thinges, and is true, ⁊ no lye, ⁊ as it hath taught you, euen ſo byde therin. And now babes abyde in him: that when he ſhal appere, we may be bolde, ⁊ not be made aſhamed of hym at his commynge: If ye knowe that he his ryghtuous, know alſo yͭ euery one whych doth ryghtuouſnes, is boꝛne of hym.

He wryteth vnto a certayne lady, reioyſeth that her chyldren walcke in the trueth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth the to beware of ſuch dyſceauers as denye that Jeſus Chryſte came in the fleſſh, prayeth them to contynue in the doctrine of Chriſt, and to haue nothing to do with them that brynge not thys lernynge.

A THe elder to the electe lady and her chyldren, whome I loue in the trueth: and not I onely, but alſo all yͭ hath knowe the trueth, for the truthes ſake which dwelleth in vs, and ſhall be in vs for euer. With vs ſhall be grace, mercye and peace from God the father and from the Lorde Jeſus Chriſt the ſonne of the father, in trueth & loue. I reioyſed greatly, that I founde of thy chyldren walkynge in trueth, as we haue receaued a commaundement of B the father, And nowe beſeche I the lady, not as though I wrote a newe cōmaundement vnto the, but that ſame whiche we haue had from the begynnynge, that we ſhulde * loue one another. And thys is the loue, that we ſhulde walke after hys commaundement. This commaundement is (that as ye haue hearde from the beginning) ye ſhuld walke in it. For many deceauers are entred into the worlde, whiche confeſſe not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſſh. This is a deceauer and an Antichriſt. Loke on your ſelues that we looſe not that we haue wrought: C but that we may haue a ful rewarde. Whoſoeuer tranſgreſſeth and bydeth not in the doctryne of Chryſte, hath not God. He that endureth in the doctryne of Chryſte, hathe both the father and the ſonne. If there come any vnto you, and bryng not this learnyng, hym receaue not to houſe: neyther byd hym God ſpede. For he that byddeth hym God ſpede, is partaker of hys euyl dedes * (Beholde I haue tolde you before, that ye ſhulde not be aſhamed in the day of the lorde.) I had many thynges to wryte vnto you, neuertheleſſe I wolde not wryte with paper and inke. but I truſt to come vnto you, and ſpeake with you mouth to mouth, that oure ioye may be ful. He is glad of Gayus, that he walketh in the trueth exhorteth them to be louyng vnto the poore Chryſten in theyr perſecucyon, ſheweth the vnkynde dealinge of Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demetrius.

A THe elder vnto the beloued Gayus, whome I loue in the trueth. Beloued I wyſſh in all thinges that thou proſperedſte, and faredſt wel, euen as thy ſoule proſpereth. For I reioyſed greatly, when the brethren came, and teſtified of the trueth that is in the, howe thou walckeſte in the B trueth. I haue no greater ioye, then for to heare, Howe that my ſonnes walcke in veritye, Beloued, thou doeſt faythfully, what ſoeuer thou doeſte to the brethren, and to ſtraungers, which beare wytnes of thy loue before the congregacion, which brethren yf thou brynge forwardes of theyr iorney) after a godly ſorte) thou ſhalt do well: becauſe that for hys names ſake they wente forthe: and toke nothyng of the Gentyls. C We therfore ought to receaue ſuche, that we myght be helpers to the trueth.

I wrote vnto the congregacion: but Diotrephes whiche loueth to haue the preemynence amonge them, receaueth vs not. Wherfore yf I come, I wyll declare his dedes which he dothe, ieſtynge on vs with malycyous wordes, neyther is ther with content. Not onely he hym ſelfe receaueth not the brethren: but alſo he forbyddeth them that wolde, and thruſteth them oute of the congregacyon, Beloued, folowe not that which is euyll, D but that which is good. He that doeth well, is of God: but he that doeth euyll, ſeyth not God. Demetrius hathe good reporte of all men and of the trueth it ſelfe, yee and we our ſelues alſo beare recorde, and ye knowe, that oure recorde is true, I had many thynges to wryte: but I wyl not with inke and penne wryte vnto the. ¶ Happy are they that heare the wordes of God and kepe it. He wryteth to the ſeuen congregacyons in Aſia, ſeeth ſeuen candelſtyckes, and in the myddes of them, one lyke vnto the ſonne of man.

CAPI. I.

A The Reuelacyon of Jeſus Chriſt, which God gaue vnto him, for to ſhewe vnto hys ſeruauntes, thynges whiche muſte ſhortely come to paſſe. ✚ And whan he had ſente, he ſhewed by hys angell vnto hys ſeruaũt Jhon, which bare recorde of the worde of God, and of the teſtymonye of Jeſus Chryſt, and of all thynges that he ſawe. Happye is he that readeth and they that heare the wordes of the prophesye, and kepe thoſe thynges which are wrytten therin. For the tyme is at hande.

John to the ſeuen congregacions in Aſia: Grace be vnto you and peace, frõ him which is and which was, and whiche is to come, & from the ſeuen ſpirites which are before his B trone, & from Jeſu Chriſt, which is a faythfull wytnes, and fyrſt begotten of the deed: and lorde ouer the kinges of the earth. C J John youre brother, and companion in tribulacyon, and in the kyngdome & paciẽce in Jeſu Chryſt, was in the yle that is called Pathmos, for the worde of God, and for the wytneſſing of Jeſu Chriſt: J was in the ſpirite on a ſondaye, & herde behynde me a great voyce, as it had bene of a trompe, ſayinge: J am Alpha and Omega, the fyrſte and laſte. That thou ſeyſt, wryte in a boke, and ſende it vnto the ſeuen cõgregacions which are in Aſia, vnto Epheſus, & vnto Smirna and vnto Pergamos, and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, and vnto Philadelphia and vnto Laodicia.

D And J turned backe to ſe the voyce that ſpake to me. And when J was turned: J ſawe ſeuen golden cãdelſtickes, & in the myddes of the ſeuen candelſtickes, one lyke vnto the ſonne of man, clothed with a lynnen garment downe to the fete, and gyrde about the pappes with a golde gyrdle. His heed, & his heares were whyte, as white woll, and as ſnowe: & hys eyes were as a flame of fyre: & hys fete lyke vnto braſſe, as thoughe they brent in a fornace, & his voyce as the ſounde of many waters. And he had in hys ryghte hande. vij. ſtarres. And out of hys mouthe wente a ſharpe two edged ſwearde. ✱ And his face ſhone, euen as the ſonne in hys ſtrength. And when J ſawe him, J fel at his fote, euen as deed. And he layde hys ryghte hande vpon me, ſaying vnto me: feare not. ✱ J am the fyrſt and the laſt, and am a lyue, and was deed. A Unto the meſſenger of the congregacyon of Epheſus wryte: theſe thynges ſayeth he, that holdeth ſeuen ſtarres in hys ryght hande, and that walketh in the myddes of ſeuen golden candelſtickes. J know thy worckes, and thy labour, and thy pacyence, and howe thou canneſt not forbeare them whiche are euyll: and haſte examyned them, whyche ſaye they are Apoſtles, and are not: and haſt foũde them lyars, and haſt ſuffred. And haſt pacyence: and for my names ſake haſte labored, and haſte not faynted. Neuertheles, J haue ſumwhat againſt the, becauſe thou haſt lefte thy fyrſte loue. B Remember therfore, from whence thou arte fallen, and repent, and do the fyrſt worckes. Or elles J wyll come vnto the ſhortly, and wyll remoue thy cãdelſticke out of his place except thou repent. But this thou haſt, becauſe thou hateſt the dedes of the ✱ Nicolaitans, which dedes J alſo hate. Let hym that hath eares, heare what the ſpirite ſayth vnto the congregacions. To hym that ouercõmeth, wyll J gyue to eate of the tree of lyfe, whyche is in the myddes of the Paradyſe of God.

C And vnto the Angel of the congregacyon of Smyrna wryte. These thynges ſayth he that is fyrſt, and the laſte, whyche was deed and is a lyue. I knowe thy workes ⁊ tribulacyon and pouerte, but thou art ryche: And I knowe the blaſphemy of them, whyche call them ſelues Iewes and are not: but are the congregacyon of Sathan. Feare none of thoſe thynges, which thou ſhalt ſuffre. Beholde, the deuyl ſhal caſt ſome of you into preſon, to tempte you and ye ſhall haue trybulacyon ten dayes. Be faythfull vnto the deeth, and I wyll geue the a crowne of lyfe. Let hym that hathe eares, heare, what the ſpryte ſayth to the congregacyons: He that ouercommeth, ſhall not be hurte of the ſeconde deeth.

D And to the meſſenger of the congregacion in Pergamos wryte: Thys ſayth he, whiche hath the ſharpe ſwearde wyth two edges: I knowe thy workes, ⁊ where thou dwelleſt, euen where Sathans ſeat is, and thou kepeſt my name, ⁊ haſt not denyed my faythe. And in my dayes Antipas was a faythfull wytnes of myne, which was ſlayne amonge you, where Sathan dwelleth. But I haue a fewe thynges agaynſte the: becauſe thou haſt there, them that maintaine the doctrine Nu. xxii. c of Balam * whiche taught in Balake, to put occaſyon of ſynne before the chyldren of Iſraell, that they ſhulde eate of meate dedicate vnto ydoles, and commyt fornicacyon. Euen ſo haſt thou them that maintayne the doctryne of the Nycolaytans, which thyng I hate. But be conuerted, or els I wyll come vnto the ſhortly, and wyll fyght agaynſte E the with the ſwearde of my mouth. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what the ſpryte ſaith vnto the cōgregacyons. To hym that ouercōmeth, wyll I geue to eate Manna that is hyd, and wyll geue hym a whyte ſtone, and in the ſtone a newe name wrytten, which no man knoweth, ſauynge he that receaueth it.

And vnto the meſſenger of the congregacion of Thiatira wryte. This ſayth the ſonne of god, which hath eyes lyke vnto a flamme of fyre, and hys fete are lyke braſſe: I knowe thy workes and thy loue, ſeruyce, ⁊ fayth, and thy pacyēce, and thy dedes, which F are mo at the laſt then at the fyrſt. And I gaue her ſpace to repente of her fornycacyon, and ſhe repented not. Beholde, I wyll caſt her into a bed: and them that commyt fornycacyon with her, into great aduerſyte, excepte they turne from theyr deades. And I wyl kyl her chyldren with deeth. And all the congrega- Jere. 17. b cyōs ſhal knowe, that * I am he which ſearcheth the reynes ⁊ hertes. And I wyll geue vnto euery one of you acordynge vnto hys workes. ¶ He inſtructeth and enfourmeth the Angels of the congregacyons, declarynge alſo the rewarde of hym that ouercommeth.

CAPI. III.

A AND wryte vnto the meſſenger of the congregacyon that is at Sardis: this ſayth he that hath the ſeuen ſpyrytes of god and the ſeuen ſtarres. I knowe thy workes: thou haſt a name that thou lyueſt, and thou art deed. Be awake, and ſtrength the thynges which remayne, that are redy to dye. For I haue not foūde thy workes perfayte a before * (my) God. Remember therfore, howe thou haſt receaued and hearde, and 1. The. v. a 2. Pet. iii. b holde faſte, and repent. * If thou ſhall not watche, I wyll come on the as a thefe, and thou ſhalte not knowe what houre I wyll come vpon the. Thou haſt a fewe names in Sardys, which haue not defyled theyr garmentes, and they ſhall walcke with me in whyte, for they are worthy. He that ouercōmeth, ſhalbe thus clothed in whyte araye, ⁊ I wyl not put out his name out of the boke of lyfe, and I wyll confeſſe hys name before my father, and before hys angels. Let hym that hath eares, heare, what the ſpirite ſaith vnto the congregacyons.

And wryte vnto the angell of the congregacyon of Phyladelphia: this ſayth he that is holy and true, which hath the keys of Dauid * whyche openeth and no man ſhutteth, Esa. xxii. f Job. xii. c and ſhutteth, and no man openeth, I know thy workes. Beholde, I haue ſet before the an open dore, and no man can ſhut it, for thou haſt a lytell ſtrength, and haſt kept my ſayinges: and haſt not denyed my name. Beholde, I make them of the cõgregacyon of Sathan, whiche call them ſelues Iewes, and are not, but do lye: Beholde, I wyll make them that they ſhall come, and worſhyppe before thy fete: and ſhall knowe, that I haue loued the.

Becauſe thou haſt kept the wordes of my pacience, therfore I wyll kepe the from the houre of temptacyon, which wyll come vpõ all the worlde, to tempte them that dwell vpon the earth. Beholde, I come ſhortely. C Holde that whiche thou haſte, that no man take awaye thy crowne. Hym that ouercommeth, wyll I make a pyller in the temple of my God, and he ſhall go nomore out. And I wyll wryte vpon hym, the name of my God and the name of the cytye of my God, newe Ieruſalem: whiche commeth downe out of heauen frõ my God, and I wyl wryte vpon hym my newe name. Let hym that hathe eares, heare, what the ſpirite ſayeth vnto the congregacyons.

And vnto the meſſenger of the congregacyon whiche is in Laodicia, wryte: This ſayth (Amen) the faythful and true wytnes, the begynnynge of the creatures of God. I knowe thy workes, that thou arte neyther colde nor hotte: I wolde thou were colde or D hotte. So then becauſe thou art betwene both, and nether colde nor hote, I wyl ſpewe the out of my mouth, becauſe thou ſayeſt: I am ryche and increaſyd with goodes, and haue nede of nothynge, and knoweſt not, howe yͧ art wretched and miſerable, ⁊ poore, and blynde, and naked. I councel the to bye of me, golde tryed in the fyre, that yͧ mayeſt be ryche: ⁊ whyte rayment, that thou mayſt ii.Cor.v.a be + clothed, that thy filthy nakednes do not appere: and anoynte thyne eyes wͭ eye ſalue Prouer.iii.b. Hebr.xii.b. that thou mayeſt ſe.

* As many as I loue, I rebuke, ⁊ chaſtẽ. Be feruent therfore, and repente. Beholde, I ſtande at the dore, and knocke. If any mã heare my voyce, and open the dore, I wyll come into hym, and wyll ſuppe with hym, and he with me. To hym that ouercõmeth wyll I graunte to ſyt with me in my ſeate, euen as I ouercam, and haue ſytten with my father in his ſeate. Lette hym that hathe eares heare, what the ſpirit ſayth vnto the congregacyons.

He ſeeth the heauen open, and the ſeate and one ſyttynge vpon it, and .xxiiii. ſeates about it with .xxiiii. elders ſyttyng vpon thẽ, and foure beaſtes prayſyng God daye and nyghte.

A After this I loked, ⁊ beholde a dore was open in heauen, ⁊ the fyrſt voyce whiche I hearde, was as it were of a trompet talkynge wͭ me, whiche ſayde: come vp hyther, ⁊ I wyll ſhewe the thynges: whiche muſte be fulfylled here after. And immediately I was in the ſpirit: ⁊ behold, a ſeate was ſet in heauen, and one ſate on the ſeate. And B he that ſat, was to loke vpon, lyke vnto a Iaſper ſtone and a ſardine ſtone: And there was a rayne bowe about the ſeate, in ſyght lyke to an Emeralde. And aboute the ſeate were .xxiiii. ſeates. And vpõ the ſeates .xxiiii. elders ſyttyng, clothed in whyte rayment, ⁊ had on theyr heades crownes of Golde.

And out of the ſeate proceded lyghtnynges, and thondringes, and voyces, and ther were ſeuen lampes of fyre, burnynge before the ſeate, which are the ſeuẽ ſpirites of God. And before yͤ ſeate ther was a ſee of glaſſe, lyke vnto criſtall, and in the myddes of the ſeate, and rounde about the ſeate were foure beaſtes, ful of eyes before and behynde. And C the fyrſt beaſt was lyke a lyon, ⁊ the ſeconde beaſt lyke a calfe: and the thyrde beaſt had a face as a man, ⁊ the fourth beaſt was lyke a flyinge Egle. And the foure beaſtes had eche one of thẽ .vi. wynges about hym, and they were full of eyes within. And they had no reſt daye nether nyght ſayinge. * Holy, holy, holy, Lorde God almyghtye, whiche Esaye.vi.b was and is, and is to come.

And when thoſe beaſtes gaue glory and D honour ⁊ thankes to hym yͭ ſat on the ſeate, (which lyueth for euer ⁊ euer) the .xxiiii. elders fell downe before hĩ yͭ ſat on the trone, and worſhypped hym that lyueth for euer and euer ✠ and caſt theyr crownes before yͤ trone ſayinge: thou arte worthy O Lorde ✠(our God) to receaue glory ⁊ honoure, and ✠ power, for yͧ haſte created all thynges, ⁊ for thy wylles ſake they are, and were created.

He ſeeth the lambe openynge the boke, and therfore the foure beaſtes, the .xxiiii. elders, ⁊ the angels prayſe the lambe, and do hym worſhyppe.

CAPI. V.

AND I ſawe the ryght hãde of hym, yͭ ſat in the trone, a boke wrytten with in A and on the backſyde, ſealed wͭ ſeuen ſeales. And I ſawe a ſtronge angell, whiche preached wͭ a lowde voyce: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to loſe the ſeales therof. And no man in heauen nor in earth neyther vnder the earth, was able to open the boke, neyther to loke theron. And I wepte much becauſe no man was founde worthy to opẽ and to reade the boke, nether to loke theron.

B And one of the elders ſayde vnto me: wepe not: Beholde a lyon of the trybe of Juda, the rote of Dauid, hathe obtayned to open the boke, ⁊ to loſe the ſeuen ſeales therof. And I behelde, and lo, in the myddes of the ſeate, and of the foure beaſtes, and in the myddes of the elders, ſtode a lābe as though he had bene kylled hauynge ſeuen hornes and ſeuen eyes, which are the ſeuē ſpirites of God ſent into all the worlde. And he came, and toke the boke out of the ryght hande of hym that ſate vpon the ſeate.

C And whē he had takē the boke, the foure beaſtes ⁊ .xxiiij. elders fell downe before the lābe, hauing (euery one of thē) harpes ⁊ golden vialles full of odours, whiche are the prayers of ſayntes, and they ſonge a newe ſonge ſaying: yͧ art worthy to take the boke and to open the ſeales therof: for thou waſte kylled, ⁊ haſt redemed vs by thy bloude out of al kynredes, ⁊ tōges, ⁊ people, ⁊ nacions, and haſt made vs vnto our God, kynges, ⁊ preſtes, and we ſhall raygne on the earth.

D And I behelde, and I herde the voyce of many angels about the trone, ⁊ aboute the beaſtes ⁊ the elders, and I hearde thouſand thouſandes, ſaying wyth a lowde voyce: Worthy is the lambe that was kylled to receaue power, ⁊ ryches, and wyſdome, ⁊ ſtrength, and honour, ⁊ glory, and bleſſynge. And all the creatures whiche are in heauen, ⁊ on the earth, and vnder the earth, ⁊ in the ſee, and all yͭ are in them, herde I ſayinge, bleſſyng, honour: glory, and power be vnto hym that ſytteth vpon the ſeate, vnto the lambe for euermore And the foure beſtes ſayde: Amē. And the .xxiiij. elders fell vpō theyr faces, ⁊ worſhypped hym that lyueth for euermore.

CAPI. VI.

A AND I ſawe, when the lambe opened one of the ſeales, and I herde one of the foure beſtes ſaye, as it were the noyſe of thonder: come and ſe: ⁊ I ſawe. And beholde there was a whyte horſſe and he that ſat on him, had a bowe and a crowne was geuen vnto hym, ⁊ he went forth cōquerynge ⁊ for to ouercome. And when he had opened the ſeconde ſeale, I herde the ſecōde beſte, ſaye: come ⁊ ſe. And there wēt out another horſſe that was red, ⁊ power was geuē to him that ſat theron, to take peace frō the earth, and that they ſhulde kyll one another. * And there was geuen vnto him a greate ſwearde.

B And when he had opened the thyrde ſeale I herde the thyrde beſte ſaye, come ⁊ ſe. And I behelde, ⁊ lo, a blacke horſ: and he yͭ ſate on him, had a payre of balances in his hāde. And I harde a voyce in yͤ myddes of yͤ foure beſtes, ſaye: a meaſure of whete for a peny, and thre meaſures of barly for a peny, and oyle and wyne ſe yͭ hurt not. And when he had opened yͤ fourth ſeale, I herde the voyce of the fourth beſte ſaye, come ⁊ ſe: and I loked. And behold a pale horſſe: and his name that ſate on hym was deeth, ⁊ hell folowed after hym, and power was geuen vnto thē ouer the fourth part of the earth, to kyll wyth ſwearde and with honger, and with deeth that commeth of vermen of the earth.

C And whē he had opened the fyft ſeale, I ſawe vnder the aultre * the ſoules of thē that were kylled for the worde of God, and for the teſtimony whiche they had, ⁊ they cryed with a lowde voyce, ſayinge: Howe longe taryeſt yͧ Lorde, holy and true, to iudge and to auenge our bloud on thē that dwell on yͤ earth? And lōge whyte garmētes were geuē vnto euery one of them. And it was ſayde vnto thē, that they ſhulde reſt yet for a lytle ſeaſon vntyll the nombre of theyr felowes, and brethren, and of them that ſhulde be kylled as they were, were fulfylled.

D And I behelde, when he had opened the ſyxte ſeale: and lo, there was a greate earthquake, ⁊ the ſunne was as blacke as ſacke clouth made of heere. And the mone wared al, euen as bloud, and the ſtarres of heauen fel vnto the erth, euē as a fygge tree caſteth from her her fygges, when ſhe is ſhaken of a myghtye wynde. And heauen vanyſhed awaye, as a ſcroll when it is rolled together. And all mountaynes and yles, were moued out of theyr places. And the kynges of the earth, and the great men, and the rych men and the chefe captaynes, ⁊ the myghtye men, and euery bondman, and euerye free man, hyd them ſelues in dennes, and in rockes of the hylles: * and ſayde to the hylles and rockes: fall on vs, and hyde vs from the preſence of him that ſytteth on the ſeate, and frō the wrath of the lambe: for the great daye of his wrath is come, and who is able to endure?

¶ He ſeeth the ſeruauntes of God ſealed in theyr forheades out of all nacyons and people, whiche though they ſuffre trouble, yet the lambe fedeth them, ledeth them to the fountaynes of lyuynge water, and God ſhall wype awaye all teares from theyr eyes.

A AND after that, I ſawe .iiij. Angels ſtāde on the .iiij. corners of the erth holdyng yͤ foure wyndes of yͤ erth, yͭ the wyndes ſhuld not blowe on the erth: nether on yͤ ſee, on any tree. ✠ And I ſawe another angell aſcende frō the riſynge of the ſunne, whiche had the ſeale of the lyuynge God, ⁊ he cryed with a loude voyce to the foure Angels (to whom power was geuen to hurt ỹ erth and the ſee) ſayng: hurt not the earth nether the ſee, nether the trees, tyll we haue ſealed the ſeruauntes of oure God in theyr forheades.

B And I hearde the nombre of them which were ſealed, ⁊ ther were ſealed an. C. ⁊. xliiij M. of al the trybes of the chyldrē of Iſrael. Of ỹ trybe of Iuda were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Rubyn were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Gad were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Aſer were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Neptalim were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Manaſſes were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Symeō were ſealed. xij. M. Of the tribe of Leuy were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Iſacar were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Zabulō were ſealed. xij. M. Of the trybe of Ioſeph were ſealed. xij. M. Of C the trybe of Beniamin were ſealed. xij. M.

After this I behelde, and lo, a great multitude (whiche no man coulde nombre) of all naciōs ⁊ people, ⁊ tōges, ſtode before ỹ ſeate, and before the lābe, clothed wͭ longe whyte garmentes, ⁊ palmes in theyr handes, and cryed wͭ a lowde voyce, ſaying: ſaluacyō be aſcrybed to him ỹ ſytteth vpon the ſeate of oure God, ⁊ vnto the lābe. And all ỹ angels ſtode in the cōpaſe of the ſeate, ⁊ of ỹ elders and of the foure beaſtes, and fell before the ſeate on theyr faces, and worſhypped God ſayinge. Amē: Bleſſinge ⁊ glory ⁊ wyſdome and thākes, ⁊ honour, ⁊ power, ⁊ myght, be D vnto oure God for euermore. Amen. ⁋

And one of the elders anſwered, ſaying vnto me: what are theſe whiche are arayed in longe whyte garmentes, ⁊ whence came they? And I ſayde vnto him: Lord ỹ woteſt. And he ſayde to me: theſe are they, whiche came out of great tribulacyon, ⁊ made theyr garmentes large, and made them whyte by the bloude of the lambe: therfore are they in the preſence of the ſeate of God ⁊ ſerue him daye ⁊ nyght in his tēple, ⁊ he ỹ ſytteth in ỹ ſeate wyl dwell amonge them. They ſhall honger no more neyther thyrſt, neyther ſhal the ſunne light on thē, nether any heate. For the lambe which is the myddeſt of the ſeate, ſhall fede them, and ſhall leade them vnto fountaynes of lyuinge water, and God ſhall wype awaye all teares from theyr eyes.

CAPI. VIII.

¶ The ſeuenth ſeale is opened, there is ſylence in heauen, the foure angels blowe theyr trompettes, and greate plages folowe vpon the earth.

A AND when he had opened the ſeuenth ſeale, there was ſilēce in heauen about the ſpace of halfe an houre. And I ſawe angelles ſtandynge before God, ⁊ to thē were geuē ſeuen trompettes. And another angell came and ſtode before the aulter, hauynge a goldē ſenſer, ⁊ much of odoures was geuen vnto him, ỹ he ſhulde offre of the prayers of all ſainctes vpon ỹ goldē aulter, which was B before ỹ ſeate. And the ſmoke of the odoures which cam of the prayers of all ſayncte, aſcended vp before God out of the Angelles hande. And the Angell toke the ſenſer, and fylled it wͭ fyre of the aulter, ⁊ caſt it into the earth, ⁊ voyces were made, ⁊ thondrynges and lyghtnynges, and earthquake.

And the ſeuen Angels which had the ſeuen trōpettes, prepared thē ſelues to blow. The fyrſt Angell blewe, ⁊ there was made hayle and fyre, whiche were myngled with bloude, and they were caſte into the earth: and the thyrde part *(of the earth was ſet on fyre, and the thyrde part) C of trees was burnt, and all grene graſſe was brent. And the ſeconde angell blewe: and as it were a greate mountayne burnynge wͭ fyre was caſt into the ſee, and the thyrde part of the ſee tourned to bloude, ⁊ the thyrde part of the creatures whiche had lyfe, dyed, and the thyrde parte of ſhyppes were deſtroyed.

And the thyrde angel blewe, and there fell a greate ſtarre from heauen, burnyng as it were a lampe, ⁊ it fell into the thyrde parte of the ryuers, ⁊ into fountaynes of waters, ⁊ the name of ỹ ſtarre is called wormwod. D And the thyrde parte was turned to wormwod. And many men dyed of the waters becauſe they were made bytter. And ỹ fourth Angell blewe, ⁊ the thyrde part of the ſunne was ſmytten, ⁊ the thyrde part of the mone, and the thyrde parte of ſtarres: ſo that the thyrde parte of them was darckened. And the daye was ſmytten, that the thyrde parte of it ſhulde not ſhyne, ⁊ lykewyſe the nyght. And I behelde and herde an Angell flyinge thorowe the myddeſt of the heauen, ſayinge with a lowde voyce: woo, woo, woo, to the inhabyters of the earth, becauſe of the voyces to come of the trōpe of the thre Angels, whiche were yet to blowe.

¶ The fyfte and ſyxt Angell blowe theyr trompettes: the ſtarre falleth frō heauen: the locuſtes come out of the ſmoke. The fyrſte wo is paſte: the foure angels that were bounde are loſed, and the thyrde parte of men is kylled.

CAPI. IX.

A AND the fyft angel blewe, ⁊ I ſawe a ſtarre fal frō heauē vnto ỹ erth. And to hym was geuen the kaye of the bottomleſſe pytt. And he opened the bottomleſſe pytt, and the ſmoke of the pytt aroſe as the ſmoke of a greate fornace. And the ſunne, and the ayre were darckned by the reaſon of the ſmoke of the pytt. And there came out of the ſmoke locuſtes vpon the erth, and vnto thē was geuen power, as the ſcorpions of the erth haue power. And it was commaunded them, that they ſhulde not hurt the graſſe of the erth: nether any grene thing: nether any tree: but only thoſe men which haue not the ſeale in theyr forheades. And to them was commaunded, that they ſhulde not kyll thē, but that they ſhulde be vexed .v. monethes, and theyr payne was as the payne ŷ cometh of a ſcorpion, when he hathe ſtonge a man.

Eſaye. ii. d. Oſee. x. b Luk. xxiii. d * And in thoſe dayes ſhall men ſeke deeth, and ſhal not fynde it, and ſhal deſyre to dye, and deeth ſhall flye from them.

B And the ſymilitude of the locuſtes was lyke vnto horſſes prepared vnto battayll, & on theyr heades were as it were crownes lyke vnto golde, and their faces were as yt had bene ŷ faces of men. And they had heere as the heere of wemen. And theyr teethe were as the teeth of lyōs. And they had habbergyons, as it were habbergyons of yron. And the ſounde of their winges, was as the ſounde of charettes, whē many horſſes runne together to battayle. And they had tayles lyke vnto ſcorpions, and ther were ſtynges in their tayles. And their power was to hurt mē .v. monethes. And they had a kyng ouer thē, which is the angell of the bottomleſſe pytt, whoſe name in the Hebrew tong, is Abadon: but in the Greke tonge, Apolliō that is to ſaye: a deſtroyer. One wo is paſt, and behold, two wooes come yet after thys.

C And the ſyxt Angell blewe, and I herde a voyce from the .iiij. corners of the golden aultre, whiche is before God, ſayinge to the ſyxt Angell, whiche had the trōpe: Loſe the foure Angelles, which are boūde in ŷ grete ryuer Euphrates. And the foure Angelles were looſed, whiche were prepared for an houre, for a daye, for a moneth, & for a yere, for to ſlee the .iij. part of men. And the nombre of horſmen of warre were .xx. tymes .x. M. And I herde the nombre of them: & thus I ſawe the horſes in a viſion, and them that ſate on them, hauynge fyry habergions of a Iacincte couloure, and brymſtone, and the heades of the horſes were as the heades of lyons. And out of theyr mouthes went forth D fyre and ſmoke and brymſtone. And of theſe thre was the thyrd part of mē kylled: that is to ſaye, of fyre, ſmoke, and brimſtone, which proceded out of the mouthes of them. For their power was in their mouthes & in their tayles, for theyr tayles were lyke vnto ſerpentes, and had heades, and with them they dyd hurt: And the remnaūt of the mē whiche were not kylled by theſe plages, repēted not of the dedes of their hādes that they ſhulde not worſhippe deuyls, and ymages of golde and ſyluer, and braſſe, & ſtone, and of wood, which nether can ſe, nether heare, nether go. Alſo they repēted not of theyr murther and of theyr ſorcery, nether of theyr fornicacyon, nether of theyr thefte.

The Angell hath the boke open: he ſwereth there ſhalbe no more tyme: he geueth the boke vnto Iohn, which eateth it vp.

CAPI. X.

A AND I ſawe another myghtye angel come downe frō heauen clothed with a cloude, and the rayne bowe vpon his heed. And hys face as it were the ſunne, and hys fete as it were pyllars of fyre, and he had in his hande a lytel boke open, and he put his ryght fote vpon the ſee, and his lyfte fote on the erth. And cryed with a lowde voyce, as when a lyon roreth. And when he had cryed, ſeuen thonders ſpake theyr voyces. And when the .vij. thondres had ſpoken theyr voyces, I was about to wryte. And I herde a voyce frō heauen, ſayinge vnto me: ſeale vp thoſe thynges whiche the .vij. thondres ſpake, and wryte them not.

B And the Angell which I ſawe ſtāde vpō the ſee, & vpon the earth, lyfte vp his hande to heauen, and ſware by him that lyueth for euer more, which created heauē, & the thynges that therin are, and the lande and the thynges that therin are, and the ſee, and the thynges which therin are: that there ſhulde be no lenger tyme: C but in the dayes of the voyce of the ſeuenth Angell, when he ſhall begynne to blowe: euen the myſtery of God ſhalbe fynyſhed, as he preached by hys ſeruauntes the prophetes.

And the voyce which I herde frō heauen, ſpake vnto me agayne, & ſayde * go & take Eze. ii. c the lytle boke which is open in the hande of the angel which ſtādeth vpon the ſee, & vpō the erth. And I went vnto ŷ angell, & ſayde to hym: geue me the lytel boke, and he ſayde vnto me: take it, & eate it vp, & it ſhall make thy belly bytter, but it ſhalbe in thy mouth as ſwete as hony. * Eze. iii. a. And I toke ŷ lytle boke D out of his hande, and eate it vp, and it was in my mouth as ſwete as hony, and as ſone as I had eaten it, my belly was bytter. And he ſayde vnto me: ŷ muſte propheſy agayne among the people, and nacions, and tõges, and to many kynges.

A And then was gyuen me a rede, lyke vnto a rodde, and it was ſayde vnto me. Ryſe ⁊ meate the tẽple of god, ⁊ the aulter ⁊ them that woꝛſhyp therin, ⁊ the queer whyche is within the temple, caſt out ⁊ meate it not foꝛ it is gyuen vnto the Gentyles, ⁊ the holy cytie ſhall they treade vnder fote, xlij. monethes. And I wyl gyue power vnto my two wytneſſes, ⁊ they ſhall pꝛopheſy a thouſande, two hundꝛeth and .lx. dayes, clothed in ſacke clothe. Theſe are two olyue trees, ⁊ two candelſtyckes, ſtandyng befoꝛe the god of the earth.

B And yf any man wyl hurt them, fyꝛe ſhall pꝛocede out of their mouthes, and conſume their enemyes. And yf any man wyll hurte them, this wyſe muſt he be kylled. Theſe haue power to ſhut heauen, that it raine not in the dayes of their pꝛopheſying: and haue power ouer waters to turne them to bloude, ⁊ to ſmyte the earth with al maner plages, as often as they wyll.

C And when they haue fynyſhed their teſtimony, the beaſt that came out of the bottomleſſe pyt, ſhall make warre agaynſte them, ⁊ ſhall ouercome thẽ, and kyl them. And their bodyes ſhall lye in the ſtretes of the greate cytie, whiche ſpiritually is called Zodom ⁊ Egypte, where our Loꝛde was crucyfied. And they of the people and kynredes, ⁊ tonges, and they of the naciõs, ſhall ſe their bodies .iij. dayes and an halfe, ⁊ ſhal not ſuffre their bodies to be put in graues. And they that dwel vpon the earth, ſhall reioyce ouer them, ⁊ be glad, and ſhal ſende gyftes one to another, foꝛ theſe two pꝛophetes vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

D And after .iij. dayes ⁊ an halfe, the ſpirit of lyfe from God, entred into thẽ. And they ſtode vp vpon their fete, ⁊ great feare came vpon them which ſaw them. And they herde a great voyce from heauen, ſaying vnto thẽ Come vp hyther. And they aſcended vp into heauen in a cloude, and their enemyes ſawe them. And the ſame hour was there a great earthquake, ⁊ the tenth part of the cytie fell, and in the earthquake were ſlaine names of men ſeuen .M. and the remnaunt were feared, and gaue gloꝛy to God of heauen. The ſeconde wo is paſt, ⁊ beholde, the thyꝛde wo wyll come anone.

And the ſeuenth angel blewe, ⁊ there were made greate voyces in heauen, ſayinge: the kyngdomes of this woꝛlde are our Loꝛdes, ⁊ his Chꝛiſtes, ⁊ he ſhal raigne foꝛ euermoꝛe And the .xxiiij. elders, which ſyt befoꝛe God on their ſeates, fell vpon their faces, ⁊ woꝛſhypped God, ſayinge: we gyue the thankes O Loꝛde God almightye: which art ⁊ waſt, and arte to come, foꝛ thou haſt receyued thy great myght, and haſt raygned. And the nacions were angrye, and thy wꝛath is come, and the tyme of the dead that they ſhulde be iudged and that thou ſhuldeſt gyue reward vnto thy ſeruauntes the Pꝛophetes and Saynctes, and to them that feare thy name ſmall and great and ſhuldeſt deſtroy them, whiche deſtroy the earth. And the temple of God was opened in heauen, and there was ſene in his temple, the arcke of his teſtamẽt, and ther folowed lyghtnynges, and voices, and thondꝛynges and earthquake, and muche hayle.

CAPI. XII.

A And there appeared a great wonder in heuen: A woman clothed with the ſõne and the mone vnder her fete, and vpon her heade a crowne of .xij. ſtarres. And ſhe was with chylde, ⁊ cryed trauaylynge in byꝛth, ⁊ payned redy to be delyuered. And there appered another wonder in heauen, foꝛ beholde, a great red dꝛagon hauyng .vij. heades, ⁊ ten hoꝛnes ⁊ crownes vpon his heades: and his tayle dꝛue the thyꝛde part of the ſtarres and caſt them to the earth.

B And the dꝛagon ſtode befoꝛe the woman whiche was redy to be delyuered: foꝛ to deuoure her chylde as ſone as it were boꝛne. And ſhe bꝛought foꝛth a man chylde, whych ſhulde rule all nacions with a rod of yꝛon. And her ſonne was taken vp vnto god, and to his ſeate. And the woman fled into wylderneſ, where ſhe had a place, pꝛepared of God, that they ſhulde fede her there a .M. ij. hundꝛeth and .lx. dayes.

C And there was a great battayle in heauẽ, Michael ⁊ his Angels fought with the dꝛagon, and the dꝛagõ fought and his angels, and pꝛeuayled not, neyther was there place founde any moꝛe in heauen. And the great dꝛagon, that old ſerpẽt, called the deuyl and Sathanas, was caſt out. Which deceyueth al the woꝛlde. And he was caſt into the earth and his angels were caſt out alſo.

And I hearde a loude voyce ſayinge in heauen is now made ſaluacion and ſtrength ⁊ the kyngdome of our God, and the power of his Chriſt. For he is caſt downe which accuſed them before God day and nyght. And they ouercame him by the bloude of the lābe and by the worde of their teſtimonye, & they D loued not their lyues vnto the death. Therfore reioyce heuens, and ye that dwel in thē. Wo to the inhabiters of the erth, and of the ſee: for the deuyll is come downe vnto you, which hath gret wrath, becauſe he knoweth that he hath but a ſhort tyme.

And when the dragon ſawe, that he was caſt vnto the earth, he perſecuted the womā whiche brought forth the mā chylde. And to the woman were gyuen two wynges of a great Egle, that ſhe myght flye into the wyldernes into her place, where ſhe is noryſſhed for a tyme, tymes, and halfe a time, from the preſence of the ſerpent. And the dragon caſt out of his mouth water after the woman as it had bene a ryuer, becauſe ſhe ſhulde haue bene caught of the flode. And the erth holpe the woman, and the erth opened her mouth and ſwalowed vp the ryuer, whych the dragon caſt out of his mouth. And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went, and made warre wyth the remnaunt of hyr ſede, which kepe the commaundementes of God, & haue the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt. And I ſtode on the ſee ſande.

¶ A beaſt ryſeth out of the ſee with ſeuen heades and ten hornes. Another beaſte commeth out of the earth with two hornes.

CAPI. XIII.

A AND I ſawe a beaſt ryſe out of the ſee, hauyng ſeuen heades, and ten hornes, and vpon his hornes ten crownes, and vpō hys heade, the name of blaſphemy. And the beaſt whiche I ſawe, was lyke a catte of the mountayne, and his fete were as the fete of a beare, and hys mouth as the mouth of a lyon. And the dragon gaue hym hys power & hys ſeate, and great auctorytie: & I ſaw one of his heades as it were wounded to death, and his deadly wounde was healed. And al the worlde wōdred at the beaſt, and they worſhypped the dragon, whiche gaue power vnto the beaſt, & they worſhyped the beaſt ſayinge: who is like vnto the beaſt? who is able to warre with him.

B And there was gyuē vnto him a mouth, that ſpake great thynges and blaſphemies, and power was giuen vnto hym, to do. xlii. monethes. And he opened his mouth vnto blaſphemy agaynſt God, to blaſpheme hys name and his tabernacle, and thē that dwel in heauen. And it was gyuen vnto hym to make warre with the Sayntes, and to ouercome them. And power was giuen him ouer all kynred, and tonge, and nacion, & al that C dwel vpon the erth worſhypt him: whoſe names are not wrytten in the boke of lyfe of the lambe, whiche was kylled from the begynning of the worlde. If any man haue an eare let him heare. He that ledeth into captiuite, ſhal go into captiuite: & he that killeth with a ſwearde, muſt be kylled with a ſwearde. Heare is the pacyence, and the fayth of the Sayncte s.

Mat. 26.f. Gene.9.a

And I behelde another beſt cōmyng vp out of the earth, and he had two hornes like a lambe, and he ſpake as dyd the Dragon. And he dyd all that the fyrſt beaſt coulde do in hys preſence, and he cauſed the earth, and them whiche dwelt therin, to worſhyppe the fyrſt beaſt, whoſe deadly wounde was healed. And he dyd great wonders, ſo that he made fyre come downe from heuen into the earth in the ſyght of men. And deceyued thē that dwel on the erth, by the meanes of thoſe ſygnes whiche he had power to do in the ſyght of the beaſt, ſaying to them that dwelt on the erth: that they ſhuld make an ymage vnto the beaſt, whiche had the wounde of a ſwearde, and dyd lyue.

D And he had power to gyue a ſpirit vnto the ymage of the beaſt, & that the ymage of the beaſt ſhulde ſpeake, and ſhuld cauſe that as many as wolde not worſhyp the ymage of the beaſt, ſhuld be killed. And he made al, both ſmall and great, rych and pore, fre and bonde, to receyue a marke in their ryght hādes or in their forheades. And that no man myght bye or ſel, ſaue he that had the marke or the name of the beaſt, eyther the nōbre of his name. Here is wyſdome. Let hym that hath wyt, count the nōbre of the beaſt. For it is the nōbre of a man, and his nombre is ſixe hondreth, threſcore and ſyxe.

¶ The lambe ſtondeth vpon the mount Syon, and the vndefyled congregacyon with him. The angel exhorteth to the feare of God and telleth of the fall of Babylon.

CAPI. XIIII.

A AND I loked, and lo, a lambe ſtode on the mount Syon, and with hym an. C and. xliiii. thouſand hauyng his (name and his) fathers name wrytten in their forhedes. And I herd a voice from heuen, as the ſoūd of many waters, and as the voice of a great thondre. And I herde the voyce of harpers harpyng wyth their harpes. And they ſōge as it were a new ſōge before the ſeate, & before þ foure beeſtes, & the elders, & no man coulde lerne that ſōge, but the. C. & xliiii. M. which were redemed frō the earth. Theſe are they, which whiche were not defyled wᵗ wemen, for they are virgyns. These folowe the lambe whyther ſoeuer he goeth. These were redemed from men beynge the fyrſt frutes vnto God ⁊ to the lābe, ⁊ in their mouthes was founde no gile. For they are without ſpot before the trone of God.

And I ſaw, another angel flye in the myddes of heuē hauyng the euerlaſtyng goſpel, to preache vnto them that ſyt ⁊ dwel on the erth, and to all nacyons, kynredes, ⁊ tōges ⁊ people, ſaying with a loude voyce: * Fere God, ⁊ gyue honour to him, for the houre of his iudgement is come: ⁊ worſhyp him, that made heauen and erth, ⁊ the ſee, ⁊ fountaynes of water. And there folowed another angel, ſaying: * Babylon is fallē, is fallē, that great cytie, for ſhe made al nacions drynke of the wyne of her fornicacion.

Hiere.51.b

And the thyrd angel folowed thē ſaying C with a loude voyce: If any mā worſhyppe the beaſt ⁊ his ymage, ⁊ receyue his marcke in his forhead, or in his hāde, the ſame ſhall drynke the wyne of the wrath of god, which is powred in the cup of his wrath. And he ſhalbe punyſhed in fyre ⁊ brymſtone, before the holy angels, and before the lambe.

And the ſmoke of their torment aſcēdeth vp euermore. And they haue no reſt day nor nyght, whiche worſhyp the beaſt ⁊ his ymage ⁊ whoſoeuer receyueth the prynt of hys name. Here is the pacience of ſainctes. Here are they that kepe the commaundementes ⁊ the fayth of Ieſu.

And I herde a voyce from heuen ſaying vnto me: wryte. Bleſſed are the dead, which hereafter dye in the Lord, euen ſo ſayeth the ſpirit: that they reſt from their labours, but their workes folow them.

And I loked, and behold a white clowde, and vpon the clowde one ſyttynge lyke vnto the ſonne of man, hauyng on hys head a golden crowne, ⁊ in his hande a ſharpe ſyckle. And another angell came out of the temple, cryinge with a loude voyce to hym that ſate on the cloude, * Thruſt in thy ſykle and D repe, for ẏ tyme is come to repe, for the corne of the erth is rype. And he that ſatte on the cloude, thruſt in his ſycle on the earth, ⁊ the erth was reped.

Joel.iii.c.

And another angell came out of the temple, which is in heuen, hauyng alſo a ſharpe ſyckle. And another angell came out frō the aulter, which had power ouer fyre, and cryed wᵗ a loude crye to hym that had the ſharpe ſykle, and ſayd: thruſt in thy ſharpe ſykle, and gather the cluſters of the earth, for her grapes are rype. And the angel thruſt in his ſykle on the erth, and cut downe the grapes of the vyneyarde of the earth: ⁊ caſt thē into the great wynefat of the wrath of God, and the winefat was troden with out the cytie, ⁊ bloude came out of the fat, euen vnto the horſſe brydels, by the ſpace of a thouſande ⁊ vi. C. furlonges.

CAPI. XV.

A AND I ſaw another ſigne in heuē great ⁊ maruaylous, ſeuen angels, hauinge the ſeuen laſte plages, for in them is fulfylled the wrath of God. And I ſawe as it were a glaſſye ſee, mingled with fyre, ⁊ them that had gottē victory of the beaſt, ⁊ of hys ymage, ⁊ of his marke, and of the nombre of his name, ſtande on the glaſſye ſee, hauynge the harpes of God, and they ſonge the ſong of Moſes the ſeruaunt of god, and the ſong of the lambe, ſaying: Great and maruelous are thy workes: * Lorde God almyghtye, iuſte and true are thy wayes, thou kyng of ſainctes. Who ſhal not feare O Lorde, ⁊ glorify thy name? For thou onely arte holy, and all gentels ſhal come and worſhyppe before the, for thy iudgementes are made manyfeſt.

B And after that, I loked, ⁊ beholde, the temple of the tabernacle of teſtimony was open in heauen, and the ſeuen angels came out of the temple, which had the ſeuen plages, clothed in pure and bryght lynnē, and hauyng their breſtes gyrded wᵗ golden gyrdels. And one of the fowre beeſtes gaue vnto the ſeuē angels ſeuen goldē vyalles, full of ẏ wrath of God, which lyueth for euermore. And the temple was full of the ſmoke of the glory of God and of his power, ⁊ no man was able to entre into the temple, til the ſeuen plages of the ſeuen Angels were fulfylled.

CAPI. XVI.

A AND I herde a great voyce out of the temple ſayinge to the ſeuen Angels, go youre wayes, poure out your vyalles of wrath vpon the erth. And the fyrſte Angell went, and powred out his Vyall vpon the erth, and there fell a noyſome ⁊ a ſore botche vpon the men whiche had the marcke of the beaſt, and vpon thē which worſhypped hys ymage. And the ſeconde Angel ſhed out his vyall vpon the ſee, and it turned as it were into the bloude of a dead man: and euery lyuyng thyng dyed in the ſee. And the thyrde Angel ſhed out his viall vpon the ryuers ⁊ fountaynes of waters, and they turned to bloude. And I herde an angell ſay: Lorde, whiche arte and waſte, thou art ryghtuous and holy, becauſe thou haſt geuen ſuche iudgementes, for they ſhed out the bloud of ſaintes, and Prophetes, ⁊ therfore haſte ỷ geuē the bloude to drynke: for they are worthy. And I herde another out of the aulter ſaye: euen ſo Lorde God almyghtye, true ⁊ rightuous are thy iudgementes.

And ỷ fourth angel powred out his vial on the ſunne, ⁊ power was gyuen vnto him to vexe men with heate of fyre. And the men raged in great heat: ⁊ ſpake euil of the name of god, which hath power ouer thoſe plages and they repẽted not, to giue him glory. And the fyft angel powred out his vial vpon the ſeate of the beaſt, and his kyngdome wexed darcke, ⁊ they gnewe their tonges for ſorow and blaſphemed the God of heauen for ſorowe and paine, of their ſores, and repented not of their dedes.

C And the ſyxt Angel powred out his vial vpon the great ryuer Euphrates, and the water dryed vp, that the wayes of the kynges of the eaſt ſhulde be prepared. And I ſawe thre vncleane ſpirites lyke froggꝭ come out of the mouth of the Dragon, and out of the mouth of the beaſt, and out of the mouth of the falſe Prophete. For they are the ſpirites of deuyls, workyng myracles, to go out vnto the kynges of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battayle of the great day of God almyghty. *Beholde, I come as a thefe. Happy is he that watcheth and kepeth his garmentes, leſt he walke naked, ⁊ men ſe his filthines. And he gathered them togyther into a place called in the Hebrue tonge Armagedon.

1.Teſſa.5.a

And the ſeuenth angell powred out hys vial into ỷ ayre. And there came a great voyce out of the tẽple of heauen from the ſeate, ſaying, it is done. And there folowed voices, thondrynges, ⁊ lyghtnynges, ⁊ there was a great earthquake, ſuch as was not ſence men were vpõ the earth, ſo mighty an erthquake ⁊ ſo great. And the great cytie was deuided into thre parties, ⁊ the cities of all nacyons fel. And great Babilon came in remẽbraũce before God, to gyue vnto her the cup of the wyne of the fearcenes of his wrath. Euery yle alſo fled awaye, ⁊ the mountaynes were not founde. And there fel a great haile (as it had bene talentes) out of heauen vpon the men, and the men blaſphemed God: becauſe of the plage of the hayle, for it was great ⁊ the plage of it ſore.

CAPI. XVII.

A AND there came one of the ſeuen angels, whiche had the ſeuen vyalles: and talked with me, ſayinge vnto me: come, I wyl ſhewe the the iudgment of the great whore that ſitteth vpon many waters, with whom haue cõmitted fornicacion the kinges of the earth, ⁊ the inhabiters of the erth are dronken with the wyne of her fornicacion. And the ſpirit caryed me awaye into the wyldernes. And I ſawe a woman ſyt vpon a roſe colored beaſt, full of names of blaſphemye, which had ſeuen hedes and ten hornes. And the woman was arayed in purple ⁊ roſe colour, ⁊ decked with golde, precyous ſtone, ⁊ pearles, and had a cup of golde in her hand, ful of abhominacions ⁊ filthines of her fornicaciõ. And in her forhed was a name writ- B ten, a myſtery, great Babylon the mother of whoredome ⁊ abhominacions of the earth. And I ſawe the woman dronken with the bloude of ſaynctes, ⁊ with the bloude of the wytneſſes of Ieſu. And when I ſawe her: I wondred with great maruayle.

And the angell ſayde vnto me: wherfore marualeſt thou? I wyll ſhewe the the myſtery of the womã, ⁊ of the beaſt that beryth her, which hath ſeuẽ heades and ten hornes The beaſt that thou ſeeſt, was, and is not, ⁊ ſhall aſcende out of the bottomleſſe pyt, and ſhall go into perdicion, and they that dwell on the earth ſhall wondre (whoſe names are not wrytte in the boke of lyfe from the beginnyng of the worlde) when they beholde the beaſt that was, ⁊ is not. And here is a minde that hath wyſdome.

C The ſeuen heades are ſeuen mountaynes, on whiche the woman ſytteth, they are alſo ſeuẽ kynges. Fyue are falle, and one is, and another is not yet come. And when he cometh, he muſt cõtinue a ſhort ſpace. And the beaſt that was, ⁊ is not, is eue the eight, and is one of the ſeuen, and ſhall go into deſtruction. And the ten hornes which ỷ ſaweſt, are ten kynges which haue receyued no kyngdome as yet, but ſhal receyue power as kinges at one houre with the beaſt. Theſe haue one mynde, and ſhall gyue their power and ſtregth vnto ỷ beaſt. Theſe ſhal fyght with the lambe, and the lambe ſhal ouercome the *For he is Lorde of Lordes, and kynge of kynges, and they that are on hys ſyde, are called, and choſen, and faythfull.

ple, and folke, and nacions, and tõges. And the ten hornes, which thou ſaweſt vpon the beaſt, are they that ſhall hate the whore, and ſhal make her deſolate and naked, and ſhal eate her fleſhe, ⁊ burne her wͭ fyre. For God hath put in their hertes to fulfyll his wyll, ⁊ and to do wͭ one cõſent, for to geue her kingdome vnto the beaſt, vntil the wordes of god be fulfylled. And the woman which ẏ ſaweſt is that great cyte, which rayneth ouer the kynges of the earthe.

CAPI. XVIII.

A AND after that, I ſawe another angell come from heauen, hauyng great power, and the earthe was lyghtned with hys brightnes. And he cryed myghtely wyth a ſtronge voyce, ſaying. Esaye.21.c Iere.51.a.b * Great Babylon is fallen, is fallē, and is become the inhabytacion of deuyls ⁊ the hold of al fowle ſpirites, ⁊ a cage of all vncleane ⁊ hatefull byrdes, for al nacions haue dronken of the wyne of the wrath of her fornicacion. And the kynges of the earth haue cõmytted fornicacyon with her, and the marchauntes of the earth are wexed ryche of the aboundaunce of her pleaſures.

B And I herde another voyce from heuen, ſay, come away from her my people, that ye be not partetakers of her ſinnes, ⁊ that ye receyue not of her plages. For her ſynnes are gone vp to heuen, ⁊ God hath remẽbred her wyckednes. Rewarde her euē as ſhe rewarded you, ⁊ giue her double accordyng to her workes. And powre in double to her in the ſame cuppe whiche ſhe fylled vnto you. And as muche as ſhe glorified her ſelfe and liued wãtonly, ſo much powre ye in for her of punyſhement and ſorowe, for ſhe ſayde in her Esa.xlvii.b C ſelfe: * I ſyt beynge a quene, ⁊ am no wydowe, and ſhall ſe no ſorowe. Therfore ſhal her plages come in one day, death, ⁊ ſorow, and honger, ⁊ ſhe ſhalbe brent with fyre: for ſtrõge is ẏ Lord God which ſhal iudge her.

And the kynges of the earth ſhalbe wepe her and wayle ouer her, which haue committed fornicacion with her, ⁊ haue lyued wantonly with her, whē they ſhall ſe ẏ ſmoke of her burnyng, and ſhall ſtande a farre of, for Iere.51.a feare of her punyſhement ſaying. * Alas, D Alas, that great cytie Babilon, ẏ myghtye cytie: for at one houre is thy iudgemẽt come And the marchaũtes of the earth ſhal wepe and wayle in them ſelues, for no man wyll bye theyr ware any more, the ware of golde ⁊ ſiluer, ⁊ precious ſtones, nether of perle, ⁊ raynes, ⁊ purple ⁊ ſkarlet, ⁊ al thynen wood, ⁊ al maner veſſels of yuery, ⁊ all maner veſſels of moſt precious wood, ⁊ of braſſe ⁊ yron, ⁊ marble, ⁊ synamũ, ⁊ odours, ⁊ oyntmẽtes ⁊ frankinſence, ⁊ wyne, ⁊ oyle, ⁊ fyne floure, ⁊ wheate, beſtes, and ſhepe, and horſſes, and charettes, and bodyes, and ſoules of men.

And the aples that thy ſoule luſted after, are departed frõ the. And al thynges which were deyntie, and had in pryce, are departed frõ the, ⁊ thou ſhalt fynde thẽ no more. The marchaũtes of theſe thinges which were wexed ryche, ſhall ſtãde a farre of from hyr, for feare of the punyſhemẽt of her, weping, and Iere.51.a E waylyng, ⁊ ſaying: Alas, Alas, that great cytie, that was clothed in raynes ⁊ purple, and ſcarlet, and decked with golde, and precious ſtones, ⁊ pearles: for at one houre ſo great ryches is come to nought.

And euery ſhyppe gouerner, and all they that occupyed ſhyppes, and ſhypmen which worke in the ſee ſtode a farre of, and cryed, when they ſawe the ſmoke of her burnynge, ſaying: what cytie is lyke vnto this great cytie? And they caſt duſt on theyr hedes, and Iere.51.b F cryed weppyng, ⁊ waylyng, and ſayde: Alas, Alas, that great citie, wherin were made riche al that had ſhyppes in the ſee, by the reaſon of her coſtlynes, for at one houre is ſhe made deſolate.

Reioyce ouer her thou heauen, and ye holy Apoſtles and Prophetes: for God hath geuen your iudgemẽt on her. And a mighty angell toke vp a ſtone lyke a great mylſtone, ⁊ caſt it into the ſee, ſaying, with ſuche violẽce G ſhall that great citie Babylon be caſt, ⁊ ſhal be foũde no more. And the voyce of harpers ⁊ muſycyons, and of pypers, and trõpetters ſhalbe herde no more in the: and no craftes man, of whatſoeuer craft he be ſhalbe foũde any more in the: And the ſoũde of a myl ſhal be herde no more in the: and the lyght of the lampe, ſhall no more ſhyne in the: and the voyce of the brydgrome and of the bryde, ſhal be herde no more in the, for thy marchaũtes were the great men of the erth. And wͭ thine inchauntmentes were deceyued al nacions: ⁊ in her was foũde the bloude of the Prophetes, and of the ſayntes, and of all that were ſlayne vpon the erth.

❡ Praiſe is geuen vnto God for iudgyng the whore, and for auengyng the bloude of his ſeruauntes. The Angel wyl not be worſhipped. The foules and byrdes are called to the ſlaughter.

CAPI. XIX.

A AND after that, I herd a great voyce of muche people in heauen ſayinge: Alleluia. Saluacion and glory and honour and power be aſcrybed to the Lord our God, for true and righteous are his iudgementes, for he hath iudged the great whore whyche dyd corrupt the erth with her fornicacyon, & hath aueged the bloud of his ſeruauntes of hyr hãd. And agayne they ſayde, Alleluia. And ſmoke roſe vp for euermore. And the. xxiiii. elders, & the. iiii. beſtes fel downe, and worſhypped God that ſate on the ſeate, ſayinge: Amen, Alleluia. And a voyce came out of the ſeate, ſaying: prayſe our Lord God al ye that are his ſeruaũtes, & ye that fere him both ſmal and great.

B And I herd the voice of much people, euẽ as the voyce of many waters, & as the voice of ſtrong thõdrynges, ſayinge: Alleluia, for the Lord our God omnipotẽt raygneth. Let vs be glad and reioyce, & gyue honour to hĩ for the mariage of the lãbe is come, and his wyfe made her ſelfe redy. And to her was grãted, that ſhe ſhuld be arayed with pure & godly raynes. For the raynes is the ryghtuouſnes of ſaynctes. And he ſayd vnto me, wrytte, * happy are they whiche are called vnto the lãbes ſupper. And he ſaid vnto me: theſe are the true ſayinges of god. And I fel at his fete, to worſhyppe him. And he ſayde vnto me: ſe thou do it not. For I am thy felowe ſeruaunte, & one of thy brethren, euẽ of thẽ that haue the teſtimony of Jeſus. Worſhip God. For the teſtimony of Jeſus is the ſpirit of prophesy.

C And I ſaw heuen open, & beholde, a whyt horſſe: & he that ſat vpon him was faythfull & true, & in ryghtuouſnes dyd iudge & make battayle. Hys eyes were as a flãme of fyre: and on hys head were many crownes: & he had a name wrytten, that noman knew but he him ſelfe. * And he was clothed with a veſture dipt in bloude, & his name is called the word of God. And the warriers which were in heuen, folowed him vpon whyte horſſes, clothed with white & pure raines: and out of his mouth wente out a ſharpe two edged ſwerde, that with it he ſhulde ſmyte the heythen. And he ſhall rule them with a rodde of yron, and he trode the wynefat of fearſnes & wrath of almyghty God. And hath on his veſture & on his thygh a name wryttẽ: kyng of kynges, & Lorde of Lordes.

D And I ſawe an angel ſtãde in the ſonne, and he cryed with a loude voyce, ſayinge: to all the foules that flye by the myddes of heuen: come and gather your ſelues togyther vnto the ſupper of yͤ great god, that ye may eate the fleſhe of kynges, & the fleſhe of hye captaynes, and the fleſhe of myghty men, & the fleſhe of horſſes, and of them that ſyt on them, & the fleſhe of all fre mẽ & bond men, & of ſmall & great. And I ſawe the beaſt, & the kynges of the erth, & their warriers gathered togyther to make battayle agaynſt hym that ſat on the horſſe, and agaynſt hys ſouldiers.

And the beaſt was takẽ, & with hym that falſe prophet that wrought myracles before him, with whiche he deceyued them that receyued the beaſtes marke, & them that worſhypped his ymage. Theſe both were caſt quicke ĩto a põde of fyre burnynge wͭ brymſtone: & the remnaũt were ſlayne wͭ the ſwerde of him yͭ ſat vpon the horſſe, whiche ſwerde proceaded out of his mouth, & all the foules were fulfylled with their fleſhe.

CAPI. XX.

A AND I ſaw an Angell come downe frõ heuyng, hauyng the key of the bottomleſſe pyt, & a great chayne in his hande. And after that he muſt be loſed for a lytle ſeaſon.

B And I ſawe ſeates, and they ſat vpõ thẽ, & iudgemẽt was gyuẽ vnto thẽ: and I ſawe the ſoules of them that were beheaded for yͤ wytnes of Jeſu, and for the worde of God: which had not worſhypped the beaſt, nether his ymage, nether had taken his marke vpõ their forhedes, or on their handes: and they lyued, and raygned with Chriſt a. For on ſuch ſhal the ſecõde death haue no power, but they ſhalbe the preſtes of god and of Chriſte, and ſhall raygne with him a thouſande yere.

C And whẽ the thouſand yeres are expired, Satan ſhalbe lowſed out of his priſon, and ſhal go out to deceyue the people, which are in the foure quarters of the erth, Gog & Magog, to gather them togyther to battayle, whoſe nombre is as the ſonde of the ſee: and they went vp in the playne of the earth: & cõpaſed the tentes of the ſayntes aboute, & the beloued citie. And fyre came downe frõ god out of heauen, and deuoured them: and the deuyll that deceyued them, was caſt into a

and nyght for euer more.
